Egypt May Blockade Port of Eilat

Israeli Tanks Sent to Border

Cairo (UPI) — Israel was reported moving tanks to the Egyptian border Saturday night following a move that heightened the possibility of an Egyptian blockade of Israel's key 'back door' port of Eilat on the Gulf of Aqaba

Informed sources in Cairo said Egypt had moved troops into position on the Tiran Strait through which Israeli shipping must pass to reach the port of Eilat

In Jerusalem an Israeli army spokesman announced Saturday night that Israeli defense forces have just completed mobilization following the entrance of more than 50,000 Egyptian troops into the Sinai Peninsula area bordering on Israel

Informed Israeli sources said Israel sent tanks to its side of the Sinai frontier to face the Egyptian force

(An official Israeli announcement also claimed that Syria breached the precarious peace Saturday by sending a sabotage unit into Israel It said two loads of explosives were found under a culvert on the Beersheeba to Arad road in southeastern Israel and blamed the Syrians for the incidents)

Necessary Steps Taken

An Israeli army spokesman said Israeli forces which were moved to the border "have taken all the necessary steps to meet any eventuality"

The spokesmen said Israel had also called up 'limited reserve elements" to meet what high Israeli sources said was the 'imbalance created by the sudden evacuation of the U N Emergency Force '

They said the Egyptians had moved an armored division of Soviet built tanks and four infantry divisions totaling about 50 000 men to the Sinai Peninsula

Tension heightened further along the Arab-Israeli borders as U N Secretary-general U Thant announced at U N headquarters in New York he would fly to Cairo Monday night for urgent talks on the Middle East crisis

Thant called the Middle East situation more menacing" than at any time since the Suez crisis of 1956

In New York U S Ambassador Arthur J Goldberg had a 40 minute conference with Thant and told newsmen afterward the United States considers a United Nations presence in the Middle East vital to the interests of peace

In Cairo informed sources said Saturday night the extremist Palestine Liberation Army (PLA) had taken over the Gaza Strip from the U N peacekeeping force which ceased operations in Egypt and the Gaza Strip Friday at the demand of the United Arab Republic

Gaza Strip 'Barracks'

The leader of the Palestinian refugee forces Ahmed Shukeiry said the whole of the Gaza Strip will become a military barracks "

Shukeiry said his men had taken over the entire armistice demarcation line between Gaza and Israel and this is the beginning of the liberation battle because we now are face to face with our enemies "

LBJ Requests Soviet Help In Middle East

No Reply Yet From Kosygin

Washington (UPI) — President Johnson has appealed to the Soviet Union an important arms supplier to Egypt and Syria to use its influence in dampening the current Mideast crisis informed sources reported Saturday night

The sources said that Johnson by Saturday afternoon had not yet received a reply to his message to Soviet Premier Alexi Kosygin

The White House apparently wanted to keep the initiative as quiet as possible and well placed officials at the State Dept declined any knowledge of the top level message

The Middle East crisis was understood to have been the subject of discussions between Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk during the past several days

It was also reported that Defense Secretary Robert S McNamara called at the State Dept Saturday afternoon presumably to discuss the situation also with Rusk

The sources said that contingency planning was going ahead in the event that the Soviet Union did not respond to the reported Johnson message

Details of alternate moves were being closely guarded but it was believed that in one variant France Great Britain and the United States might act together

There has been no public announcement to date that the United States has put the 6th Fleet on special alert in the Mediterranean although this was held out as a possibility if the situation becomes hotly inflamed

But at his press conference earlier this week McNamara said that as of Thursday the fleet had not received special instructions

Hard Line by House on Plan to Ease Budget Could Balloon U.S. Deficit

Washington (AP) — A hard line adopted by the House on what Republicans repeatedly have attacked as a budget gimmick could spell more trouble for a federal budget which is becoming more complex with each passing week

The House GOP Republican insistence curbed by $235 billion the government's power to raise money by selling shares called participation certificates in pools of government owned mortgages and loans

The net result, if it holds up, would be to increase the budget deficit by $2 35 billion for the fiscal year which begins July 1 if all other budget items remained the same—which they apparently won t

Treasury officials said Saturday the Administration is certain to ask the Senate to reverse the action and grant full power to sell PC which are much like stock certificates

Although $2 35 billion is relatively small compared with the entire budget it would exceed the amount the Administration plans to spend for aid to elementary and secondary education in the year beginning July 1

The House curb could be enough to produce in fiscal 1968 the biggest peacetime administrative budget deficit in history The peacetime deficit record is a little over $112 billion

Here s how the estimates for the coming fiscal year go

1 In January the administration estimated the deficit at $8 1 billion which is more than the government actually spent in any year between 1920 and 1946

2 Secretary of the Treasury Henry H Fowler and Charles L Schultze the Budget Bureau director officially revised the deficit this past week to $11 billion but placed a variety of conditions on that figure The deficit for fiscal 1967 ending June 30 also is figured at $11 billion as of now

3 The Business Council a blue-ribbon business panel, figured the fiscal 1968 deficit at up to $18 billion including in that a $5 billion escalation in Vietnam and no tax increase It used $8 1 billion—not the revised $11 billion figure — as its base

4 The staff of the Senate House Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation came up with an estimated deficit ranging from $16 9 billion to $17 4 billion based solely on what it said the government can expect from tax collections without a surtax

College Graduates Never Had It So Good, Paywise

Washington (UPI) — Opportunity beckons more insistently than ever before to next month's record crop of American college graduates Never has the competition been so keen or beginning pay offers more generous

More than 700 000 young men and women are receiving bachelor's and master's degrees this spring, and many of them long since have been signed up for jobs Some will command $200 or more a week to start

The search for top talent has been underway for months Recruiters for business and industry—as well as the government—have swarmed over college campuses in fierce bidding for promising graduates

Engineers continue in great demand and pay offers have risen sharply One survey indicated that more than twice as many engineering graduates are being sought this year as in 1966

The soaring demand for engineers applies to recipients of both bachelor and master's degrees, according to a survey directed by Northwestern University's placement chief, Frank S Endicott

The Northwestern survey is considered by many including Labor Dept experts to be the most authoritative available The government did not conduct its own survey this year pleading lack of funds

The Endicott report said 70% of the big companies it contacted and which regularly and actively recruit on campus reported they widened this year s talent search

Americans Observe Armed Forces Day With Eyes on Vietnam

New York (AP) — On the land on the sea and in the air Americans observed Armed Forces Day Saturday reminded constantly of the war in Vietnam

There were parades down Fifth Avenue in New York and State Street in Chicago an open house at the Boston Naval Shipyard and sky diving at Ft Lee Va

And in Fremont Neb population 20 000 the Junior Chamber of Commerce staged an "I'm proud to be an American march" inviting everyone to come and wave an American flag

In New York the long gray line from West Point — 2 800 uniformed cadets — led 12 bands and more than 7 000 servicemen in a sunny afternoon march along the route followed a week ago by another parade supporting U S fighting men in Vietnam

A man wearing a ban the Bomb' button in his lapel was arrested when he tried to sit in the street near the Metropolitan Museum of Art in an effort to halt the parade

Flower bearing antiwar demonstrators chanted Make love not war at the cadets

Ranks of one of the marching units from the U S Merchant Marine Academy were depleted by 200 men graduated in February to provide officers for supply ships for Vietnam

In Spokane Wash two youths who said they were protesting the war were arrested after tossing eggs at Maj Gen Charles M Eisenhart vice commander of the 15th Air Force and grand marshal of the combined Spokane Lilac Festival and Armed Forces Day parade

In Marietta Ga more than a dozen persons picketed an Armed Forces Day program at the Lockheed Aircraft Corp Pickets wore black armbands and carried signs

The Chicago parade honored Capt Charles Williams who won the Medal of Honor at Dong Xoai June 9 1965

The traditional Armed Forces Day observance at Richmond Va was canceled this year The defense General Supply Agency said it was too busy with Vietnam war work for any special activities

General theme for the observances was Power for Peace

On the Potomac River the Naval Weapons Laboratory at Dahlgren Va fired Navy guns and displayed a laser beam generator

At Andrews Air Force Base near Washington sentry dogs and drill teams went through maneuvers

At Ft Devens Mass soldiers demonstrated flamethrowers and chemical warfare weapons

Topeka saw one of the biggest American Legion parades in Kansas history

At the Pentagon the day went unmarked There were no press releases and neither Secretary of Defense Robert S McNamara nor Gen Earle G Wheeler chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff was on the list of Armed Forces Day speakers

Gaullists Avoid Political Chaos by 8-Vote Margin

Paris (UPI) — The French National Assembly Saturday night narrowly rejected an opposition censure motion against the Gaullist government after Premier Georges Pompidou charged his leftist opponents were bent on "destruction of our regime."

France barely averted being plunged into a full scale political crisis when Pompidou survived the showdown test with the resurgent leftist and Communist opposition by a margin of only eight votes.

The censure motion was endorsed by 236 members in the 487-seat chamber where the opposition must muster a minimum of 244 votes to topple a cabinet.

Georges Pompidou

Rejection of the censure motion meant the automatic adoption of a bill granting Pompidou full powers to rule France by decree for six months.

The 200-man leftist and Communist opposition, with the backing of the bulk of the 41 members of right-center Progress and Modern Democracy (PDM) faction sought to overthrow the cabinet on the ground it would use the full powers to trim allowances handed out by the deficit-ridden national social security system.

Near Crisis

Pompidou's defeat would have unleashed a major political crisis. President Charles de Gaulle was known to be ready to dissolve the chamber and call new elections in an all-out bid to beat down the resurgent opposition in the event the censure motion succeeded.

The vote came after a bitter two-day lower house debate in which the leftist groups, which scored spectacular gains over the Gaullists in the Mar. 5-12 general elections vowed they would combat the Gaullist regime with renewed vigor.

Pompidou escaped defeat after quelling a perilous revolt in the ranks of his own coalition. Former Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing who has been criticizing the emergency powers bill rallied behind Pompidou with his 44-member Republican Independent faction, some of whose members originally wanted to bolt the majority.

Pompidou had been expected to win the test but the narrowness of the margin with which the censure motion missed being adopted served notice his six-week-old cabinet will be living dangerously in the chamber.

Giscard d'Estaing, whose quarrels with Pompidou over economic policies have been exploited to the hilt by opposition speakers, told Pompidou he will remain in the government camp to avoid a dissolution and new elections only nine weeks after the March election.

New Motion Likely

Buoyed up by its strength the opposition was likely to seek a new opportunity for a censure motion. In French censure motion votes, only ballots cast against the government are counted.

Throughout the debate which started Thursday the government was on the defensive. The harassed premier repeatedly harangued his Gaullist group. Many members were baffled by Pompidou's claim that without the decree of urgent economic and social measures France might not be ready for the completion of the Common Market July 1, 1968.

Girl Found Dead After Receiving 5 Red Roses

Atlanta (UPI) — The body of a beautiful 22-year-old girl was found Saturday stuffed in the trunk of her car. She had received five red roses from an anonymous sender, just as another local woman had before she mysteriously disappeared.

The body of Diane Marie Shields was discovered by two officers on a routine patrol in the Atlanta suburb of East Point. A nine-foot long trail of blood led from the trunk.

An autopsy showed the girl had been strangled, but officers said she also had received a severe blow on the back of her head.

She was fully clothed and had not been raped, authorities said.

Her fiance, Howard Thomas Antle, reported her missing when she failed to return home from work Friday.

The case was very similar to that of Mary Shotwell Little, who dropped from sight Oct. 14, 1965, after leaving her job in Atlanta.

Despite one of the most intensive investigations in recent Atlanta history, no further trace of Mrs. Little has ever been found. She had been married for six weeks at the time of her disappearance, but had separated from her husband.

Tax Break On College Costs Seen

Washington (AP) — Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn. predicted Saturday the Senate will pass later this session his proposal to give parents a tax break on college education costs. It will have to be added as a rider to a House measure, he noted, so that Senate passage could give that branch a chance to vote on it for the first time.

Under the constitution, the House must originate all revenue measures. But tax bills normally reach the House floor under procedure which bars amendments. Advocates of the tax credit for college expenses thus have not had a chance to offer it there.

Ribicoff said he understands there is growing support for it in the House, although he would not predict what might happen there.

However, he said a strong Senate majority now has been achieved for it and said, "I believe this will continue to grow."

Last month the Senate voted 53-26 to add the Ribicoff plan as an amendment to a bill restoring business tax incentive provisions.

But this was only a tentative decision. Later, as a part of the maneuvering over repeal of the presidential campaign financing plan, nearly all amendments including the Ribicoff rider were stripped from the bill.

Ribicoff Pleased

The Connecticut senator, who has been pushing the idea of a tax credit for college expenses for a long time, said he was extremely pleased with this vote. His proposal won the support of 28 Democrats and 25 Republicans.

"It gave a big psychological boost to my proposal. It has built up a head of steam now."

Ribicoff, who serves on the tax-writing Finance Committee,* said he will watch carefully for another House-passed bill which could serve as a suitable vehicle for his proposal.

His plan would permit an annual credit of up to $325 on the expenses of a college student. A credit is subtracted from taxes due.

The credit could be taken against costs of tuition, fees, books and supplies but not room and board.

Engineering Grads Get Top Job Offers

On the basis of companies surveyed, the average offer for an engineering graduate with a bachelor's degree was $712. This comes to about $165 a week, but competition is probably forcing offers to as high as $200.

The Northwestern survey said holders of master's degrees would be able to demand an average of $835-a-month with top offers probably running into four figures.

The U.S. Office of Education estimated that the 570,000 men and women who receive bachelor's degrees and the 133,000 who get master's degrees are the prime targets of job recruiters. Universities also will award 18,800 doctorates, but many of these people already are well launched in their careers.

The greatest frustration reported was the opinion that too many students were going on to graduate school instead of taking jobs immediately.

College professors also were criticized by the recruiters for their lack of "a better understanding of our type of business."

The Northwestern survey covered 200 firms ranging from machinery and heavy equipment to banks, investment houses and retail establishments. Endicott said that all regularly sent recruiters to selected campuses.

Business Outlook Good

Of those polled, 136 companies considered the general business outlook for 1967 to be better than last year, 56 companies said it was about the same and six said the situation was not as good. Two firms did not respond. Endicott said overall demand by the firms for engineering graduates with bachelors degrees was up 104% over 1966, while demand for engineers with a master's degree was up 106%. In non-engineering fields, demand for bachelors was up 29% and demand for masters was up 31%.

The survey showed that about 65% of the companies reporting planned to hire 1967 women graduates and that most of them would hire more women if they were available. It said this was particularly true in such fields as mathematics, data processing, engineering, accounting, chemistry and similar fields.

The survey also cast some light on what has happened to the salaries of college trained people in the past 10 years.

For example, an engineering graduate hired in 1961 for $529 a month now gets $856 while an engineer hired in 1956 for $415 now gets $1,016 a month. An accounting graduate hired in 1961 for $462 now gets $782 while his senior colleague hired for $372 in 1956 now receives $1,014.

Sales Salaries

A sales graduate hired at $453 in 1961 now earns $853 while a similar graduate hired in 1956 for $370 has advanced to $1,027. A general business graduate who started for $435 in 1961 has risen to $787 while the 1956 graduate in the same field moved from $363 to start to $995 at present.

For non-engineering fields, the survey gave these average monthly starting salaries for bachelors and masters compared with 1966:

FIELD	BACHELOR 1967	BACHELOR 1966	MASTERS 1967	MASTERS 1966
Accounting	$621	$594	$735	$700
Sales-Marketing	$583	$562	$773	$736

Bus Drivers Halt Walkout

Madison, Wis. (AP) — Drivers agreed to halt a city-wide bus walkout Saturday, but said they would take their buses "right back to the barn" if confronted again by crowds of University of Wisconsin demonstrators.

City officials joined Bus Driver Union spokesman late Friday in demanding that the university crack down on students who have blocked traffic and have smashed bus windows in three days of protests.

342 Enemy Dead

No. Viet Battalion Is Caught in DMZ

Saigon (UPI) — U.S. Marines and Vietnamese paratroopers caught an estimated battalion of North Vietnamese in a giant pincer in the demilitarized zone today and reported killing 342 of the enemy. The fighting came as U.S. jets downed five more Communist MIGs over Hanoi Saturday and bombed a power plant in the port city of Haiphong.

The Leathernecks made a lightning helicopter assault into the so-called neutral zone Saturday, pushing the Communist troops backward into the government troops which had been set up as a blocking force.

The assault pumped another battalion of Marines into the Operation Nut Cracker fighting where a large combined U.S.-Vietnamese force was attempting to trap an estimated two and perhaps three North Vietnamese regiments.

The new fighting sent Communist casualties inside the DMZ to more than 600. U.S. officials said 50 Marines had been killed and 543 wounded since the offensive started Thursday.

The big air battle over Communist North Vietnam Saturday raised to 19 the total of Soviet-made jets gunned down in a week over North Vietnam. At least two of Saturday's kills were supersonic MIG21S—the fastest Communist planes.

The MIG kills Saturday raised to 69 the number of Communist jets downed by American fighter planes.

The United States lost seven jets Friday during raids over Hanoi and all 10 American crewmen were reported killed or missing in one of the blackest days of the air war for the Americans.

The official North Vietnamese news agency reported eight more American planes were shot down in Saturday's raids over the north and said a number of pilots were captured.

U.S. military spokesmen said today Navy pilots Saturday bombed the Haiphong west thermal power plant, a short distance from North Vietnam's most important docks where ships of different countries call regularly.

In other air action, U.S. B52s rained tons of bombs in the central highlands where elements of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division tangled with a large-sized North Vietnamese force.

The Communists pounded a multi-company 4th Division force with heavy mortar and rocket attacks Saturday night and tried to overrun one position. They were repulsed in heavy fighting.

Jets and artillery zeroed in on the Communist positions, about three miles from the Cambodian border and about 210 miles northeast of Saigon.

11 Americans Killed

Military spokesmen said 11 Americans were killed and 50 wounded in the Communist attack.

In the DMZ ground action, U.S. Marines airlifted a fresh battalion of Marine reinforcements into the middle of the battleground from snips in the South China Sea to join 15,000 Marines and South Vietnamese forces driving against about 5,500 North Vietnamese.

British Lion's Roar Sounds More Like Kitten's Mewing

By Arthur L. Gavshon

London (AP)—Britain, the leonine power that dominated the world at the turn of the century, is struggling today against challenges in four remnants of an all but vanished empire

It is trying to preserve, or reassert, real authority in the trouble spots of Hong Kong South Arabia, Gibralter and Rhodesia

The saying in 1900 was that when a British prime minister sneezed in London, diplomats in distant lands caught cold

In the past week straw effigies of Prime Minister Harold Wilson were burned before Britain's diplomatic mission at Peking in a whip-up of Chinese antiforeign passions focused on Hong Kong. People were showing they could twist the old lion's tail and get away with it where in another time imperial Britain unhesitatingly would have used troops or gunboats or planes as needed to deal with that sort of thing

Now local police are under orders to deal gingerly with rioting demonstrators who brought Hong Kong to the point of standstill

In South Arabia Wilson's men seem to be going out of their way to come to terms with radical nationalists backed by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser who have used bombs and bullets in their bid for power

The British still are counting on diplomats to persuade Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain to call off his harassment of Gibraltar

Problem To U N

And London has discreetly tossed the problem of the Rhodesian rebellion into the lap of the United Nations hoping it may be able to clear a way toward a settlement Britain would want to dictate

The cold reality behind each situation amounts to this

The British having deliberately shed their imperial power and many of their possessions no longer feel strong enough to assert their old authority by using force

For one thing Wilson's Socialist government on grounds of principle has renounced any intention or wish ever to undertake imperialist ventures on the model of the 1956 Suez invasion That misadventure rocked the Atlantic alliance nearly wrecked the Commonwealth and set back British world prestige

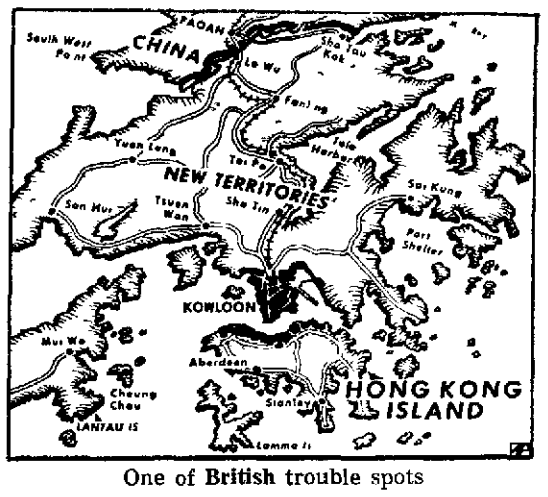
For another Wilson's government, after its confrontation with President Sukarno's Indonesia over Malaysia-Singapore expeditions that would tary expeditions that would leave Britain to fight faraway wars on her own

Underlying both these factors is the grim fact that Britain simply cannot now afford costly military budgets

In Hong Kong Britain's position would become untenable at a drop of Mao Tse tung's hat The colony gets much of its water and food from the mainland If Peking cut them off the British would face an uprising by the four million people of Hong Kong

Past British governments sought guarantees of U S aid in case of attacks on almost Hong Kong It is never given Nor would the U S care to one now recount this would provoke the already suspicious Chinese into action

Some influential Britons argue that Wilson's stand on Vietnam has caused the Chinese to rage over Hong Kong Wilson is under ceaseless pressure to dissociate Britain from the Americans over Vietnam



One of British trouble spots

British Aim

In South Arabia the British aim to transfer power to an all party caretaker government by next January and to pull out militarily by Dec 31 1968

To achieve this they have begun cozying up to exiled nationalists even at the risk of offending King Faisal of Saudi Arabia

Through various channels they have offered to lift the emergency free political prisoners and generally clear a way for the sort of settlement even the hostile Nasser would find hard to reject

But they still await a response

At Gibraltar British airliners have been landing safely under the nose of Spain's air force without infringing Franco's newly defined prohibited zone This zone was created as part of Spain's campaign to force a showdown over claims to the Rock

The British took over Gibraltar by conquest formalized in the 1713 Treaty of Utrecht but Franco maintains they have breached many of that treaty's provisions

A real confrontation may come as soon as weather forces one British airliner over the newly banned zone

For the Wilson government the problem is loaded with danger To hand over nearly 30 000 free Gibraltarians to a Franco government would mean trouble A military clash could be disastrous

As for Rhodesia Wilson has failed, despite concessions to come to terms with the rebellious white settler regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith In doing so Wilson risked and in some cases lost the friendship of African and Asian countries that wanted Britain to use military action against Smith's regime They could not fathom how 230 000 whites could successfully defy British authority unless by some sort of connivance by Wilson

Rhodesian Problem

The U N has set out to cut off all trade with Rhodesia and so compel Smith to concede more power to Rhodesia's 4 million strong African majority

South Africa and Portugal are flouting the embargo And the British have served notice that come what may they will have no part in any extension of the Rhodesian crisis that poses a risk of war against Smith's South African or Portuguese friends

Son Born to Greek King

Compiled From News Wires

Athens — A son was born Saturday night to King Constantine of Greece and his Danish born queen Anne Marie

It was the couple's second child and becomes a direct heir to the throne of Greece

News of the birth set off a fusilade of 101 cannon shots over Athens fired from atop Mount Lycabettus The 20 year old queen the youngest queen in the world gave birth at the royal palace in Tatoi 14 miles outside Athens

The new heir to the crown was born 30 days after the Apr 21 coup d etat that brought a military regime to power in Greece

A palace spokesman said 26 year old King Constantine would meet with the press today to give details about his son

The royal couple's first baby Princess Alexia was born July 10 1965 also during a period of political trouble for Greece

The birth came only a few hours before the 6 year old Constantine's name day An official Te Deum a religious service of thanks will be held this morning at the Metropolis Cathedral in Athens in honor of the king

It was raining heavily in the Greek capital when startled pedestrians heard the first cannon booms The firing of the cannon caused some consternation among foreign tourists not aware that royal births are announced in such a manner

Some of them apparently felt the cannon fire had something to do with the recent military takeover in Greece However the birth of an heir to the throne is considered a good omen

Greeks also feel that the birth of a child in the rain brings good luck and the birth of the prince was expected to help unify Greeks split by the recent coup de etat

Nixon Grows Politically

Princeton N J — The political fortunes of Richard Nixon continue to grow Over the past month a period marked by world travelling by Nixon the former vice president has increased his lead over Gov George Romney with the rank and file of the GOP as their first choice for the party's 1968 presidential nomination Preference today for Nixon among Republicans is the highest it has been since 1964

At the same time, Nixon has taken the lead away from Romney among Independents, a bloc of voters who, because of the GOP's minority status in politics today, are important to Republican election hopes

Richard Nixon

In an April survey Nixon was selected by voters who identify themselves as Republicans over Romney (from a list of seven prominent Republicans) by a vote of 39% to 30% In the latest survey Nixon wins 43% to Romney's 28% or a margin of 15 percentage points

Among Republicans interviewed the race at this time is strictly a two man affair After Nixon and Romney Gov Nelson Rockefeller Gov Ronald Reagan and Sen Charles Percy receive the next largest number of mentions but not one receives more than 7%

Among Independents there have been sharp changes since the April survey

Rockefeller in third place has increased his standing by 5 percentage points among Independents since the earlier survey and now trails Romney by only 6 percentage points Reagan and Percy receive 10 and 9% of the mentions, respectively Percy's total has more than doubled since the earlier survey

Cockroach Helps Brain Research

College Station Tex (UPI) —A cockroach may help pave the way to new knowledge about brain disorders

At Texas A&M University, physics professor Dr Dayle Sittler has been doing research using cockroaches on chemicals that help send the nerve commands to the brain These are the chemicals that include such things as adrenalin and acetylcholine

Sittler says scientists know chemical imbalance must have some effect in disorders perhaps in such things as schizophrenia and hallucinations He chose cockroaches for his research because they can be raised conveniently in the laboratory he said

Wirtz on Rail Strike Threat

Permanent Legislation Is Foreseen

Washington (UPI) — Labor Secretary W Willard Wirtz said Saturday that if the present threat of a nationwide rail strike dragged on long enough it could result in permanent anti-strike legislation in the transportation industry

Wirtz said the strike threat by six shopcraft unions combined with the danger of other strikes against the railroads could serve as the catalyst for such legislation

He said he doubted, however, that the situation would result in any move for permanent anti strike action against the non-transportation industries

"If this case should not be disposed of fairly and quickly if it drags on I think the possibility of more permanent legislation in the transportation industry—which is where almost all of our troubles have settled—increase," Wirtz said

"I'm opposed to it"

At the same time Wirtz said that President Johnson's 1966 State of the Union call for permanent emergency strike legislation might be fulfilled "There may or may not be a formal message on the matter" he said

No Right Answer

Wirtz said it was not a case of a broken promise on the part of the President, but a case of there simply being no right answer at the moment toward resolving the conflict between freedom and finality of decision

He said the administration was giving "very intensive consideration" to the matter, but that it wouldn't make any sense to approach Congress with anything that wouldn't have a reasonable prospect of passage"

And as part of the effort to settle the present dispute, Wirtz said he didn't think congressional attempts at mediation were very helpful "I don't believe that settlement of collective bargaining disputes by negotiation in congressional committees is a good thing and I think most of them (congressmen) feel this way," Wirtz said.

Wirtz described the present railroad dispute as the one case in a thousand which provides no alternative to the action taken by the administration with its proposal—now before Congress—to force a settlement if the parties can't work things out themselves within a reasonable time

If the parties can't reach a voluntary settlement, Wirtz said "I don't think the country ought to be asked to pay the price of giving up all of its railroad transport at least at times of this kind"

The $3.2 Billion Problem

Taken at first glance the $3 2 billion price tag placed on Nebraska road and street needs in the next 20 years is a stunner Certainly the $450 000 study of the state's street and highway situation much of which is being presented to the public for the first time today is one of the most significant documents ever handed to Nebraskans in the state s 100-year history

* * *

But before the people of Nebraska become unduly alarmed at the cost figure in the report or overly disturbed by some of its individual recommendations, they will do well to give serious contemplation to the immense problem being attacked here

* * *

Those who prefer not to accept the scope or the specifics of this report of the experts now have the opportunity to make their own proposals as to what should be done

The one opportunity not available however is to do nothing to pretend there is no problem or that the problem will go away if it is ignored or that somebody else should worry about it

The problem is here and now And it is up to those Nebraskans on the scene at this time to come up with the solutions

It will be well for the people of the state to realize that they will not save themselves any money by refusing to make the necessary investment in their road and street systems One way or another they are going to pay out this $3 2 billion and maybe more for the privilege of driving their motor vehicles

* * *

They either will pay it out for decent roads and streets or they will pay it out for vehicle repair, loss of life loss of time loss of business as tourists and industry avoid the state By inaction they will simply move the costs from visible inventorying to invisible inventorying

* * *

If the decision for action is merely deferred to some date in the future the price tag will become even greater such is the reality of inflation

If suitable alternatives to the study recommendations are not forthcoming then we had better think seriously and calmly about these recommendations and about how they can be implemented in good time and with the understanding and support of a large portion of the state populace

* * *

The best way to accomplish this it seems will be to let the public recover from the initial impact of the report then urge them to study it carefully and conduct public seminars over the state on all its ramifications

* * *

This is not a proper time to expect the Legislature to deal effectively with the problem The senators are tired Many critical decisions still must be made aside from highway matters Tensions and animosities are sure to build up in the coming weeks before adjournment

The Legislature and Gov Tiemann could however work out a definite plan for a special session later in the fall devoted exclusively to the street and road problem and to intensive consideration of the report

For the moment the appreciation of the state should go to those officials and consultants responsible for this most penetrating look ever given to Nebraska s vehicular transportation problems Special gratitude certainly goes to Sen Jules Burbach and his legislative committee which supervised the study

* * *

From now on, the public will be a principal participant in the deliberations This is an assignment to be taken most seriously

A WORLD OF HUMOR — By ART BUCHWALD

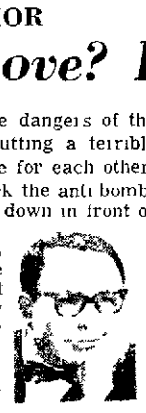
Hawk? Dove? Here's Your Line

Washington — One of the dangers of the Vietnam war is that it is putting a terrible strain on everyone s tolerance for each other While the super patriots attack the anti bombers and the draft dodgers he down in front of the Vice President and Congressman Hebert of Louisiana calls for the abolition of the First Amendment President Johnson reveals at a party that he told his daughter some months ago Your daddy may go down in history as the man who started World War III "



Buchwald

No wonder everyone s heating up in bars and living rooms and as a timesaver I have prepared standard arguments for both doves and hawks All they have to do is fill in the blanks

Hawk I say we should bomb - - - - - and and give those dirty little - something to really think about

Dove The bombing hasn t done any good testified last week that every time we've had a peace feeler we've followed it up with a bombing The Vietnam is a revolution and we should get the out

Hawk We haven t even started to bomb the out of the and the -- and even the if they intervene

* * *

What About the . . .

Dove But that would lead to world war --

Hawk If we don t stop the --- where we stand we will have World War If we had any brains we would have used -- weapons

Dove What about the convention and the treaty and the pact Don t the treaty

Hawk You will what about the - agreements and the monument and the - -- Doctrine You don t think we're going to squirm out of those?

Dove Do you know the Vietnamese don t give a damn if or --- - rule their country They just want us to get out

Hawk ' Says you We wouldn t be there if the hadn t asked us to come in Marshall ----- is a great leader and he ll make a good president '

* * *

To the Stone Age

Dove That s what they said about Premier - until they shot him is a little dictator and he even said he admired Adolf Hitler

Hawk Well that s still better than admitting Josef Stalin I say we should unleash the Fleet and the Air Force and the Corps and pulverize the Bomb em back to the Stone Age It will give those niks and burners in this country something to yell about

Dove That shows how ignorant you are The more you the more the people You're not going to get to give in He says he ll go back to the caves

Hawk You know what our trouble is' We haven t enough We're afraid of opinion Well I say - opinion No one gives a good - - about the U S A '

* * *

Smile, You . . .

Dove After what we've done in Vietnam with our and our why should they give a good

Hawk Well let me tell you something If I was President Johnson I d arrest every and throw em in

Dove That s because you don t believe in the and the Amendments

Hawk I believe in the Amendment but not for like them '

Dove Well I think you're a

Hawk Smile when you say that

WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Expo 67 A Living History

For those who have visited and those who will visit Montreal to see Canada s Expo 6 will be treated to the most interesting human history of the world A contrast one may find in the pavilions of the Netherlands and the United States

* * *

In the Netherlands display a continuous struggle against the encroachments of the sea will be given expression This will be found in dike building water management and land reclamation exhibits

* * *

The challenge of maintaining a high density population will be illustrated by the necessity of intensive industrial and commercial activity advanced industrialization and high level of education town planning and the preservation of natural areas

From this kind of a report it would seem that the emphasis in this display or pavilion is on people It focuses on the challenge to build a nation in which the highest human aspirations can at least be sought

Then there is the U S pavilion It will be a striking thing to see too although not in the running insofar as size is concerned

* * *

"Creative America is the theme of the exhibits and the multifaceted character of United States society is reflected in symbolic groupings of the products of human skill—from a simple plow to the geodesic dome which symbolizes giant living space.

Entering within the U S building visitors are invited to explore the visitor to new visual and auditory experiences and to project him into a world that is really new

A 6 foot elevator takes him to the upper mount platform where a huge simulated lunar land cape supports full scale lunar vehicles and a group of astronauts in Apollo space suits and where he can experience the sensation of walking on the moon s surface

* * *

Thus the U S pavilion is not without recognition of humanity or the individual but it would seem that it is a pavilion in a hurry Progress and the future are the dominating characteristics of the U S area

* * *

It is well to remember however that life is a highly personal thing that even exploration of the moon is unrewarding in and of itself In our fate of great technological and scientific advancement we cannot forget the human being

If we had made as much social progress in the past 50 years as we have economic and scientific we would be a considerably different nation But the fact is that we have reached only the dawn of such progress at this particular time

* * *

It is hoped that the next international exhibition that comes along will include a new U S display pointed toward significant progress and even greater future hope in our social understanding

Retardation: Hope Grows With Help

Special programs are giving more hope where there is yet no cure: to the 126,000 mentally retarded children born in the U.S. annually.

Provocative EDITORIAL — Topic in News FEATURE

By G. K Hodenfield, AP

IT was just an ordinary jump rope held by two teachers standing six feet apart

But to Carol it was one of the biggest and most frightening challenges faced in a lifetime of 11 lonesome frustrated years Slowly the teachers twirled the rope over her head and as it neared the floor one of them said NOW Carol '

Carol every muscle taut literally threw her body six inches into the air The rope passed beneath her feet and the gymnasium exploded with applause Big deal huh? An 11-year old girl had finally learned to jump rope

A big deal indeed for Carol a mentally retarded child who must carry through life the added burdens of near total blindness and deafness In the shadow world of the mentally retarded even the most commonplace accomplishment may be recorded as a great victory

Learning to jump rope may help Carol learn to read a bit faster write a bit more legibly and grasp at least the fundamentals of simple arithmetic

To whatever extent that is true she will be better able to fend for herself in the world of normality

It is a preverse use of the word perhaps to say that Carol with all her handicaps is 'lucky" But unlike most youngsters who share her plight Carol at least has people working to lighten her load

There are almost six million mentally retarded men women and children in the United States today There will be seven million by 1970 About 1 5 million of them are school age boys and girls Every 15 minutes a retarded child is born in this country There will be 126 000 such births this year alone from any of 100 known causes

Most of the mentally retarded can be helped An official of the Joseph P Kennedy Jr Foundation reported recently

The U S Office of Education estimates that 83% of the retarded are educatable They can be taught to read and write to hold down jobs with little or no supervision to get along in society wholly or partially by themselves to become tax contributors and not tax takers

Another 12% are trainable Under proper supervision they can live happily and usefully at home or in a sheltered workshop Even the remaining 5% of the retarded are capable of performing at higher levels than were imagined five years ago '

The promise is bright Yet only one of three mentally retarded children is even in school only one in five is getting the special attention he needs

Carol is one of 34 mentally retarded children who spend one afternoon a week in special physical education classes at the Normal College of the American Gymnastics Union in Indianapolis Ind The college is a department of Indiana University s School of Health Physical Education and Recreation

We don t have any scientific proof that what we're doing has really helped these children says Mrs Lola Hohse director of the college But we have seen tremendous changes in and out of the classroom

One problem is that most mentally retarded children lack laterality and directionality Laterality is the inner sense of leftness and rightness directionality is the way people apply this to keep things straight

So many of these children don t seem to have any orientation in space Mrs Lohse explained Anything in back of them for instance just doesn t exist—it isn t there

And they can t tell the difference between the letters b and d or between the numerals 6 and 9 or between the words on and no It isn t just that they have difficulty telling the difference the tragic thing is that to them there is no difference

To help the children become oriented in space ' Mrs Lohse and her staff have invented simple but effective little games In one each child is given a balloon and told to keep it in the air by batting it with his hands

This forces the children to keep their eyes moving to watch the balloon and their bodies moving in all directions to stay under it Mrs Lohse said It s pitiful to see what little coordination many of them have

Sometimes Mrs Lohse said we play the mirror game I stand in front of them and ask them to mimic my movements

They're improving every week but even now some of them have trouble lifting their right foot or their left foot even when we show them which is which Some will hold an arm parallel to the floor and think it s raised straight up in the air '

Another game—and one the children love — is designed to lengthen their attention span

I put them in groups of three or four Mrs Lohse said and I tell them I want you to touch a circle touch a wall touch something green and then come back to me

At the start of the year you can give them only one order at a time By the end of the year we get them up to four five and sometimes six different things

As Mrs Lohse said We don t have any scientific proof that what we're doing here has really helped these children "

But there is unscientific proof aplenty in the comments of the children s classroom teachers Sister Gerald and Sister Brendon at St Mary s child center St Mary s a former Catholic elementary school became a diagnostic clinic six years ago with special classrooms for the retarded

This has been a tremendous help to them in their classroom work said Sister Gerald Their hand writing has improved because of their better coordination Their reading has improved and their arithmetic

Sister Brendon agrees ' Everything is just blossoming now—in reading in writing in spelling in arithmetic in everything We can see a definite improvement in every area'

And how do you measure that most important dividend of all—the feeling of accomplishment? When Carol lifted her body over that jump rope it may have been the first time she had known success in any task

Just to see them have success in even the smallest thing—on its such a wonderful thing Sister Gerald said

Only in recent years has there been a concerted effort to improve the lot of retarded children through special education Most recent of all is the attempt to coordinate classroom work with physical education

There are dozens per haps hundreds of physical education programs for the mentally retarded such as at the one in Indianapolis underway across the country Breakthroughs in knowledge are being made every day new techniques are being discovered

There may never be a preventative for mental retardation as there is for polio nor a cure as there is for scarlet fever But there is hope for a better life for the afflicted

Major accomplishment for Carol, retarded nearly blind and deaf

R J PETERSON JR

Nebraska's Fourth Estate

Topics ranging from National Guard activities to state aid to schools kept editorial writers across the state busy last week

Commenting on LB874 extending National Guard authority over local law enforcement agencies which whisked through first round approval the Norfolk Daily News said the Legislature in its haste to do that the governor and the Guard which he commands have authority and funds to help in every type of emergency situation but that it paid too little attention to the need to uphold local authority rather than supplant it

The News thinks that the National Guard in anything short of a major disaster affecting many jurisdictions should be answerable as a unit to the principal local authorities through their own commanders and not the local authorities who should be looking to the Guard officers of the governor for their orders

On the subject of state aid to schools the Pierce County Leader says it is the Death' of one of the most democratic forms of government left in existence in the United States

It contends that through the old way the residents of a school district elected their own members and the members set the budget and this sum of money was raised by taxation from the real and personal property within the district Now because of no taxation of this sort with the State Of Nebraska holding the purse strings a school board will be forced to dance to the tune played by officials at the state level

The Hastings Tribune points out there are two dangers connected with compulsory motor vehicle inspection which the Legislature indicates it intends to pass

One is state operated inspection which is an infringement upon the free enterprise The other is the state licensed system which places the motor vehicle owner at the mercy of an overzealous or dishonest [illegible]

The Tribune hopes that by delaying the effective date of such legislation until 1969 all of the things that arouse resentment on the part of the public will be worked out so the law is a benefit rather than a deterrent to highway safety '

U.N. Buying Promises

United Nations N Y — U N peace-keeping efforts in the Middle East shot to the top of the news this past week at a moment when prospects for future U N peace armies were at their lowest ebb in years

Frye

Since early in the 1960s when the Soviet Union and France jolted the organization by refusing to help finance its peace actions, the U N has been trying to get the concept back on the rails This past week those reconstruction efforts came to a virtual dead end

William R. Frye on Issues — EDITORIAL FEATURE

For the time being therefore the whole Hammarskjold concept of a world organization with teeth —with capacity to influence the course of events by something more than moral suasion—has run out of steam

* * *

One major aspect of the drive has been an effort to extract from the Soviet Union and France at least part of the money they owe for peace armies in the Middle East and the Congo

* * *

From time to time Moscow and Paris have shown signs of feeling the pressure but it is not yet sufficient to extract any hard cash even in the form of voluntary contributions What actually is happening is that the Russians and French are trying to sell the same concession three times

* * *

Commodity to Sell

The commodity they have to sell is their willingness to pay a part of what they owe Since the U N majority is unwilling to demand it of them fearing they would walk out of the organization the money must be obtained as the result of a diplomatic bargain

* * *

The first "payment" made to Moscow and Paris in an effort to get the money was agreement in 1965 not to deprive them of their voting rights The Soviet Union and France said they would kick in with a "substantial" financial contribution if Article 19 of the U N Charter, which provides for loss of the right to vote were not enforced The U N was naive enough to believe them and did let them vote

* * *

The Soviets and French thus received the price they asked but they did not deliver the goods

Moscow and Paris then said they would make a voluntary contribution if a special expert group were set up to "resurvey" the U N debt and see just how much really was owed

* * *

This was a deceptively simple device which on analysis, proved to be loaded The expert group separated "short-run" cash deficits from "long-run" obligations, and classified as much as possible in the latter category The U N's 1961 bond issue the principal long-range obligation was applied in part, to offset short run cash deficits

Second Selling

The Soviet bloc and France had been responsible for the cash deficits But the whole U N membership is obliged to repay the bonds Thus the whole U N membership was maneuvered into shouldering a part of the Soviet French arrears

Moscow and Paris had sold their promise of money a second time Again they got their price, and again they did not deliver the goods

* * *

Now they are demanding that the United States join them in pledging a cash contribution Only if Washington, too, commits itself to kick in will they cough up any money they say A man from Mars might think such a demand would touch off an explosion of indignation But the United States only has cried "foul!"

* * *

A considerable bloc of the U N appears to think it would be a good idea if Washington helped Moscow and Paris save face by stepping up to the contribution box with them

Even this extraordinary demand the U S says can be met in part Washington has offered to write off some $5 million that the U N owes America for airlifting supplies to the Congo peace army

Opinion Analysis Of Author

The U N thus is agreeing to buy the Soviet-French gold a third time

But even this is not good enough Moscow and Paris want not just a bookkeeping transaction (a write-off of debts) but a commitment to transfer hard American cash Washington has balked and this past week the deal fell through

Diplomats and observers here think it entirely likely that if the U S were to agree in full to the latest Soviet French demand the two governments would then seek to sell their gold still a fourth time for shackles on future U N peace armies and again a fifth and a sixth time—as often indeed as they could get away with it

Washington and Ottawa were considering this past week forcing a showdown Plenty of people on the sidelines will cheer lustily if they do

Spain's Century-Old Tradition Of Tuna Means Fun, Not Fish

Madrid (UPI) — A group of minstrels in medieval robes sneaked into a typical Spanish restaurant bearing guitars and unquenchable thirsts It is the Tuna which in Spanish doesn't mean fish

It means music in a century old tradition performed by students of medicine or law

Their dress dates back to about the 16th century when the Tunas had their beginnings in the ancient Spanish universities All that's necessary for a boy's admission is to have a good powerful voice The ability to strum a guitar or play the traditional "pandero" (tambourine) certainly helps

The Tuna's dress looks like it was borrowed from a Baroque Spanish opera with all the frills of medieval fashion It's coal black from the stockings and knickers to the puffy sleeves and swashbuckling cape The only bit of color showing is the ruffled white collar and the numerous ribbons flowing from the cape and collected from the Tuna's many admirers—female of course Each ribbon carries some sentimental remembrance from Pili Maria or one of a dozen other feminine fans

The more ribbons the more prestige so it's always best to have a lot of girl friends on hand For these Don Juans nothing could be simpler

Big Night

Saturday is always a big night for the amateur university Tuna besides other fiestas or dances Some groups have gone semiprofessional and find the tourist restaurants to be a highly lucrative business these days

The boys meet about 9 p m and over a round of "aparativos" decide what girl or which professor's wife will be serenaded in the hopes of raising a had grade The women are visited early in the evening while everyone is still quiet and respectably sober

Anyone who has ever lived in a building which the Tuna managed to invade about 4 a m knows well that the boys are bound to be in a "blissful" state, to say the least

Custom decrees that their performance is followed by an invitation by the girl serenaded to "come in for a drink" or many usually wine Since the Tuna visits numerous homes on a Saturday night their happy condition by the evening's end (or more likely the morning's dawn) is a perfectly normal wind-up

This whole act always looks more romantic and dramatic from a balcony with which every Spanish apartment is equipped than it would from anywhere else The lower the balcony the better as far as the girl is concerned One reason young romantic girls try to convince their fathers to buy first floor apartments is that a serenade definitely loses something when watched from the fourth or fifth floor

No Less Fun

Many of these groups have found that serenading on the professional scene is a lot more profitable and no less fun This involves a bit more seriousness as the tourists may demand a certain old favorite that the boys had better be able to come up with if they want a nice tip

Records cut by Tunas are always standard best sellers here and in South America Some of the groups have caught on internationally and are organizing tours around the world in the same way that many university choirs do The Tuna may yet become a Spanish export

RFK Credibility Gap Appears

Chicago Sun Times Special

Washington — Robert Francis Kennedy who consistently inveighs against such things when they occur in the national Democratic administration is suffering in this spring of 1967 from his own credibility gap

Part of this stems from his refusal to abide by the old rule that if you don't say anything or do anything no one will criticize him for doing or saying something unpopular In the politics of this sort of criticism is soldier's pay

Robert Kennedy

Another part stems from the long held and widely held feeling that anything Bobby Kennedy does brings forth reactions—or combinations of reactions—ranging from mild skepticism to downright distrust

Stephen Smith Kennedy's brother-in-law and a blocking back in the Kennedy New York operations sits in his sky raper office and puts the case for the defense

Regarding Smith says "Can someone just for once believe he is doing something out of conviction?"

Smith admits that the Kennedy position in opposition to President Johnson on the Vietnam war but he might well have been talking about a number of other issues that have surfaced this winter and have caused Kennedy's popularity as a potential presidential candidate to fall off sharply in the polls

There was for example Kennedy's role as family spokesman in the affair of the book — William Manchester's account of the assassination of President Kennedy

Curious Affair

There was also the curious affair of the Kennedy role against the administration backed bill to use tax monies to support presidential campaigns Kennedy has backed Sen Albert Gore (D Tenn) in this fight and the battle is still going on but the junior senator from New York finds some strange allies on his side and those who in the normal course of events should be his allies are his adversaries

Kennedy finds himself in a camp with Republicans and conservative Southern Democrats

Opposing Kennedy are such Senate liberals as Democrats as stalwarts as Sen Inge Phillips of Maryland and William Proxmire of Wisconsin who believe the law is at least a foot in the door towards public financing of political campaigns

A number of democratic politicians construe Kennedy's motives as political

In addition there is the Kennedy attitude towards the 1968 presidential nomination Only the most unlettered political neophyte would believe that Kennedy—or anyone else for that matter—would have a chance of grabbing the nomination away from President Johnson next year or of uniting the party behind him if he did succeed in stampeding the convention

But if Kennedy says he is supporting the President for the nomination the reaction is "Yeah that's what he says now but he's really going to try it" In vain is the argument put forth that in the American political system it is practically impossible to deny an incumbent president the nomination if he wishes it and even if it were possible a successful rebellion would so split the party that the nomination would be worthless

But the main furor which Bob Kennedy has kicked up recently is over Vietnam and some very hard headed observers think his popularity will decline even further as a result of his open opposition to the President

Kennedy himself is apparently undisturbed by the storm raging about him He sits toying with a dog leash in his office on the third floor of the new Senate Office Building and talks about the reaction

That's what you get [illegible] he says "I'm not to look for commendation

When a visitor asked him if his future was going to be centered primarily around being a New York senator Kennedy stopped fingering the leash and tilted his swivel armchair forward a bit

"A United States senator" he said gently "A United States senator"

The correction was significant

He himself stresses his role in speaking out on foreign policy when and if he thinks he can make a contribution In addition his interests do not stop with Vietnam his trip in January to Europe and consultations there with high officials touched on a variety of other subjects

He is also one of the few senators to take more than a passing interest in South Africa that racial caldron which could boil over at any moment

But the overriding issue is Vietnam Privately he has told friends that he believes the solutions in Vietnam require a subtle flexible approach which is lacking in the administration's diplomatic maneuverings

In this those who know him well say he holds fast to the opinion that John Kennedy would not have driven for peace in the way Lyndon Johnson is doing it and while Robert Kennedy is hardly conducting negotiations of his own he is his friends say trying to open up and expose three paths to peace which he believes the late President would have followed

His critics and here again the credibility gap comes in are inclined to see in his every speech action and a move for the 1972 an attempt to solidify support behind him

A Realist

Intimates say he is a realist a fatalist He knows what may happen between now and 1972 and that any grand design is probably next to useless

Theodore C Sorensen former White House aide and now in addition to being a New York lawyer a close Kennedy adviser and confidante says Kennedy is concentrating on one year at a time that he is trying to make a maximum contribution as a senator

There is no timetable or moves calculated to bring Kennedy to the 1972 national convention with an army of committed delegates Sorensen says no to count favors with certain areas of the electorate which will hand him victory on election day 1972

If he had a carefully calculated timetable Sorenson says he might keep quiet "er on Vietnam."

Castro: Money Will Someday Be Abolished

Miami Fla (AP) — Fidel Castro says money will be abolished in Cuba some day Everything will be free

Money is the vile intermediary between man and the product he creates the Cuban prime minister said in a Havana speech Thursday night monitored in Miami

The day will come when the man who produces a potato will deliver it and receive nothing and will get all he needs — without money Castro said That is communism

Pope Celebrates Outdoor Mass

Vatican City (AP) Pope Paul VI will celebrate an outdoor Mass at a Rome parish church next Wednesday evening to mark the Roman Catholic Feast day of Corpus Christi the Vatican announced It said the pontiff would go to the Church of John Bosco in Rome's Tuscolana quarter to say Mass in the church square The Corpus Christi Body of Christ feast day honors Christ in the Eucharist

War Snoops Carry On 007 Tradition

By William McGaffin
Chicago Daily News Special

Washington — The warship collision in the Sea of Japan early in May illuminated the cold war battle for military secrets waged with equal persistence by Russia and the United States

The United States regularly photographs the Soviet Union with a satellite 'spy-in-the sky' A Soviet satellite does the same over the United States

But these amazing satellites which televise back pictures of military bases, missile sites and other items of interest are only part of the elaborate espionage network each side has going against the other

The Russians are so intent on keeping tab of U S Fleet and Air Force operations that they regularly resort to open snooping by trawlers, destroyers and other small surface ships

This Russian practice has become so routine it does not even get into the news except when an unusual incident occurs such as those in the Sea of Japan

The favorite snooper ship of the James Bondskis send to sea is a fishing trawler loaded with electronic gear One of these maintains a constant station off Guam another keeps a patrol in the Gulf of Tonkin off the coast of North Vietnam

The one off Guam monitors our B 52 bombers as they take off to attack Viet Cong bases in South Vietnam and radios a warning to the Viet Cong that the bombers are on the way It also maintains a watch for Polaris submarines going and coming from Guam

The one in the Gulf of Tonkin monitors our carrier based planes as they take off for raids on North Vietnam and radios a warning to Hanoi It also harasses the Seventh Fleet by maneuvering in its midst Many a hot argument is carried out by signal flags as to who has the right of way

Sometimes the Soviet ship will run up a flag I am dead in the water Steer clear"

In the best 007 tradition, the Soviet crew even picks up the garbage dumped over board from Seventh Fleet warships and sifts it hopefully for possible telltale bits of information

The U S has subtler forms of keeping track on what the communist world is up to Whereas the Russians have to send a Soviet trawler off Cape Kennedy to monitor U S missile and manned space shots the U S accomplishes the same thing with a secret electronic base in Turkey located close to the Soviet frontier

High flying U 2 espionage planes no longer are sent over the Soviet Union—but they maintain frequent surveillance over Cuba and communist China It is because of these photographic flights that the Central Intelligence Agency assures Congress that there are no new Russian missiles going into Cuba

They have also provided assurance that Communist China has not yet massed troops in the South in a way to indicate it is getting ready to come into the Vietnam war

It is the U 2 as well that samples the air and helps inform the U S whenever the Chinese Communists explode a nuclear bomb

The Russians carry out some audacious actions with their snooper trawlers One of them came in to within three miles of the coast when the U S was searching for the hydrogen bomb that was lost in the sea off Spain after a midair collision

Generally the vessels operate in international waters and there's nothing the United States can do about them They haunt the waters off Rota Spain and Holy Loch Scotland our two forward Polaris submarine bases in the Atlantic

They even take up station frequently off the main Polaris base at Charleston S C of the New England coast where they can check surface ships and planes operating on the great circle route and off the Vandenberg missile base in California

Every major U S naval exercise in the Mediterranean the Atlantic and the Pacific is heavily surveilled by the Soviet ships

But America plays the snooping game just as hard as Russia

Instead of sending out snooper ships, it patrols the borders of the Soviet Union with snooper planes loaded with every imaginable kind of eavesdropping device

Cuba Faces World Cut In Trade

Aggression In Venezuela

By Francis L McCarthy, UPI

Opinion Analysis Of Author

Communist Cuba today faces new and tougher economic sanctions — perhaps even on a worldwide scale—as the result of fresh Venezuelan charges of aggression and subversion

Venezuela, backed by the United States, has asked for a special meeting of the foreign ministers of the Organization of American States (OAS) to hear its charges against Cuba The last time Venezuela took this action—three years ago—the OAS isolated Cuba diplomatically and imposed economic sanctions

Only Mexico since that time has continued to recognize Cuba and trade with it However Mexico has gone along with the OAS punitive action to the extent of tightening vigilance on Cuba

From Fidel Castro's point of view the present Venezuelan complaint is more serious because of indications the charge of Cuban aggression also will be laid before the United Nations

United Nations consideration of the Venzuelan charge could lead to imposition of economic sanctions on a world wide scale which would effectively isolate Cuba from such present day free world suppliers as England France

Caught in Act

As was the case three years ago Venezuela again seems to have the Cubans dead to rights On the earlier occasion the Venezuelans seized three tons of arms on a remote beach which OAS investigators traced back to Cuba

This time the Venezuelans caught Castro red handed in the act of landing Cuban army regulars in Venezuela where they were sent to beef up the guerrilla movement

Two Cuban prisoners seized one of them an officer said they were shipped out from Santiago Cuba together with eight Cuban trained Venezuelan guerrillas A third Cuban also an officer was killed during the capture

Overall OAS mood appears to be overwhelmingly in favor of tightening the economic screws on Cuba and formally asking the United Nations to indict Cuba for its export of aggression

According to UPI diplomatic reporter Adolfo G Merino in Washington more than 15 OAS member states already have approved Venezuela's decision to bring new charges against Castro

The United States in the persons of Lincoln Gordon assistant secretary of state for inter American affairs and Sol M Linowitz U S ambassador to the OAS has endorsed the idea

Under the OAS charter Venezuela can ask for more drastic economic sanctions against Cuba Under the hemispheric reciprocal defense treaty it could go so far as to ask for armed intervention

However Venezuela appears content to go for trade rather than military retaliation

The point the Venezuelans are trying to make to the hemisphere is that Castro hemisphere is that Castro fro subversion aggression threatens all OAS states not just Venezuela.

Laos, Too, Wages War Against Troops From North Vietnam

By Bob Poos

Pakse Laos (AP) — A pilot flies 350 missions against a Communist enemy An infantry patrol clashes with a North Vietnemese unit and kills six of them

This sounds like Vietnam but it's Laos Here there's also a war on a smaller scale

The forces are of about the same size both numbering around 70 000, according to an American military attache

Western sources estimate that about 15 000 of the Communists are North Vietnamese regulars actively engaged in fighting royal Laotian army troops Possibly 5 000 more North Vietnamese guard the series of roads and paths in south central Laos that has come to be known as the Ho Chi Minh trail used for infiltration into South Vietnam

Laos future is inextricably bound with that of Vietnam an American source said The fighting there has undoubtedly drained off men who otherwise would be here

Major Invasion?

Westerners differ in opinions whether North Vietnam would launch a major invasion if the Allies either accomplished a clear cut victory in South Vietnam or signed a peace treaty suddenly

I don't think so' said one American observer They have no claim on Laos that could by any stretch of the imagination be termed legitimate even by them

Fourteen nations — including the U S and Red China — have signed an agreement respecting Laotian neutrality and a major invasion might bring the wrath of the world down on them

Some other Americans particularly those working in the field on various aid projects don't think Hanoi would worry much about world opinion if the pressure in South Vietnam were suddenly relieved

They'd hit this place like a thunderbolt one said

Meanwhile the Laotian military situation seems to be improving slowly Government forces have about two thirds of the country under control and Westerners think the Laotian army never particularly famous for being an aggressive force is improving

There are no reliable Laotian units but here and there some crack officer and their men do well in the field an American source said You have to consider that the Laotians just are not an aggressive people In the past their land has always been one of plenty and they have not had to be aggressive to survive

One bright spot for the government has been the behavior of 10 000 neutralist troops formerly under the controversial mystic Gen Kong Le now in exile

The neutralist colonels were able to keep their troops in hand and most proved willing to serve under combined neutralist royal command

War Operation

Last month a combined neutralist royal force began an operation about 35 miles east of Pakse that is aimed at recovering an area long dominated by the Communists

This correspondent visited a group mobile regiment — led by Thao Ly one of the most aggressive colonels in the country He has attended two U S Army military instruction courses and speaks excellent English

He was camped on a site that he said once had been the Communist district headquarters

Scattered strategically around were countless trenches bunkers dugouts and foxholes They looked much like those employed by the Communists in South Vietnam taking them by frontal assault would have been a bloody business

Ly's troops caught the enemy away from home however and set up camp in anticipation of capturing any Pathet Lao who might return

They did get one He pinpointed two arms caches and a Pathet Lao hospital, along with routes the Communists used to move through the jungle The royalist soldiers set an ambush killed six of the enemy found an arms cache with a light machine gun and several rifles

The whole operation was fairly typical of what happens daily in Laos

Ly figures that at least two battalions of Communists one of them North Vietnamese roam about the area

He lost three men killed in three days but none to enemy gunfire

Mines he said The Communists have scattered mines all over the trails I try to get the troops to stay off the trails but sometimes they take a chance

The troops seemed to know what they were about They were in good physical condition and carried well kept weapons

Open Supply Trails

The Communists seem content with keeping their supply trails to South Vietnam open and trying to tighten their hold on territory they occupy

The Laotian air force consists of 20 or so American T28 single engine propeller planes former trainers that have been equipped with bomb and rocket racks and machine guns

One of ten T 28's reports of military American Special Forces men secretly training the royal Laotian army forces This writer found no evidence of that in visits to Laotian military installations ranging from military region headquarters to regiments and battalions in south central and north Laos

American authorities seem satisfied to let the Laotians fight their own war in their own way The dollar amount of American military aid to Laos is kept secret but the Laotian forces are almost totally dependent on it

Lynda Bird Will Aid Dedication

Washington (UPI)—Lynda Bird Johnson will participate in the dedication of modernistic playground equipment Tuesday at Friendship House a settlement house on Capitol Hill

The President's daughter has been in Hollywood this past week dating actor George Hamilton and doing a film spot in behalf of the Easter Seal campaign next year She recently returned from Latin America where she interviewed Peace Corps workers for an article for McCall's Magazine

The playground equipment she will dedicate was a gift to Mrs Lyndon B Johnson by Mrs Gustavo Diaz Ordaz the First Lady of Mexico, earlier this year.

San Franciscans, Angelenos Join Centennial

Lancaster Centennial Queen Cherie McCullough, Stanley Sands, San Francisco flag.

Ex-Nebraskan Sam Yorty, now mayor of Los Angeles, Calif., put it succinctly:

"Thank you for informing me that Lancaster County has now reached the Pacific Ocean," he wrote in a letter to former Lincoln mayor Dean H. Petersen.

Yorty's comment was prompted by the adoption of both Los Angeles and the state of California as part of Lancaster County's participation in the Nebraska Centennial. San Francisco was included in the long-distance adoption.

Part of Nebraska's Centennial observance—titled Friendship '67—includes the adoption of sister states by various Nebraska counties.

The most visible symbol of success for Lancaster County will come June 14 when the Nebraska Capitol is rededicated.

On that day, California's state flag as well as the flags of Los Angeles and San Francisco will fly with Nebraska's state flag on the Capitol.

California will reciprocate by flying Nebraska flags in Sacramento, Los Angeles and San Francisco June 14, according to Stanley Sands, chairman of the state adoption committee of the Lancaster County Centennial Committee.

In his acceptance proclamation, Mayor Yorty noted that "the City of Los Angeles, the largest city in California and home of many ex-Cornhuskers, is proud to join Lancaster County in this grand Celebration." Yorty himself, is one of the ex-Nebraskans in the West Coast metropolis.

John F. Shelley, mayor of San Francisco, said in his letter, "The City and County of San Francisco is pleased to participate in the 'Friendship '67' program . . ."

In addition to exchanging state and city flags, Sands said plans are going forward to have sister civic clubs exchange flags and mementos.

Sands said there are several proposals still to be decided in connection with the adoption of California. One of them would have the Junior Chamber of Commerce stop only Californians during its upcoming Rest Day.

During Jaycee Rest Day, out-of-staters are "arrested" and held overnight in Lincoln, given a free night's lodging, free meals and a visit with the governor.

Another proposal is distributing Centennial $3 bills in California and making them redeemable in Nebraska.

Sands emphasized that at this point these are just ideas and are still in the talking stages.

Alumni Join Seniors in NWU Plans

Nebraska Wesleyan University's 78th commencement weekend opens Friday with the Phi Kappa Phi banquet. Saturday activities revolve around alumni. Next Sunday is the big day for the 260 seniors.

Three persons will deliver major addresses during the weekend. Prof. Roger Welsch, an NWU foreign language instructor and expert in folklore, addresses the Phi Kappa Phi banquet at 6 p.m. Friday.

Wesleyan President Vance D. Rogers will give the baccalaureate address at an 11 a.m. service next Sunday in the Auditorium-Fine Arts Center.

Emmett Dedmon, editor of the Chicago Sun-Times, gives the commencement address at 5 p.m. next Sunday in O. N. Magee Stadium.

Saturday's events include alumni and trustee meetings, special luncheons for members of the 1907, 1917, 1927, 1942 and 1957 honor classes, the president's garden party from 3-5 p.m. and the alumni banquet at 6 p.m. in the Campus Center.

Entertainment at the alumni banquet will be by the Tunespinners, a 10-member musical group from Lexington that was formed by several NWU graduates. Dr. Rogers will also report on college activities. New officers will be announced.

Heart Nursing Session June 2

Omaha — A cardiovascular (heart and blood vessels) nursing conference, to brief professional nurses on better care of patients, will be held in Omaha June 2. It is sponsored by the Nebraska Heart Assn. and the Nebraska Nurses Assn. Some 300 nurses are expected to attend.

It will be held in conjunction with the June 1-2 annual meeting of the Nebraska Heart Assn. at the Prom Town House.

Conference speakers will include Dr. Jerry A. Reed of Lincoln.

Muscle Is Needed To Produce Art

Sunday Journal & Star Special

Hastings—When Hastings College art students speak of burning the midnight oil, you can almost take them literally.

They're often pouring bronze at well past midnight — and with spectators. The attraction is a new sculpture foundry, by far the largest studio facility in the state.

The only competition, in fact, are small ones at the University of Nebraska and Kearney State College. Probably there are fewer than 30 in the whole country.

"Actually, I don't know of a comparable facility anywhere for this size school," said the exuberant young head of the art department, Prof. Gary Coulter, 31.

Muscle as well as artistry goes into each pouring, more than 200 pounds of molten metal being required for a four or five-foot figure. Caution is another requisite when working with crucibles at 2,000 degrees.

Know-how? There are only eight basic steps, but a single casting can represent 300 to 500 hours of work.

Clay modeling is the start and chemically-induced patina the end — the latter capable of "nearly any color imaginable," Coulter says.

Between is the molding of plaster of Paris around the clay, wax being pressed into this impression. Then comes the kiln and a long exposure to heat (often 24 to 120 hours) from which the overall "lost wax" process takes its name.

"Eventually the wax melts away as the sand and molding plaster around it—we call it investment—hardens into a mold for the bronze," explained sculptor Coulter. Specializing in foundry art at the University of Kansas, Coulter took his advanced degree soon after the school pioneered in the process educationally in 1955.

Hastings acquired the melt furnace, vital pouring pits and all related equipment last fall for less than $8,000. An enrolment of some 25 sculpture students—only the advanced work in bronze — is expected to grow with a planned departmental expansion.

A complete renovation is to start this summer on the campus' old Carnegie Library, which will be devoted entirely to art. A 2,500-square-foot gallery is a highlight contemplated by Coulter and staff members Richard Brink and Derrill Maxwell.

The department also boasts of a 20-cubic-foot ceramic kiln and hand-geared etching press, both new and both "unusual for a college of this size," according to Coulter.

George on Tour

Hollywood (UPI) — George Hamilton will play the straw hat circuit this summer singing and dancing in a musical production of "Philadelphia Story" in Columbus, Dayton and Warren, Ohio.

Packages Getting Even Better

Chicago (AP) — The housewife can look forward to better packages that will be eye-appealing with colorful exteriors, pictorial photographs and more accurate descriptions of contents.

Designer Karl Fink, president of the Package Designers Council, said the recent use of photography on packages is to create a "mood" approach to the eye appeal of a "silent salesman" designed into a package.

"Greater stress," said packaging consultant Richard E. Paige, "will be laid upon making sure the prospective purchaser understands precisely what the box contains."

Chances are, if you have a gas furnace, you already have the ductwork necessary for whole-house gas air conditioning. It costs a lot less than you might think. So don't melt the summer away. Cool it with a gas air conditioning system.

'Nebraska: Where the Cornbelt Meets the Range'

Centennial Film Tells Story of Agriculture

The much lauded Centennial agricultural film Nebraska Where the Cornbelt Meets the Range ' was conceived about one year ago

Rockwell director

A year of hard work and perhaps some luck went into its preparation The Nebraska Educational Television Network was commissioned by the Centennial Commission to do five documentaries on the state in relation to its 100 years and the industry in the state

One of the ideas was from the agricultural committee headed by Sen Stan Matzke of Milford This was to produce a 30 minute color film on Nebraska s agricultural heritage and its future

The entire operation was directed by Lee Rockwell of KUON-TV He said the main problem was identifying what you wanted to highlight out of 100 years

We decided it had to be a documentary of agricultural history ' he said We wanted to show the vitality of Nebraska agriculture We needed to show its role in feeding the world s growing population and its overall contributions '

Fonda narrator — Kreuscher script writer — Graham script writer — Anderson cameraman

Script writers for the film were Glenn Kreuscher and Ralston Graham Kreuscher is farm editor of The Lincoln Journal and The Lincoln Star Graham is chairman of the Dept of Information University of Nebraska College of Agriculture and Home Economics

Writers Praised

Rockwell said of the two writers These guys have a vast knowledge of Nebraska agriculture and they did a great job

Kreuscher admitted it was a lot more difficult than he or Graham thought

I asked Ralston how long he thought it would take us to write it and he estimated a few weekends Kreuscher said As it turned out we spent many months and many weekends "

The hardest thing, Kreuscher remarked, was to pick out the important things from the 100 years since there were so many

Filming was done by Jack Anderson of Omaha This job alone took five months and another two months for editing All physical preparations were done by Anderson, who operates his own production company Looking over his shoulder at all times was Rockwell

We actually traveled to the shooting locations twice, ' Rockwell noted "Once to get the location in our minds and second to actually film the site All told we traveled about 4 000 miles in Nebraska '

Some Luck

Some luck came in after general agreement proposed Henry Fonda to be narrator of the film

"With our low budget we could not really afford him " Rockwell explained I talked with his sister in Omaha who put me in touch with him where he was shooting a picture He doubted if he had the time but would check on it "

Fonda had earlier agreed to narrate the Festival of Faith in Lincoln and it was discovered that he had a few hours available in Omaha the Monday morning before he was to leave

The narration take took four hours ' according to Rockwell

"I couldn't be more impressed with Fonda as a man and as a professional Only a professional could have finished the job, which normally would have taken a day, in four hours He also has a real feeling for Nebraska "

The low budget mentioned was $10,500

Fonda Rockwell Kreuscher Graham Anderson all the people involved in the production were paid honorary fees which may have barely covered expenses The actual time cost could never have been covered by the budget

The color motion picture has been well received by those previewing it and citizens will have the opportunity to obtain the film through the audio visual library at the University of Nebraska

The African work is under the sponsorship of West Virgima University at Morgantown, where Dr Kelley will report the first of June for two weeks prior to his foreign assignment

Dr Kelly's work in Africa will be to further the development of a teaching curriculum in animal science and to develop a research program in animal science which can be used to solve problems in animal production

Prior to his work at the University of Nebraska Dr Kelly was head of the department of dairy husbandry at South Dakota State College

Tax Refund Requests Can Be Made Monday

Refunds for taxes collected under property valuations the Supreme Court ruled unjustified may or may not be available but Lancaster County residents will probably be able to make formal refund requests Monday

County Atty Paul Douglas said county officials hope to have special refund forms printed in time to be available at the County Treasurer's office Monday morning when the Courthouse opens.

If refunds are made on taxes that may total up to $4 million in the county, all governmental subdivisions that benefited as a result of valuation increases will be liable for refunds

The only exceptions in the county are the city of Lincoln and Lincoln Airport Authority, which use independent property valuations

Douglas said the refund request forms will be printed in such a way that the same form may be submitted to all subdivisions, though each must be filled out separately

Refund request form must be submitted to treasurers of each subdivision For Lincoln residents that means the state treasurer county treasurer Lincoln School District and Salt Valley Watershed District

Residents outside the Lincoln city limits will have to submit separate forms to each subdivision benefiting from their taxes

Douglas said the only state law apparently applicable to the question of refunds limits eligibility to those who request a refund within 30 days after the tax is paid

Everyone who paid real estate taxes to the county treasurer even if it was forwarded by a savings and loan company from an escrow account, may personally request a refund he said

Denney Requests Anti-Riot Rulings Effective Soon

Congressman Robert V. Denney, R-Neb., has called for immediate anti-riot legislation to be implemented before the onslaught of the troublesome hot summer.

"Rioting, uncontrolled and unchecked, leads to disrespect for the law and order. When law, order and swift and decisive justice break down, the very foundation of democracy crumbles," the former FBI agent said.

Denney said, "I am lending my support to Mr. Cramer, as a former Nebraskan, to push for hearings before the House Judiciary Committee.

"I also strongly support the pending legislation to make it a federal crime demanding punishment of those who would willfully desecrate our American flag.

"It certainly seems fitting to me at this time, just prior to Memorial Day, for the U.S. congress to enact legislation punishing the desecrators of the American flag," he concluded.

Farmers Selling Produce Must Collect Tax

Farmers who regularly sell farm produce at retail to consumers will have to obtain a retail license and collect the 2.5% Nebraska sales tax from purchasers after June 1.

Dr. Everett Peterson, University of Nebraska agricultural economist, noted that farmers covered by this requirement include: those with retail egg, milk or cream routes; those who regularly make such sales to people who stop at the farm, and those who sell produce from roadside stands.

Farmers will also be required to keep records and file monthly reports with the State Tax Commissioner.

In connection with implementation of the sales tax, Dr. Peterson said farmers planning to buy major farm machines or construct buildings may be able to save the 2.5% sales tax by making or contracting such purchases before June 1.

Certain conditions must be met for a purchase to be excluded from tax liability. one alternative is to make the purchase and take delivery of the item before June 1. Another possibility is to enter into a written contract for a purchase before June 1.

However Peterson noted that certain conditions must be met:

—The contract must be for a fixed price.

—At least 25% of the total price must be paid down before June 1.

—Delivery to the purchaser must be made before Aug. 31.

Dr. Peterson said those who would have to borrow money to make purchases before June 1 should compare the interest cost with the sales tax saving to see whether there would be any net saving.

4 Fillmore County Boys Beat the Denver Odds

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Geneva—The catch to this story is well actually there are four of them

They are all steers all whitefaces all western imports but looking more and more like natives The foursome is Fillmore County's barely believable "catch" from this winter's National Western Stock Show in Denver

Comparing calves regularly—and still marveling at their "pure luck"—are teenagers Bill Gergen, Roger Kimbrough, and brothers Steve and Mark Wythers All came through in the huge Denver event's "catch-it calf contest"

"There wasn't one chance in a thousand that any single county would bring back four calves, but these boys did it" exclaimed Fillmore County Agent Richard Mohrmann "A county is fortunate to have even one winner"

The youths first had to survive a long-odds drawing of applicants then faced the situation of two competitors for each calf turned loose They entered the arena with "a halter a rope we couldn't use as a lariat, and a lot of desire"

"After these three all caught their calves in the afternoon, I just had to win one that night," recalled Mark, a Geneva freshman this year along with Roger Bill and Steve were both seniors

Monthly reports to the contest's sponsors indicate that all animals are doing well—and that Steve's currently is tops at about 740 pounds Coccidiosis gave Bill a scare, but his calf overcame the disease and is starting to gain

Since their fathers are all cattle feeders the youths visited the show with their families The Wythers brothers are members of the Handy Hands 4-H Club at Fairmont Bill and Roger of Geneva's Lucky 10 Baby Beef Club

According to contest rules, the young owners will not be eligible to compete again Also they are to turn back 10% of their calves' sale price to perpetuate the program

And there's one other "catch" which is prompting no complaints whatsoever The Fillmore countians are expected to return to Denver for next year's show

Board of Equalization Hears Tax Complaints

By HAROLD SIMMONS

Each year the County Board of Equalization is approached by a number of elderly home owners seeking lower taxes so they won't have too many problems living within their incomes

Court House Call

Several people in this category had hearings before the board last week.

One man for example, said high real estate taxes were about to drive him out of his home Average monthly property taxes take nearly one-fourth of his monthly retirement income, he said

A woman bemoaned the fact she and her husband had spent so much time and money over the years making improvements on their home

Now that he's unable to work, she said, they're cashing savings bonds to pay the taxes

The county commissioners are left somewhat in the position of the all-round kicking post They don't want to be a party to forcing someone out of his home but most of the house are valued equitably

Roca Boo-boo

Mapmakers, or at least the proofreaders, made a boo-boo in the latest Nebraska road map and travel guide

Residents of the small town of Roca south of Lincoln may be surprised to find their town has been renamed.

It's listed on the map as "Reed" But in the listing of towns and populations below the map it's still Roca

Third Pull-out

For the third year in a row the county assessor's office is going to be spending many weeks revising its real estate card file to reflect changes in property valuations

The Supreme Court's decision Friday means that each of nearly 80,000 real estate cards will have to be pulled one by one from the files, property valuations re-computed, and new valuations written on each card.

This was all done twice before, the first time when valuations were increased in 1965 and again last year when further alterations were made.

$3.2 Billion 20-Year Bill for 'Adequate' Roadways

Whoosh Backlog, Savor Expressways on Bonds, Tax Hike

What is the correct etiquette when you pay $450,000 for advice on a problem, and the advice given is the expenditure of $3.2 billion in the next 20 years?

Do you say "Thank You" when the proposal is one that Nebraskans pay $3.2 billion for bringing Nebraska's roadways . . . the state highways, country roads and city streets . . . up to adequate standards for each?

While your stomach does butterflies, you can ask again, to make sure the decimal wasn't put in the wrong place, knowing that $3.2 billion is the biggest bill ever placed before Nebraskans. And knowing that it is about equal to the assessed value of all the property of Nebraska as well as the property taxes collected in Nebraska during its first century.

Is this the price tag for a super-highway on every farm, a highway equivalent of peacock served under glass on gold plates?

"No" is the answer in print from Maryland's Roy Jorgensen, who did the inventory of Nebraska's roadway conditions and needs, and from South Carolina's Wilbur Smith, the two consulting firms paid most of $450,000 by the U.S. Bureau of Roads and State of Nebraska for an 18-month study of the problem and recommended financial solution.

"No," the $3.2 billion is simply for a run-of-the-mill, bill-of-fare of "adequate" highway staples comparable to the programming of many states.

The consultants mention no new Interstates.

But you catch the phrase state-built "expressways" like those underway in Kansas and Iowa in connection with a north-south service between Falls City and Omaha; Fairbury - Beatrice - Lincoln-Fremont-South Sioux City; Hebron-Hastings and Grand Island; and Omaha-Fremont-Columbus-Grand Island on an east-west basis. And an expressway loop all around the perimeter of Lincoln.

Consultant Jorgensen elaborates the rebuilding of the 45% of the key 2-lane state highways which today are inadequate, and describes the idea of committing 25% of every county's road system into principal county roads to carry higher county traffic counts than other local roads.

Without emotion, Consultant Smith informs you that the prices quoted are 1965 prices needed to match the needs of each segment of Nebraska's 103,000-mile system of roadways with its use. Smith talks about automobile registrations and vehicle miles traveled escalating at an explosive rate 5 . . . 8 . . . 10 times Nebraska's population growth as the third and fourth cars enter the family garage.

Moving swiftly, Smith talks about* increasing every highway tax you ever heard of, about a sales tax on used and new cars dedicated to roads rather than other purposes, about a bond issue in a state which presently has a constitutional prohibition against any debt.

The consultants' studies talk about the continuing cost of the problem even if it isn't met and solved, and with bar graphs show you how you have already gotten a couple of billion dollars behind while for years committing about 45% of your total state and local taxes to road purposes.

If you fumble momentarily before accepting the bill for the recommended statewide roadway improvements, it's because you remember that the Nebraska governmental pocketbook which you are clutching with your sweaty palm is a good $926 million short of the payment schedule needed to implement overcoming the backlog on the state highway system in the next 12 years. More leisure is proposed by Consultant Jorgensen in tackling the problem of municipal streets and county roads over a 20-year period.

Consultant Smith talks about a $204 million bond financing over a 30-40 year period.

And Smith is saying that if you drive a passenger car, the fair rent your state needs from you to provide an "adequate" statewide roadway system is $76, even though you are now only paying something like $52.81 in gas and registration taxes.

Smith, through the road study, keeps repeating that Nebraska's relativity road profile cannot be changed without asking you for this $23 differential by combinations of most of all of these tax changes:

	Present Tax	Proposed Tax	Increase
Gas Tax	7½c	8½c	+1c
Diesel Fuel Tax	7½c	9½c	+2c
Auto Registration .	$8.50	$15.00	+$6.50
Farm Trucks (average) . . .	$10.00	$20.00	+$10.00
Local Trucks	varying	varying	+25%
Drivers License	$3.00	$5.00	+$2.00

Smith says these proposed tax hikes would raise highway revenues $14 million annually in the state. With growth of the Nebraska economy contributing another $15 million from existing rates, roadway spending could be increased from $106 million to above $135 million. Smith sees a bond issue paid off by freed federal Interstate funds after 1973, or by rising road building construction costs outstripping interest in present inflation.

Furthermore, Smith and Jorgensen, after studying needs and revenues, propose a complete shift in the allocation of state highway taxes, twice favoring municipalities, road building. First is the doubled cash grant of state aid, then the paid construction by the state of its own highways in these cities over 5,000 for the first time. The proposed favorable shift of aid to cities comes at the expense of the counties, while the state highway department doesn't quite hold its own despite increases proposed in the tax rates:

	Now	Proposed	Percentile Increase
State Highways	53%	60%	+7*
Municipalities .	11%	22%	+11
Counties .	36%	18%	—18

*Effective increase benefiting cities is many percentile points greater because 25% of state highway costs would be on improvements on state highways within city borders for the first time.

Road Study Committee Action This Session?

By DICK HERMAN

Two-thirds of the bomb which is the $450,000 Legislative Council Road Study report exploded today.

Political shrapnel can be expected to be flying for days, weeks, months and years over Nebraska's political landscape.

Immediately ahead is a major decision of the nine-member study committee: Should it press for legislation yet this session on recommendations made by consultants?

Led by the widely-respected Jules W. Burbach of Crofton, the study committee has a trio of meetings scheduled this week. Monday involves a session with the State Highway Advisory Commission, a body some senators think antagonistic — erroneously it is rebutted — to the whole concept of a report

Meet Advisers

Tuesday puts the nine lawmakers together with the Governor's Highway Advisory Committee, a special organization created to provide study liaison.

Wednesday the committee tentatively is supposed to privately discuss the now-public portions of the massive road review

Burbach Saturday said he remains convinced the subject of a highway authority, empowered to issue revenue bonds for road work, is one which should go before lawmakers in the current session. "This definitely needs to be done now so the idea can undergo a court test as soon as possible," Burbach said.

Disagreeing with Burbach — not on philosophy but on the matter of timing — is Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann. The chief executive considers any move by the Centennial Legislature to convert study report recommendations into law "premature."

Tiemann is on record as willing to call a special session, probably next winter, with road study proposals being the lone agenda items.

Hearings Studied

*It is understood to be the gover*nor's belief the study recommendations are so important to the future health of Nebraska that their gravity must be widely understood. Reportedly some lawmakers are exploring the possibility of public hearings on road legislation in advance of a special session

Burbach emphasized the two consultant reports have "not been completely accepted, either by me or the study committee."

"The report recommends changes not be made abruptly," Burbach said, "and I am hopeful this entire matter will be handled in an orderly fashion, that the entire citizenry will give thorough study to the report and ofier criticisms, keeping in mind the entire state's welfare."

Quickly Burbach lined up questioning a recommendation cutting from 36% to 13% the amount of money the state supplies counties for road work. To the Crofton veteran and three-times Revenue Committee chairman, a distribution formula taking from counties and giving to cities "would create more inequities than now exist."

Tough Opposition

That particular recommendation flies directly into the clenched teeth of one of the most continually effective pressure groups in the Legislature—the county officials' informal lobby.

It also will cause generally dormant rural-urban divisions to flare anew.

The same might also be said for the proposal to knock some present roads off the state highway system, while adding new ones

Beyond these points, there are strong and opposing views about the wisdom of going into debt for accelerated highway work plus further increases in highway user taxes — gasoline, registrations and licenses.

Burbach dismissed as "unworkable" any move to recreate a state highway turnpike authority. Omaha Sen. Henry F. Pedersen Jr. is behind that proposal

Nebraska already has the Interstate Highway to handle much of the state's east-west traffic, according to Burbach. Moreover, there are not sufficient distances of possible turnpike stretches or motor vehicle traffic to make proposals economically feasible, he said

"What we need to do is build the roads and pay for them."

Impartial Study Bites Three Officials

The folks in Wausa are about to learn Nobby doesn't have all the powers they'd like.

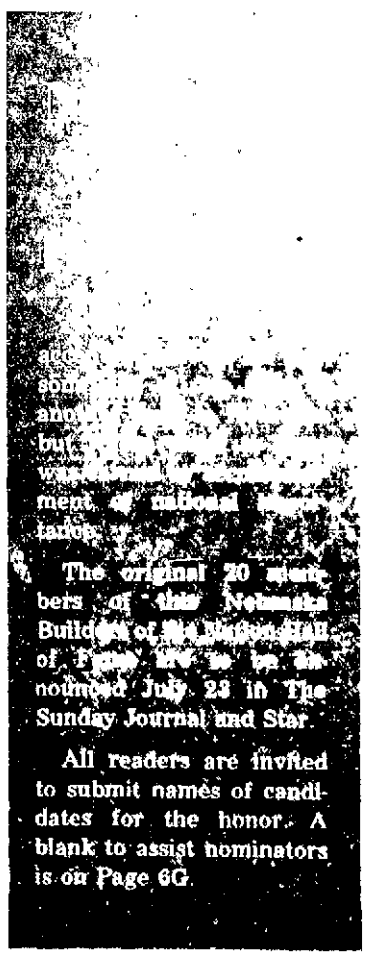
Just take a look at Wausa, the home town of Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann, and the way it sits in the Legislative Council road study report!

Twenty-one miles of highways south and west of Wausa would be completely wiped off the present state highway system — 18 miles of Hwy. 59 from Creighton east to the Wausa junction and three miles of Hwy. 98 south to the Pierce County line.

Knox County, incidentally, is the home county, too, of the study committee's chairman, J. W. Burbach of Crofton.

Another study committee member's legislative district would lose roads on the state highway system as well. In Scotts Bluff County, the recommendation is for striking from the state's responsibility present highways leading north from Henry, Morrill and Mitchell, as well as the road south from Morrill.

In case you may have forgotten, Sen. Terry Carpenter lives in Scotts Bluff County.



LB448 Slated for Legislative Floor Debate Thursday

Warner: State School Aid Based On Census Would Be Big Mistake

In establishing a state aid to education program, Nebraska would be deliberately making a mistake other states now are trying to rectify if lawmakers authorized cash to schools on a census basis formula.

So says Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner. He's chief sponsor of LB448, the much-revised state aid bill scheduled for legislative floor debate Thursday.

In LB448 allocations to public school districts are based exclusively on public school populations. The standard phraseology is average daily membership (ADM) or average daily attendance (ADA).

The census approach counts all young people in a school district, ages 5 to 20, whether they are in public school, private school or not in school at all.

Major Attack

A major attack against LB448 is being mounted by friends of the census approach, identified in the Legislature as headed by Sen. William Wylie of Elgin and George Gerdes of Alliance.

Gov. Norbert Tiemann has rapped the census formula—a flat grant for each census-counted child in a school district. Reportedly, he would veto a census-basis state aid bill.

Saturday Warner disclosed research showing 1966 data on state aid to education in 47 states—the amount to schools, the percentage returned on public school student population and the percentage given on the census basis.

State CAP Aids 'Wagon Wheel '67'

Simulated Five-Megaton Nuclear Strikes Hit Cities

Beatrice — Blue Hill and Bellevue were obviously out of the question, but just how soon could decontamination personnel enter Crete, York, Fairbury and dozens of other communities"

That question was one of the principal ones to be answered over the weekend by some two hundred Nebraska Civil Air Patrol members through "Wagon Wheel '67". Simulated five-megaton nuclear strikes at Hastings, Offutt Air Base and Sidney Friday night triggered the weekend operation.

Similar mock attacks in Kansas and Missouri activated the CAP personnel in those states also in the unusual three-state exercise. The Nebraska phase involved sub-mission sites at Beatrice and North Platte, flying missions for the underground emergency operations center in Lincoln.

"The wind was from the north at the 7 p.m. detonation, so obviously the areas south of the bombings gave the greatest radiation," explained Lt. Col. William Malmberg of Fremont, sub-mission coordinator for the Beatrice flights. "One of our main purposes is to determine when it will be safe for such personnel as Civil Defense and Red Cross to enter the various towns."

The amount of radiation, simulated in "Roentgens per hour," was being checked periodically against a projected "rate of decay." Lt. Col. Claude Raney of Lincoln, radiological defense officer, explained that distance from the drop zone is the dominant factor in the varying degree of danger.

"The readings showed, for example, that it was ten times as safe to enter Crete as York," said the former Air Force officer. "We not only determine whether a worker can enter an area, but also how long he can remain."

Besides the radiological flights, some aircraft were being utilized to shuttle key personnel between cities. A land rescue medical team under Lt. Col. Stan Jaros of Omaha, wing medical officer, was also participating.

Emphasize Civil Defense

Noting that the CAP is historically identified with downed aircraft rescue work, Col. Malmberg said "Wagon Wheel '67" illustrates a growing emphasis upon civil defense

In charge of the overall Nebraska operation were Col. Jack Stayneke of Omaha, Nebraska Wing Commander, and Lt. Col. George Sauder of Lincoln, Eastern Group Commander. Capt. John Fauber of Beatrice was in charge of local airport arrangements.

Two Farm Policy Meets

Two farm policy meetings, conducted by the U.S. Agriculture Dept., are scheduled for Nebraska. The secretary of agriculture has announced the additional "shirtsleeve" meetings to learn the current thinking of farm organizations and individual farmers.

The first Nebraska meeting is scheduled for Lincoln at the Nebraska Center Thursday evening. Ed Janike, of Washington, D.C., a long time USDA employee regarded as one of the most influential persons in determining ag policy, will make a report of the meeting to Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman.

Hans Jensen of Aurora, chairman of the Nebraska Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation state committee, says that Freeman has indicated a determination to do everything possible to relieve the cost-price squeeze on farmers.

The second meeting will be held June 2 at Ogallala.

A May 31 hearing on the USDA wheat program will be held at the Lincoln Hotel.

40th Anniversary of Lindbergh's Historic Flight

'Lone Eagle' Is Well Remembered in Lincoln

By JAN SACK

Although it's been 45 years since Charles Lindbergh flew the skies above Lincoln, the city hasn't forgotten the man who became a living legend at age 25.

He was catapulted into fame May 20-21, 1927 when he became the first man to fly solo nonstop from New York to Paris.

Lindbergh is recalled by Lincolnites as a quiet young man, dedicated to flying.

Mrs. E. J. Sias, whose husband ran the Lincoln Airplane and Flying School and was a Pioneer Nebraska aviator, said, "He was just another young man wanting to learn how to fly."

Mrs. Sias

A University of Wisconsin sophomore "dropout," young Lindy showed up in Lincoln, Apr. 1, 1922, on a motorcycle. He wanted to learn to fly and he wanted to do it as quickly as possible.

First Flight

His first flight came on Apr. 9, 1922, with Otto Timm. A few days later under I. O. Biffle, Lindbergh received his first instruction.

Lindbergh in his book "We," published in 1927, recalls that Biffle was the most "hard boiled" instructor the Army ever had during the war.

Charles Lindbergh

By the end of May, Biffle thought Lindbergh was good enough to solo, but Ray Page, president of the company, thought otherwise. Page required a bond (to cover possible breakage of the plane) which Lindbergh was unable to furnish. So he didn't solo.

Instead he decided to go barnstorming with E. G. Bahl, whom he had met in Lincoln.

Chimney Landing

Lincolnite F. Pace Woods Sr. remembers that Page traded Lindbergh a parachute. It was on a barnstorming tour of southeast Nebraska that the "Lone Eagle" learned to parachute.

Woods said it was over one of the old landing fields (in the Lincoln Country Club vicinity) that he made his first attempt — landing on the chimney of the Frank Woods home at Lake and Sheridan. The house is now owned by the John Morrows.

"He wasn't close enough to touch the ground so he hung suspended . . . until Mrs. Woods came out and gave him a scolding for landing on her chimney," Woods chuckled.

Most of his flying, however, was done at the old Ray Page Airport on So. 14th St. where Memorial Park now is located.

Also acquainted with Lindbergh is Max Kier, Lincoln attorney, who met the young flier at an Army Air Corps summer camp in Kansas City in 1924-25.

Quiet, Reserved

"He was quiet and reserved, but not unfriendly. He was not boastful and already had made four parachute jumps while flying the air mail between Chicago and St. Louis," Kier said. "Even at that time he was recognized as a fine pilot."

Lindbergh's biggest moment was the transatlantic flight. After that he made a tour of the U.S., Woods said. He flew over Lincoln and dropped a note that landed at 13th and O.

"He wouldn't land because he was mad at Page, the man who hadn't allowed him to solo," Woods said.

For the young people of today, Lindbergh is just a name. But for the Lincolnites who knew him, the colonel is much more than that. He represents a by-gone era when the city was a center for Midwest flying and had two airplane manufacturing factories.

"Lucky Lindy" and his wife, the former Anne Morrow, live in Darien, Conn., where he is nearly secluded. His phone is unlisted and he has granted few interviews since the kidnap-killing of his infant son in 1932. Lindbergh is currently a member of the board of directors of Pan American World Airways and a silent force in modern U.S. aviation.

This chimney on the former Frank Woods home caught Lindbergh's parachute on his first jump.

Census Used By 22 States

In 25 states census consideration is not involved at all in state aid plans. In 22 states where the census count of all young people is used, it is the dominant factor in only three states. Delaware supplies 70.2% of its state aid on a census basis, Massachusetts 47.4% and Nebraska returns school land rental or interest money 45.1% on census and 24.4% on public school enrolment.

Only Factor

In Kentucky and Rhode Island there is no factor other than public school population involved in state aid plans—nothing to do with valuation, transportation, special programs, in lieu of taxes to counties, etc.

And New York, whose $939.8 million per year heads the state aid list, provides this huge return 98.7% on public school enrolment data.

A computation shows 64.9% reliance, on the average, on strictly public school student data and 15.9% on census, among the states. But insofar as the cash is concerned, $4.1 billion is distributed on public school ADM or ADA, contrasted with $384 million on census.

Warner said his research also discloses states are moving away from flat per pupil grants to school districts. Rather, they are making enlarged use of payments to equalize educational opportunities plus incentive awards for districts providing special programs.

STATEHOUSE LETTER

Republican county chairmen who miss the party's May 27 workshop at Kearney do so at their own peril. Noses are going to be carefully counted to see who doesn't show up.

Maybe the word still hasn't filtered down that the boss, or titular party leader if you prefer, doesn't appreciate people sitting around on their reputations. Either they work or they may experience the first application of that still-used part of the Nebraska GOP constitution permitting the state executive committee to bypass county chairmen with appointed "acting" leaders.

Gov. Norbert Tiemann plans to help get the workshop started next Saturday morning. And count noses. Interestingly, one of the morning's main topics is entitled: "County Chairmen's Responsibilities." Nuff said.

Honored Group

A group of Waconda, S.D., high school students were singularly honored last week, even though they may not have appreciated the fact.

In the Capitol on a sight-seeing visit, the South Dakotans found no guide immediately handy "off the tour" to say a few words about the Supreme Court's chamber. Who should be pressed into service for this job but the state's chief justice, Paul White. He also escorted the tourists through the little-seen judicial consultation room, where decisions are made.

Chief Justice White provided insights on how judges are picked to write certain opinions and even some inner workings on development of opinions. Counseled White: "Since we have the last word, we are always right." He paused: "Well, not always."

Here and There

One McCook Junior College official was honest enough recently to expose this thinking to a newspaperman. The school satrap allowed (or so the periodical reported) that with the happy onset of state dollar aid to junior colleges, McCook could and should intensify its in-state athletic recruiting program.

Things were anything but exciting in the legislative chamber Thursday afternoon. A newsman commented: "On days like this, I wish we were back to a two-house Legislature." Why? What would you do? "Why, I'd go over there and sit," was the reporter's response.

Omaha Sen. Sam Klaver deliberately pushed his red "nay" button on an attendance vote last week. He was fearful something else might have been included in the roll call tally.

There were gaffaws later by some State Board of Equalization members, recalling a Burlington Railroad tax man's comment his company's stock value couldn't really be considered market value. Rather, he submitted, the large dollar sign reflects a high sentimental value.

State Board of Education members reportedly were impressed by curriculum materials being developed by State Education Dept. people. (All with federal funds, but without a word of direction from the banks of the Potomac.)

Maybe it was all right for Nebraska Democrats to refer in letters and news releases to Rep. Robert Denny (it's Denney) or Speaker of the Legislature Elwin (it's Elvin) Adamson. But fellows, Sen. William (it's Walter) Mondale of Minnesota, unlike Denney or Adamson, is a Democrat.

Rasmussen Wants Bill Revived

'Stop Selling School Lands'

State Sen. Ross Rasmussen said Saturday he will attempt to raise the issue of the sale of school lands on the floor of the Legislature Tuesday.

Rasmussen's bill, LB792, to stop the sale of school lands, was deadlocked in the Education Committee after the May 10 deadline for the advancement of bills.

The Legislature in 1965 overrode Gov. Frank Morrison's veto and put the school lands up for sale. At that time Rasmussen voted with the majority.

Rasmussen said the reversal in his stand resulted from passage of a constitutional amendment last fall which would allow the Board of Educational Lands and Funds to use income from school lands to develop the lands and make capital improvements.

"Previously the board has received the finances for administrative costs from the general fund, which has never made possible any significant improvements," Rasmussen said.

"Now that the Board of Educational Lands and Funds has the potential for carrying out improvement of this kind, the state could expect in the future to get as much in return from these acres, representing about 1/16 of the total holdings, as we expect to get from all of the lands this year, $4 million," he added.

Mental Board Commits Three

Three cases were reviewed by the Lancaster County Mental Health Board last week. None of those appearing before the board were represented by attorneys.

Cases reviewed include:

Woman, 77, chronic brain syndrome. Committed to Hastings State Hospital.

Man, 27, emotionally immature. Committed to Lincoln State Hospital.

Man, 46, chronic brain syndrome, psychotic reaction. Committed to Veterans Hospital.

Outstanding Journalism Students, Scholarship Winners Honored

Outstanding students and scholarship winners were honored at the annual University of Nebraska Journalism Awards Banquet in Lincoln Saturday evening which featured an address by Paul Miner, executive vice president of the Kansas City Star.

Prof. R. Neale Copple, director of the University's School of Journalism, was master of ceremonies at the banquet in the Nebraska Union Ballroom. Students were honored for academic achievement, membership in journalism honorary societies and as scholarship winners.

The following scholarships were presented:

—American Association of Agricultural College Editors Award—Trudy Lieberman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Lieberman of Scottsbluff.

—Ayres and Associates $250 scholarship — Wayne Moles, son of Mrs. Mildred I. Imig of Seward.

—Gerald J. Bremer $200 Memorial Scholarship—Stuart Frohm, son of Mrs. M. R. Frohm of Omaha (3506 N. 54th).

—Harry T. Dobbins $100 Memorial Scholarship — Margo McMaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McMaster of Lincoln (2421 Ryons).

—J. Stewart Elliott Memorial Fund Scholarship — Joanne Baxter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Stohlman of Lincoln (621 So. Cotner), and Margaret Ann Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Brown of Beatrice.

—Fremont Tribune $250 Scholarships — Susan Heybrock, daughter of Mr. Louie Heybrock of Fremont, and Maxine Burnett, daughter of Einer Burnett of Lyons.

Nebraska Law Enforcement Meet This Week

The 14th annual Nebraska Law Enforcement Institute will be held at the Nebraska Center, 33rd and Holdrege, Monday through Friday.

Sponsored by the Police Officers Assn. of Nebraska and the University of Nebraska Law College, the week-long institute features five workshops, training films and addresses by experts in certain phases of law enforcement.

Instructors include FBI agents, Nebraska veteran police officers, Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas and Clarence A. H. Meyer, Nebraska Atty. General.

Speakers include Warden Maurice H. Sigler, Col. Dan Casey of the Safety Patrol, Ben Goble of the Lincoln Jaycees' Project People and Law, plus NU and state government experts.

LARC Questionnaires Seek City's Retarded

Mental retardation isn't a handicap that disappears as boys and girls become men and women, so a Lancaster Association for Retarded Children (LARC) project has come up against this question:

Where are many of the community's retarded 18 years of age and older and what are they doing?

This query emerges from 573 answers to a questionnaire sent out by LARC to 655 groups and individuals to determine how many retarded and other handicapped 14 and over in Lincoln might benefit by a proposed sheltered workshop project.

The returns show a known 381 retarded in the community 14 or older but only 88 are 19 years and over. That leaves 293 between 14 and 19.

Older Group

Since mental retardation is far from being a new disease, LARC Project Director Leola Novak said it's safe to assume that the 19 and older population should be as big if not bigger than the younger teen totals.

After all, she adds, more knowledge about MR and ways in which it may be prevented has been available to more people in the past 15 years than ever before.

LARC Project leaders suspect there are many more in the older age groups who are with families or in institutions, doing what questionnaire returns show 59 are doing today — nothing.

Compiled data indicate eight of the 381 are presently employed, 12 are at Beatrice State Home, seven at Martin Luther Vocational Training Center, 15 at Lincoln Goodwill Industries, and 31 others at such centers as Villa Marie and LARC.

The bulk or 254 are still in Lincoln Public or Parochial schools special education classes.

What will happen to most of these after they no longer can benefit from slow learning classes and are dropped by the public school system? This, in part, may be answered if LARC's sheltered workshop project is established, Mrs. Novak said.

Case Report

This also could affect the retarded caseload on Lancaster County Welfare's rolls. It stands at 46 mentally retarded today, with mental illness cases at 25 for a second major cause of handicaps.

To get its case report as complete as possible for grant application data, the LARC project is asking any family or individual with knowledge of the retarded to share this information with the project office in the Continental Building.

Data on each person included on returned questionnaires has been transferred to a permanent file in the project office.

If national statistics are applied to Lincoln, the community should have about 4,500 mentally retarded of all ages.

Again, by national experience, 25 of each 30 retardates can be educated or trained to be self-supporting, four of the remaining five trained to a lesser extent and the final person will need lifetime custodial care.

Iowa Man, 61, Killed at Norfolk

Norfolk—Lyle B. Dyke, 67, of Clarinda, Iowa, was killed and four other persons were hospitalized in a two-car collision Friday afternoon on the southwest edge of Norfolk.

Dyke was one of five passengers in a car driven by Milo W. Hughes, 71, of Clarinda. The driver of the other vehicle, a stationwagon pulling a stock car, was Gerald Mohrman, 24, of Norfolk. Mrs. Milo Hughes and Mrs. Dale Hughes were both reported in satisfactory condition Saturday.

Mohrman and Joyce Krofmon, 21, of Norfolk were treated for minor injuries. Miss Krofman was a passenger in the Morhman vehicle.

Norfolk police charged Milo Hughes with running a stop sign.

Scholarships Totaling $900 Are Given Six High School Seniors

been awarded to six high school seniors by the Lincoln Journal and the Lincoln Star.

The six students and one alternate, all from Southeast Nebraska, will use the scholarships to study journalism at the University of Nebraska next fall.

The awards go to Constance Winkler and Dana Parsons, both of Omaha, and Steven Sinclair, Valdeen Smith, Tris Krumins and Margaret Babb, all of Lincoln. Kathy Dreith of Lincoln was chosen as an alternate recipient.

Miss Babb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Babb, 1628 Otoe, is an artist for the Southeast High School student newspaper, presdient of the art club and member of the National Honor Society.

Miss Krumins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Krumins, 510 So. 56th, is a senior at Lincoln High. An honor student, she is a member of the student newspaper staff and the debate team. She has been a member of the Lincoln Figure Skating Club for four years.

Miss Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Smith, 1351 So. 50th. She is the news editor of the Lincoln High newspaper, a member of the dramatics club, Pep Club, Traffic Safety Council and had the lead in the all-school play.

Sinclair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane M. Sinclair, 2812 No. 59th, has participated in football, basketball and track at Lincoln Northeast. He has been on the honor roll for three years and is a member of the yearbook staff.

Geologic Survey Truck to NU

University of Nebraska geology students and faculty soon will be able to obtain a more accurate "picture" of underground rock formations from a $40,000 geologic survey truck donated by the Shell Oil Co.

John Inkster of Houston, Texas, special assistant to the president of Shell, presented the especially equipped vehicle to Dr. Samuel Treves, chairman of the Geology Dept.

Dr. Treves said the truck is equipped with 30 seismometers which make it possible to "get a picture of the subsurface by means of recording sound and shock waves in underground rock formations."

The portable unit with hand-wired circuits was constructed by Shell and has been used in oil exploration. Inkster explained. A native of Omaha, Inkster graduated in geology from the University in 1928.

Resurfacing Measure Before Council Monday

An ordinance creating a widening and resurfacing project on portions of A, 16th, 24th and 27th Streets could be amended to include only 27th St. Monday before the City Council.

City Engineer Richard Erixson said only the 27th St., portion of the project, from C to Franklin, is to be asked for and an amendment providing for this will be before the Council.

Erixson said the 27th St., Franklin to Cornhusker Highway improvement, costing $1 million, now is in the capital improvement program for 1971-72 and in the metropolitan transportation study for the 5-10 year period.

However, the city engineer said the Public Works Dept. feels the project should be moved up because it will help relieve traffic congestion on Capitol Parkway and is a needed improvement.

Councilman Tom Allman has told the Council that he wants to discuss the widening and resurfacing project further Monday since it wasn't in the immediate capital improvement program or the transportation study.

Allman challenged the ordinance when introduced and given two readings Monday because of its lower priority of construction to other city street projects.

Erixson said it was his understanding that the Council wants to exclude A St., from any immediate street improvements and the proposed portions of 16th and 24th in the present ordinance can be improved later.

The 27th St. improvement, Erixson said, would run from C to Franklin and have a paved roadway between 51 and 62 feet depending on its location in the project.

The ordinance now scheduled for final reading and public hearing Monday before the Council calls for improvements in 16th, A to Garfield; A Street from a point 300 feet west of 24th to a point 1,200 feet east of 27th; and 27th, C to Franklin.

Italian travertine marble flanking Sheldon Art Gallery steps wasn't designed as wheelchair ramp but handicapped find it's their only way in . . . if one or two pairs of strong hands are around.

Locations of Public Rest Rooms Problem for City's Handicapped

By BESS JENKINS

Next time you seek a public rest room in Lincoln, be doubly grateful you're not in a wheelchair.

Frankly, you might get inside the room but never past most toilet stall doors.

Sometimes these inner door frames are wide enough in older buildings. Ironically, this doesn't always solve the problem. Most are at the bottom of steps or staircases. And who's heard of wheelchairs with wings yet.

Hard to believe?

There is proof in results of the architectural barrier survey completed by the Mayor's Committee for Employment of the Handicapped and the Lincoln Easter Seal Chapter.

While 20% of the 100 buildings surveyed are generally accessible to the handicapped 99% of all rest room facilities are not, declares Committee Chairman Larry Westphalen.

This doesn't make Lincoln any worse or better off than most other communities, he emphasized.

"Toilet stalls and doors just haven't been designed and built with wheelchair users in mind," he said.

25 Inches

Many a stall door frame less than 25 inches in width regularly keeps wheelchair citizens away from many places where they would like to go. Even parks!

"We went out to Van Dorn Park the other day thinking we might have a picnic there," said one wheelchair crowd member.

The idea was abandoned. The man of the house couldn't get his wheelchair past the rest room door.

Another four-wheel citizen, this one a feminine native, said the only public rest room inner door she's been able to navigate through is on the Capitol's first floor, near the ramped north entrance.

The new downtown building in which she works has been acclaimed beyond state boundaries for its architectural beauty. But rest rooms there are as much a barrier as elsewhere in Lincoln.

"Door widths are another problem when you're looking for a place to live," she added.

Westphalen observes it often boils down to either a matter of practicing strong self control at times or staying home from places and events also attractive to the handicapped.

It's not practical, either, for the wheelchair occupant to be easily embarrassed by lack of rest room privacy if he can guide his "legs" through the inner stall doors.

Swing Inward

Most of these swing inward, explains Westphalen, so they can't be swung back, once the wheelchair occupant blocks the area.

In making the survey and publishing the guide book, the Mayor's Committee and Easter Seal Society have several goals: To help the handicapped know Lincoln building limitations, to encourage future recognition of the handicapped's needs in new construction, and to work with building owners to point out these barriers and ways to correct them, often inexpensively.

It isn't easy to eliminate steps, but many of the rest room door barriers are. For example:

Wider swinging hinges may give the inch or so additional width needed in the stall door, or one wall of an end stall might be relocated to gain this important space.

The first 2,000 copies of the guide book publication financed by the Easter Seal Society and available at city hall and other strategic points, only summarizes physical features of each structure surveyed by trained volunteers.

From Westphalen comes these additional observations:

Only one cultural structure, the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, is without some barrier.

If hospitals did not have emergency entrances, the wheelchair citizen couldn't get into one without help.

One national bus line serving Lincoln in a 100% accessible building has a company rule that passengers must be ambulatory, that drivers are not responsible for loading or unloading passengers. Air and train travel are good. Parking facilities are easy.

Most retail stores have everything but necessary width to inner rest room doors. Nearly all eating places have the same deficiency or else a stairway separating the rest room area.

There is one outside public telephone booth at 40th and South which the handicapped motorist can use without getting out of the car. He can't wheel into the average telephone booth.

Only a few of the city's churches have been completely built with needs of the handicapped worshiper also in mind.

City and county seats of government are impossible but should be corrected in the new joint use building.

Few hotels have accessible public rest room areas, though several national motel chains have special rooms set aside for handicapped. Features include bathroom grab and safety bars, low-placed mirrors, etc.

Memorial Stadium presents no architectural barriers to wheelchair fans of the Big Red team.

Postal Clerks Elect Omahan

Grand Island (AP) — Kenneth Wilson of Omaha was elected president of the Nebraska Federation of Postal Clerks as the organization wound up its annual convention Saturday in Grand Island.

Other officers include Ralph Goodrich of Omaha, first vice president; Don Urwiller of Hastings, secretary-treasurer, and Robert Hosman, of Omaha, editor.

Delegates to the Tri-State Council are Wilson, Floyd Varn of Elgin, and Wilburt Poppe of Lincoln.

The Clerks Auxiliary named Mrs. Joyce Amen of Lincoln as its president. Vice president is Mrs. Jackie Martin of Grand Island and the secretary-treasurer is Mrs. Loretta Housel of Lincoln.

ETV Programs Aim to Explain State Sales Tax

Two television programs designed to help explain the state sales and use tax scheduled to go into effect in Nebraska June 1 will be aired repeatedly in the next 10 days over the state's Educational Television network stations, sponsors reported Saturday.

The programs were produced by University of Nebraska television in cooperation with the distributive education-vocational education division of the State Department of Education, the tax commissioner's office and the Retail Merchants Association of Nebraska.

The first program provides general information on the tax. The second program, designed to be of particular help to retailers who collect and remit the tax, goes into the tax laws and regulations in more detail.

Program No. 1 will be broadcast at 7:30 p.m. Monday over channels 12 (Lincoln) and 3 (Lexington) and at 8:30 p.m. Monday on channels 9 (North Platte) and 13 (Alliance).

Other airings of Program No. 1 on all ETV channels will be at 8:30 a.m. and 10 p.m. Wednesday; 11:30 a.m., May 29; 5:30 p.m., May 30.

It's REALTOR WEEK

Don't miss the outstanding selection of fine home values now being offered by the members of your Lincoln Board of Realtors.

TEN WAYS

the Realtor takes the worry out of home buying.

1. THE REALTOR SAVES YOU TIME, EFFORT AND HEADACHES He discovers your architectural interests, learns something of your personal tastes—and tries to show you only the types of homes you want to see, within your price range
2. THE REALTOR ADVICES YOU ABOUT NEIGHBORHOODS His professional experience is invaluable to you in analyzing future trends and the potential value of your home as a long range investment
3. THE REALTOR HELPS YOU SEE THROUGH INFLATED PRICES Owners who try to sell personally, often tend to overprice a home But homes listed with a Realtor benefit from his knowledge of current market values
4. THE REALTOR ARRANGES FOR DEFINITE INSPECTIONS He makes appointments for your convenience He will also see that you have plenty of time for a thorough unhurried inspection
5. THE REALTOR HELPS YOU SHARPEN YOUR VISION He inspects homes with you calls your attention to improvements and advantages you could overlook And points out any disadvantages his trained eyes may spot
6. THE REALTOR PROVIDES YOU WITH FULL INFORMATION He will give you essential facts about taxes, maintenance costs, quality of construction, adequacy of public services, schools, churches—even introduce you to the neighbors
7. THE REALTOR ACTS AS A NEGOTIATOR Settling of the finer points of price and other differences can get pretty hectic Your Realtor smoothes over the details and helps buyer and seller arrive at a mutually advantageous agreement
8. THE REALTOR HELPS YOU STAY WITHIN YOUR BUDGET He will help you analyze your financial situation, give you sound mortgage advice Then, if you desire, he can recommend sources of mortgage funds so you can arrange financing
9. THE REALTOR HELPS YOU KNOW FINAL FACTS AND FIGURES At the closing of the transaction you will need a complete financial statement giving you an exact record for insurance, tax and other purposes
10. THE REALTOR IS PLEDGED TO SERVE YOU WELL Display of the NAREB seal is evidence of a pledge to uphold the ideals of the Association The term Realtor is your assurance of competence, fair treatment and integrity

Overton, Hebron Gothenburg Win

By RICK AKIN

Kearney — Omaha Westside gave joyous cheer to a dropped baton by Omaha Central in the final event of the 1967 Nebraska State High School Track and Field Championships here Saturday

The Eagles' booboo gave Westside, also rated first in football by The Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star and winner of the state swimming championship, the Class A team track title and the Grand Championship

Gothenburg won the Class B championship, Hebron sneaked past Grant by a point for the C team championship and Overton breezed in for the team title in Class D

The exciting team races go along side the record breaking accomplished in this 65th annual affair staged at Kearney State s Foster Field

Ten state records 29 class records and a class tie were established in two days of windless sunny 60 degree weather New events—the two mile run in all classes and the two mile relay — etched their times in the book and are included in the above resume

Fiercest competition for Gold Medals came in the mile run which produced a state record and three class records out of four

Choppy stepping Larry Kassebaum stayed closely behind fast-pacing Cliff Colglazier of Grant for three and a half laps, but overtook him around the final curve for a record-ripping 4 18 6

Colglazier who earlier in the spring on the same track and without a push turned in a 4 17 3 was also under the record with 4 19 3 but Saturday could not match Kassebaum down the straightaway

Kassebaum by quarters was 60 67 70 and 61

I can t run that fast Kassebaum joked about his final 440 But the clock denied that statement

Tom Housel of Class B Lexington flew around the mile in 4 19 7 for a new class record and Mark Wilson of Central made a mark in class A with a 4 20 9

All were under the old state record

Mike Henninger set a Class A and state record in the pole vault with a 14 1 but missed his three tries at 14 6½ It had been hoped that the Lincoln Northeast senior could spring to 15 0 but it was not to be Saturday

The other state records went to McCook's mile relay team with a 3 23 0 and to Westside's Warren Whitted, who ran a 1 55 3 in the 880 Friday

Warren made a pivotal effort in giving the Warriors the championship

Running the anchor leg in the mile relay Whitted blazed from third to almost nip McCook s Larry Hoff

Four second place points however lifted Westside s total to 32½ while Central waited for the 880 relay in which the Eagles showed the best time in the state trailing with 27

But Vince Orduna and Steve Meisenbach missed their exchange between the first and second legs the baton falling to the cinders to take the Eagles out of it completely Westside finished fifth in that relay for a safety point

Gothenburg also had difficulty in the relays dropping a baton in one and false starting twice in another but had the title nearly banked Friday after its pole vaulters swept the first three places Hebron winner of the Class B state title last year received its second team championship in the school s history with some thanks to Hay Springs

The Hawks snipped Grant which trailed by just six points in the 880 relay The Plainsmen s victory would have brought a tie

Hebron got wins from all qualifiers it sent to state except the mile relay team Tracy Long was a double victor—the 880 on Friday and the pole vault on Saturday

Overton swept the two mile relay and its Bill Davis took the two mile run for valuable first place points

Omaha North s George Hicks his reflexes tuned for quick starts shot off to two gold medals in the hurdles but shared them with Class B s elite—Galen Hurst of Aurora in the highs and Holdrege s Mary Ayers in the lows

Gary Hollstein of Rushville became a double record setter He set a Class C record in the highs Friday and returned Saturday to scorch the lows in 20 1 and match his prelim time in the highs

Hay Springs Doug Marcy who anchored home the 880 relay in a record 1 31 7 was involved in two other Class C records Friday with a 09 8 in the 100 yard dash preliminaries and a 22 0 in the 220 prelims

Hebron's Larry Kassebaum (dark jersey) passes Cliff Colglazier of Grant on the final curve enroute to a record-breaking 4 18 6 mile at the State Track Meet in Kearney Kassebaum's upset win over Colglazier boosted Hebron to the Class C team championship

Everybody Told Larry He Best Check In Suit

Kearney — If Hebron s Larry Kassebaum had listened to his friends this spring he may not have been here Saturday

Everybody at school told me I might as well check in my suit They kept telling me I couldn t beat (Grant s Cliff) Colglazier Kassebaum said

But Bears' coach Randy Smith and Kassebaum thought that was all a bunch of mish-mash

Smith put a card up in the Hebron locker room showing Kassebaum what quarter times he had to run for a 4 18 mile in the 65th annual Nebraska High School Track and Field Championships here

Kassebaum paced himself out at those goals to set a Class C and state record with a 4 18 6 mile this year s most prestigious event

I knew I could win if I could stay with him for three quarters " Kassebaum said But if he's as good as everybody said he is, I didn't think I could do it "

The blond senior, who won the Class B mile last year, dogged with his choppy steps at the long striding Colglazier through three quarters

' Then he started taking off (in the backstretch) and I thought Good Heavens " Kassebaum said

But he too had some spunk left and whistled around Cliff on the turn for the the tape

' This is the happiest day of my life," Larry said "I had to take care of that for him (coach Smith) I didn't sleep much last night thinking about it "

Lexington s Tom Housel, who set a Class B record with 4 19 7 thought about it after the race He had no one to push him as there was in the Kassebaum-Colglazier match

I sure wish I was in Class C this year ' Housel said

That would have made it even more exciting than it already was—Rick Akin

Petty Captures Tidewater 250

Hampton Va (AP) — Richard Petty of Randleman N C soared into the lead after the 19th lap Saturday night and went on to an easy victory in the fourth annual Tidewater 250 at the Langley Speedway

After trading John Sears in the early part of the race Petty the winningest driver of the NASCA Grand National circuit propelled his No 43 into first place and kept it there most of the rest of the way It was his second straight victory

Bobby Allison driving a Cotten Owens Dodge finished second while James Hylton was third

Tommie Snaps Two Standards

San Jose, Calif (AP) — Tommie Smith the world's fastest human after he gets out of the starting blocks bettered two world records Saturday and immediately expressed disappointment with one

He raced 400 meters in 44 5 seconds and 440 yards in 44 8 in the San Jose Invitational track and field meet and was displeased that the latter beat Adolph Plummer's 44 9 by only one tenth of a second

"It should have been faster," gasped 22-year-old San Jose State college senior who now holds or shares nine world records from 200 meters to 440 yards and two relays

Told that he shattered the 400 meter record also 44 9 by four tenths of a second he beamed and said ' I am very happy with that "

Otis Davis of the U S Olympic team set the meter mark in the 1960 meet

Tommie, traditionally slow to start broke second to teammate Lee Evans and trailed him the first 330 yards Then he edged ahead and won by perhaps five yards

Evans, too was disappointed

' I thought I had Tommie coming into the stretch but when I asked my body to give more power it just wasn t there

Smith, who finished strong now hopes to break the world 100 yard and meter marks Because of his slowness off the blocks and getting quickly into high, he has far greater difficulty at short sprints

His coach Bud Winter who has been prepping Smith and Evans for just this day predicted Tommie is capable of snaring both 100 records

Hundley Grand Slams

Chicago Clobbers LA Dodgers, 20-3

By Associated Press

The Chicago Cubs buried the Los Angeles Dodgers 20-3 Saturday under a 14 hit attack that included a homer and double by Adolfo Phillips for six runs and a grand slam homer by Randy Hundley

Ken Holtzman, who reports for six months' Army training Monday, Phillips coasted to his fifth victory without a loss on the biggest scoring spree in the major leagues this season

Hundley also drove in another run with a sacrifice fly and Ted Savage and Glen Beckert each drove in three runs Beckert hit an inside the park homer to close the scoring and Savage also stole home

Al Ferrara hit two homers and Ron Fairly one for the Dodgers who had won two straight shutouts entering the game

In the other National League afternoon game, Tony Perez two-run single tied the score and a run-scoring triple by Don Pavletich broke it in a five run sixth inning that carried Cincinnati past Philadelphia 5-2

Reliever Jerry Arrigo pitched one hit ball over the last six innings for the victory

In the American League Chuck Hinton slammed a two-out home run with a man on in the 10th inning lifting Cleveland by Boston 5 3

Joe Azcue hit a two run homer as the Indians took a 3 0 lead before the Red Sox tied the count in the seventh on a two run pinch double by Dalton Jones and Rico Petrocelli s run scoring single

Boog Powell cracked a three-run homer in the six inning boosting the Baltimore Orioles to a 4-3 victory over Washington.

Powell's first hit in nine at bats made it 4-1 before Frank Howard homered with a man on in the sixth Howard hit a solo shot earlier

Bill Freehan and pinch hitter Gates Brown hammered run-scoring singles that broke a seventh inning deadlock and carried Detroit to a 3-1 triumph over the New York Yankees

Dick McAuliffe hit an inside the-park homer for Detroit in the first inning and Mickey Mantle matched that with his seventh homer in the fourth

In a couple of night games, Juan Marichal won his seventh straight game as San Francisco edged Houston 3 2 and unbeaten Bob Veale won his sixth in Pittsburgh s 6-2 triumph over Atlanta

Kansas City loaded the bases on two hit batsmen and a walk in the third inning and went on to beat the Chicago White Sox 9-4 Pitcher Dennis Higgins was thrown out of the game after hitting Danny Cater and Sal Bando, and the Athletics scored three runs on singles by Tim Talton and Roger Repoz

Orlando Cepeda drove in four runs with three hits as the St Louis Cardinals wiped out a five run New York lead and defeated the Mets 11 9

Big Eight Track Rescheduled Today After Rainout

By HAL BROWN

Norman Okla — Someone apparently heeded Nebraska sprinter Charlie Greene when he charged Friday that the Jacobs Field track was too dry for contesting the Big Eight Outdoor Track and Field championships here

"They ought to water this thing down." Greene opined after qualifying easily in the 100 and 220 during Friday's preliminaries

Saturday the track was watered down when a downpour of rain hit the Norman area forcing the meet to be postponed until today

The heavy deluge started about 11 a m Saturday and came down steadily well into the afternoon.

Big Eight commissioner Wayne Duke who only a few hours earlier had had his title changed from executive director of the league to commissioner by the faculty representatives meeting here reset the meet for the same time today — field events at 1 p m and track events at 2 p m

It was an emergency situation and we decided for the best interests of all concerned to postpone the meet ' said Duke The decision was by vote of all the athletic directors and track coaches on the scene '

"We have a rule gainst Sunday competition but this was waived ' Duke said Three schools have final exams starting Monday, so Monday was out."

' Conditions were just impossible today and the forecast was for more rain on into the night " the commissioner said "The coaches didn't want to risk injury They felt too we should either have a good championship meet or not at all "

The forecast called for partly cloudy skies Sunday

Duke was asked what will happen if another cloudburst hits

' We'll cross that bridge when we get to it, literally," Duke said with a smile

Eleven of the 12 television stations which had planned to broadcast Saturday s track events in six states confirmed they would telecast the events Sunday No rescheduling conformation was received from the Wichita Falls Tex station

Rain measured almost 1 5 inches here in less than two hours immediately preceding the scheduled starting time As Duke spoke hail pelted the OU fieldhouse

Most observers were happy with the postponement decision but one who would have preferred to have seen the meet run off Saturday was NU coach Frank Sevigne

I feel the championship likely will be decided in the high hurdles Sevigne observed And I think the heavy going would have favored our hurdlers '

Nebraska qualified defending champion Dave Kudron and Ray Harvey in the highs while Kansas put Lee Adams Dave Stevens and George Byers into the finals after Friday s prelims

Most observers after refiguring form charts here Friday night, saw the championship battle as a two way fight between Kansas and Oklahoma with the defending champion Huskers a close third

Oklahoma led in qualifiers with 18 while Kansas and Nebraska trailed with 15 each However preliminaries are not held in the mile where Kansas has Jim Ryun the three mile run and the 440 and mile relays

Big Eight golfers were approaching the half way point of their final 18 holes Saturday morning when the deluge game and the final round was cancelled

Friday s 36 holes were used to determine the golf standings which gave Oklahoma State the title with 592 strokes followed by Oklahoma 607 Colorado 619 Nebraska 626 Kansas State 631 Iowa State 635 Kansas 639 and Missouri 642

Defending medalist champion Hale Irwin of Colorado and O-State s Grier Jones tied for medalist honors with two over par 146s on the University course here

The tennis championships were moved indoors but only individual championships remained to be determined with Oklahoma clinching the team title in Friday s play.

I May Be Wrong

By Don Forsythe

Norman, Okla — Not since a few extra pesos lured several major leaguers to jump to the Mexican League has a baseball player made a jump to match that by Kansas senior Gary Ard He made the big leap six years ago and has been jumping ever since

The Modesto, Calif product got off a pair of crutches Thursday and dumped a bundle of points into the Kansas hopper with his jumping Friday in the Big Eight Track Meet His athletic roots are in baseball however

He was good enough as a second baseman or short stop to play as a regular for his high school team as a freshman and sophomore "Maybe that's the reason I switched to track," Gary smiled when quizzed about his performance as a hitter

There was little hesitation about making the switch after his interest was whetted while watching some friends work out as high jumpers "I just checked in my baseball equipment and became a higher jumper — didn't even tell the coach," he recalls

Coached Him Right Down

His high jumping days are over now Doing what comes naturally was good enough for high school, where his best was 6 4¾, but nothing to get excited about when he continued his track career at Modesto Junior College

"I just ran up and jumped as hard as I could," he describes his style as a prep A little coaching on correct high jumping fundamentals soon had him confused "I just couldn't adjust to the style," he says

But a little coaching produced much better results in other areas like the long jump and triple jump He didn't have any bad habits in the latter because they didn't have the event in high school

He progressed to the point as a leaper and runner at Modesto JC that he became a target for recruiters

It didn t take him long to decide on Kansas

'I visited in August and as soon as I saw the campus I said this ought to be the place for me he recalls

Got His Good Ones Quickly

Ard winner of both the long and triple jumps in the Big Eight Outdoor Meet at Missouri last year was feared lost for the 1967 meet when he strained some ligaments in his right foot while leaping 49 1½ in a dual here against the Sooners

But he got in the kind of jumps he wanted Friday before the injury flared up again sailing 24 2 on his first try in the long jump and sailing 48 1¾ on his second at tempt in the triple jump

'That s the best way to do it Get those good jumps first and then just wait and see what the other fellows can do " he says

Despite all his jumping success and having been the leadoff runner on a Kansas team which set a world sprint medley relay mark in the Texas Relays there is a little baseball left in him

He s track s version of a switch hitter taking off from his left foot in the long jump and the right in the triple jump And as they d say in that other sport he is a threat to go the distance from either side

Huskers Dealt 9-6 Setback In Finale

Oklahoma hiked its Big Eight record to 11 9 by hand ing Nebraska a 9 6 setback in the season finale for both clubs at the NU diamond Sat urday

The Sooners were led by center fielder Steve Barrett who drove in four runs with a pair of doubles and a home run in three trips to the plate

Nebraska jumped to a 2 0 lead in the first inning as its first three batters got safeties Tim Polz cracked the opening pitch of the game for a single Steve Johnson doubled Bolz to third on the first pitch offered him by winning Oklahoma hurler Ralph Rickey Then Alex Walter stepped up to single in Bolz and Johnson

The Sooners came back with four runs in the third inning with Rickey driving in two of them

Oklahoma widened its lead to 7 3 in the fourth on a three run homer by Barrett

The Huskers scored single runs in the third fourth, fifth and seventh innings making it 7-6 Oklahoma, before the Sooners added two insurance runs in the top of the eighth

Mike Churchich homered for the fourth inning Husker score

The loss leaves the Huskers 7 11 in the conference and 8 16 over all Oklahoma finished with an 11 16 over all record winless outside Big Eight play

Mick Zangari was the losing Husker hurler being shelled for seven runs in the 4 1 3 innings he pitched

Damascus Captures Preakness

Baltimore (AP) — Damascus, beaten favorite in the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago, stormed through the stretch like a wild horse Saturday and won the 92nd running of the $194,000 Preakness at Pimlico.

Seventh, far back of stablemate Celtic Air midway of the back stretch, Damascus moved into contention rounding the final turn and when the field of 10 3-year-olds straightened out for home, he said good bye to his rivals.

In Reality was second Kentucky Derby Proud Clarion winner off to a slow start, finished third with lightly-regarded Reason to Hail taking fourth place in the 13 16 mile race run before a crowd of 38,371

Under the lash of Bill Shoemaker's whip the son of Sword Dancer-Kerala carried the white and red dotted silks of Mrs Edith W Bancroft over the distance in 1 55 1 5

The time was the second fastest in the history of this second leg of the triple crown The record of 1 54 3-5 was set in 1955 by Nashua who also sported the same colors when they represented the famous Belair Stud

Proud Clarion's bid for the triple crown ended up short The Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct on June 3 will complete the triple, last swept by Citation in 1948

Back of the first four horses in order came Misty Cloud, Barbs Delight, Ask The Fare Celtic Air Favorable Turn and Great Power

As the favorite, Damascus, trained by Frank Whiteley Jr paid $5 60 $3 60 and $2 60 In Reality, carrying the hopes of Mrs Frances A Genter returned $4 60 and $3 60 while Proud Clarion from John Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm, paid $3 80 to show

Damascus s powerful stretch run carried him across the finish line 2¼ lengths in front of In Reality, who was making his first start since winning the Florida Derby on April 1

It was another four lengths back to Proud Clarion and three-quarters of a length separated the Derby winner from Patrice Jacobs' Reason to Hail, who in the last seven weeks has traveled some 8 000 miles and got a piece of five major stakes

Damascus, chalking up his fourth victory in six starts this year earned a record Preakness purse of $141,500 to boost his earnings as a 3 year-old to $260,460

In 10 starts since coming to the races late last season, the trim bay eKntucky-bred colt never has been worse than third

There was no place to go but outside said Shoemaker watching a television rerun of the race They were all bunched up and there wasn t much running room

Shoemake said Damascus was inclined to get lazy when in front sometimes

'I whacked him pretty good with my whip in the stretch to keep him from laying back," Shoemaker said

OU Sweeps Net Honors

Norman Okla (P) -- Oklahoma led by No 1 singles champion Steve Stockton swept all five singles crowns and both doubles titles Saturday in completing its drive to its 15th Big Eight team tennis championship

The Sooners finished with 66 points out of a possible 70 Round robin dual competition counted toward the team title for the first time in league history

Kansas was second with 45 points, Oklahoma State had 39 Kansas State 35, Colorado 27, Missouri 18, Iowa State 8, Nebraska 6

Norman, Okla. — Football coaching is a profession where success is often greener on the other side of the fence. And football coaches are not hesitant about moving to the other side of the fence.

The coaching ranks are full of coaches who have achieved success or stature because of a move they have made. Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks has achieved stature because of a move he did not make.

One of the wisest non-moves in collegiate football was made when Fairbanks refused the wooing of Missouri coach Dan Devine last winter.

Groom to Succeed!

Devine is moving up to Missouri athletic director this summer and plans to coach only a few more years. Fairbanks, an OU assistant, was the man Devine had in mind to groom as his successor.

"I was happy here," Fairbanks explains in discussing his decision to remain on the Sooner staff. "My family had just gotten moved from Houston and I didn't want to make them move again so soon."

When OU head coach Jim Mackenzie died suddenly this spring, Fairbanks, a former Michigan State gridder, was moved up to take over the head chores, making his earlier decision a wise one.

And just as Fairbanks likely would have moved solidly into the Missouri job in a few years had he gone with Devine, Oklahoma president George Cross emphasizes that this is not an interim job at Oklahoma.

"I do not regard this as an emergency appointment," Cross notes. "I predict after watching the varsity-alumni game that this young man will do an outstanding job and in a few years will be one of the nation's outstanding coaches."

Fairbanks obviously is not thrilled over the manner in which he landed his first head coaching job — because of the untimely death of Mackenzie.

"I'm sure everyone understands I would rather this happened under different circumstances," he points out, adding that he has no intention of trying to emulate Mackenzie, but also noting that people will notice little change in the OU strategy this year from last.

Continue Same Program

"I won't try to emulate him," Fairbanks explains. "But I believe so strongly in the things he stood for and in his football program that I will try to continue with it and make improvements on it just as he would."

Fairbanks was particularly pleased with the attitude of the Sooner squad in the final few days of spring drills after the death of Mackenzie.

"The boys really bounced back well," he offers. "In fact, they made an extra effort to try to do well under the circumstances. For the first day or two, some of their enthusiasm was perhaps a little bit hollow, but for the rest of the spring it was genuine and we finished strong.

"We're optimistic about next fall."

Fairbanks realizes he is faced with the same problems Mackenzie had, the biggest being in the offensive line. "We need help in the interior of the offensive line the most," he says. "We lost Ed Hall, Ron Wintrey, Vernon Burkett, Mark Kosmos and Don Kindley there — all good ballplayers."

He also must replace split end Ben Hart, both linebackers and a top secondary man in Eugene Ross.

"Two sophomores, Joe Killingsworth and Johnny Barr, are working at split end and are improving rapidly," Fairbanks says. "Don Pfrimmer could solve part of our line backing problems. He was the most pleasant surprise of the spring."

Basically, the Sooners will do the same things this fall that they did under Mackenzie. "We'll continue to use the monster defense with variations — a multiple defense actually," Fairbanks explains.

"Offensively we'll again operate out of an I formation with a wide slot and a split end. We probably will diversify the offense some, try to do more things and throw a bit more."

No Key Rulings Made

By DON FORSYTHE

Norman, Okla.—Rain slowed the athletic program, but the Big Eight Conference administrators waded through their work here this week with no problems.

There was no earthshaking legislation adopted by the faculty representatives and athletic directors from the member schools in their two-day session.

The major item concerned the work program, a device which permits circonvention of the league's 1.6 scholastic rule. Under this program an athlete who failed to meet the required 1.6 level could be enrolled and given a job and would become eligible for both competition and an athletic scholarship if he made a 1.6 grade average in his freshman year.

From now on the athlete who fails to meet the projected 1.6 level must spend two years in school and have a 1.6 average in 48 hours or more before becoming eligible for competition and a scholarship.

Nebraska has no athlete on such a program.

One act of enabling legislation, directed at Nebraska, permits the Huskers to schedule three freshman football games on the road this fall. Conference rules call for just two road games.

But Kansas, slated to be a home opponent, dropped Nebraska from its schedule, presumably in retaliation for Nebraska's skipping the Kansas Relays. The only other opponent the Huskers could get was McCook Junior College for a game at McCook—the third road game.

Big Eight commissioner Wayne Duke also said that the league will make several recommendations to the NCAA and the National High School Assn. concerning developing trends in athletics.

"The recommendations are difficult to legislate but we want to get the appropriate parties interested in them," Duke explained.

The Big Eight seeks tighter controls in three areas:

(1) In halting the practice of hiding out athletes on the date of the national inter-conference letter of intent signings;

(2) In setting a limit on the number of visits a high school athlete can make to college campuses; and

(3) The contacting of high school juniors as a preliminary step in recruiting.

Henninger Felt Lucky to Grab Pole Vault at Low (For Him) 14-1

By RICK AKIN

Kearney — Announcement, America. Everybody relaxed now?

Maybe Mike Henninger wasn't ready to pole vault 15-0 to make his name everlasting in the state's track history.

It will probably stand for some time, however, after his 14-1 soar which set a new state record in the 1967 Nebraska State High School Track and Field Championships here Saturday.

"Actually, I feel awfully lucky to win," Henninger said. "Even at 13-6 I didn't think I was going to make it. Nothing was going right."

But typewriters (this one included) drummed out tales of the Rocket senior riding his pole into a different sphere. It was a logical dream.

Henninger sailed 14-7½ in the Trans-Nebraska to become the highest vaulter in Nebraska prep history. And he looked close in his tries that night at 15-0.

"I sure wanted to get 15-0," Mike said. "I think people kind of expected it of me after the Trans-Nebraska. But since then I never felt like I really had had it."

Mike Henninger

George Hicks

Bob Pierce

He went to a longer (16-foot) pole for greater height but that caused some problems.

"It bends more easily," Henninger said, "but it's also harder to control. It throws me all over the place."

That was among his difficulties Saturday but not the only one. "I did different things wrong at different times," he said.

For all he did wrong, sports fans, he made several right jumps, and that includes the state record.

"Yes, it was a lot of fun," Henninger said.

Omaha North's double gold Medal winner in the hurdles, George Hicks, had the opposite problem. No one thought he would do anything.

Hicks, you see, is the original fireplug. Even the hurdles are taller than he is. At 5-8, he should stay in the sprints in which he scored last year, people said.

"I was planning on running them (the hurdles; just at the Omaha Invitational," Hicks said. "But everybody said I couldn't run them. So, I stuck with them."

The squat one shot out of the starting blocks in the highs to beat Omaha Tech's Russ Harrison, Omaha Central's Vince Orduna and Grand Island sophomore Randy Butts, who the day before had run :14.4.

"I knew I had to get a good start," Hicks said. "That Butts is tall, and I knew that if I didn't get out, he would beat me."

Hicks ran a :14.3 in the highs, just a tenth of a second above the state record. He screached :19.7 in the lows.

George stood on the Gold Medal stand with Holdrege's Marv Ayers for the lows' award and with Aurora's Gaylen Hurst for the highs' accolades.

"I didn't know if I could beat Hurst in the lows," Ayers said. "I wanted to beat him in the highs, too, but he's quite a hurdler."

Ord's Bob Pierce was the fashion idol on the Gold Medal stand with his red socks.

"Mike (teammate Mike Calvin) and I got them last year," Pierce said. "We didn't buy them to be seen in the grandstand. We just wanted to do something different."

Pierce also appeared for the state meet with shorter hair.

"I got my hair cut the other day just for the state meet," he said. "I think it helps. I used to have really long hair and it would flip up on top."

The wind resistence pared, Pierce cruised around the 440 in :48.8 after a slow start to nip Omaha Tech's Reggie Duncan, who sprinted it in :48.9, for the Gold Medal.

Maybe the shorter hair made the one-tenths' difference. More likely it was the speedy finish.

"I think that was the slowest first 300 yards I've ever run," Pierce said. "At the Kearney Invitational (in which he lost to Columbus Scotus' Steve Shadle), I ran too fast at first.

"I knew I had to save some for the finish," Pierce said. "I thought about it all night."

Harding Nabs Snipe Race

An Omaha skipper, Bob Harding, captured first place in the only sailboat race held Saturday at Capitol Beach Lake.

Twenty-four snipe class crews from the Omaha-Lincoln area competed in light and variable winds.

The Lincoln and Omaha snipe fleets placed five each in the first 10 to finish with Lincoln's Dick Wadlow and Dr. Harold Horn finishing 2nd and 3rd respectively.

Because of light winds Saturday, two races are scheduled for Sunday, beginning at 9:15 a.m.

Hogan Named Ryder Captain

Fort Worth, Tex. (AP)—The 10 members of the U.S. Ryder Cup team have selected Ben Hogan as their non-playing captain, it was disclosed here Saturday.

Hogan, who played in the Ryder Cup matches in 1947 and 1951, was the non-playing captain once previously, in 1949.

"I very much appreciate the players wanting me," said Hogan, here with most of touring pros for the Colonial National Invitational Golf Tournament.

The matches this year will be at the Houston Champions International course Oct. 20-22.

U.S. Team Captures Walker Cup

Sandwich, England (AP)—Bill Campbell carded an eagle 3 at the seventh hole in his singles match against Ronnie Shade Saturday and sparked the United States amateur golfers to a 13-7 victory over the British Isles in the Walker Cup.

It was the 19th time that the United States had won the trophy. Britain has won it only once — in 1938—and tied once, in Baltimore two years ago.

The British, under Capt. Joe Carr, had mustered a rousing comeback threatening the Americans' 8-1 opening-day lead when the 44-year-old Campbell, a former U.S. amateur champion and Walker Cup captain, made his dramatic charge.

Playing Britain's top ace, the man who sank the putt that saved the tie in 1965 the tall Princeton University graduate unleashed a string of five straight 3s — including two birdies and an eagle —on the outgoing nine, finally winning 3 and 2.

The British, trailing 8-1 going into the final day's play, won three of the four foursomes in the morning and stepped off to a lead in most of the eight singles in the afternoon.

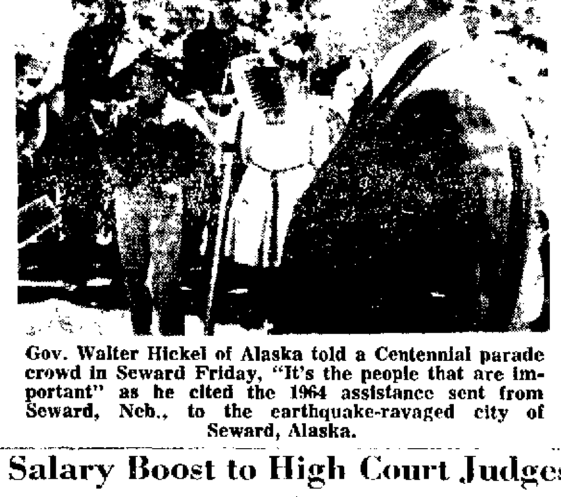
Alaskan Visitor



Gov. Walter Hickel of Alaska told a Centennial parade crowd in Seward Friday, "It's the people that are important" as he cited the 1964 assistance sent from Seward, Neb., to the earthquake-ravaged city of Seward, Alaska.

Salary Boost to High Court Judges

The Unicameral voted 41-0 to raise the salary of Nebraska's Supreme Court judges from $17,000 to $20,500 a year, making them the state's highest paid officials.

The Legislature gave tentative approval to a bill which would give the governor supreme law enforcement command whenever the National Guard is used in an emergency situation. The bill, still facing amendatory action, called for a $500,000 appropriation to the emergency fund, as compared with the $100,000 Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann requested.

In other business, state lawmakers voted to sell Chadron State Park to the State Game Commission for $10,000; voice-vote second round approval was given to a bill creating a state law enforcement training center at the old Lincoln Air Force Base.

Schwartzkopf, Council Sworn In

Former University of Nebraska football standout Sam Schwartzkopf began official duties as Lincoln's mayor as he and the new City Council were sworn into office Monday afternoon.

The new Council consists of Bill Davidson, Tom Allman, Mrs. Helen Boosalis, Ervin Peterson, John Comstock, Lloyd Hinkley and Carroll Thompson.

The new mayor said his first item of city business will be the upcoming 1967-68 city budget. Outgoing Mayor Dean Petersen said he intends to take a vacation and had no immediate business plans.

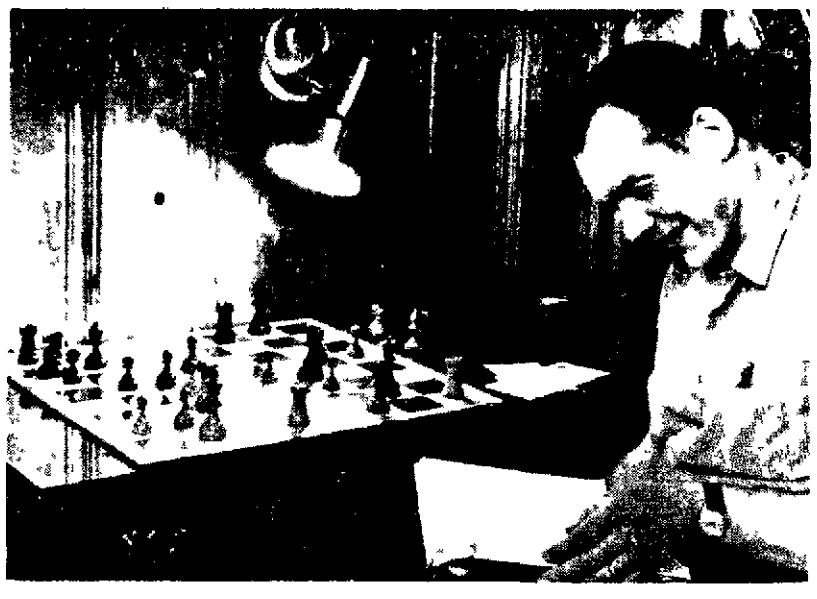
The Lincoln Library Board gave unanimous approval to the 1967-68 proposed operational budget of $561,625 which will be presented to the mayor for inclusion in the total city budget . . . Richard Joyce, Lincoln hardware executive and Lincoln Airport Authority member since 1965, has been named the Authority's new chairman . . . West Central Airlines says it has signed a long-term agreement for leasing Arrow Airport in north Lincoln as a maintenance facility . . . 88% of the $2.1 million YM-YWCA capital fund campaign has been raised so far but the drive will continue until the goal has been reached . . . Dr. Stephen W. Carveth has been releceted president of the Lincoln Area Heart Assn. . . . M. W. Anderson Construction Co. of Lincoln will be awarded the contract for construction of the new Gateway Post Office substation due to be started before July 1 . . . The Lancaster County Board approved a resolution authorizing a change in stop signs at the intersection of No. 84th and Adams and Havelock Ave. to make 84th a through street.



Sildmets and his chess board.

Year-Long Games Common in Chess

By JOHN HINES

If you're going to watch a game don't expect to get home early It's kinda like the Huskers playing football against the International Correspondence School

The name of the game is chess with particular emphasis on postal chess the way Lincoln's Anton Sildmets plays it

Sildmets is a director of the Lincoln Chess Foundation, the governing body of the Lincoln Chess Club He was state champ in 1963 and city champ a year later with an 'expert' rating and is now a Class A player

The native of Estonia started playing postal chess in 1963 and has an overall record since then of 48 wins one loss and one draw He's rated eighth in the nation

Each year's U S Open Postal Tourney is still in various stages, but Sildmets has not been eliminated from the national title any of those years

It takes about a year to play one game" he said while relaxing in his home at 6921 W You can make about a move a week with a 72 hour limit on the move It takes three or four days to mail your postcard to Denver and about 10 days to get it to Canada"

Currently Sildmets is playing 31 opponents and gets about four cards a day

You have to make a near perfect move to win in postal chess' he says You can make a blunder across the boards (actual live competition) and get away with it but not in postal chess It will be detected

Pro Grid Loops Meet On Tuesday

New York (AP) — Expansion of the American Football League to 10 teams in 1968, possibly by adding Cincinnati and selection of the Super Bowl site will be the main topics of discussion Tuesday when the two major pro football leagues meet

Although both the National Football League and the AFL will meet at the same hotel, no joint sessions are planned However, the joint merger committee that worked out plans for the leagues to join by 1970, undoubtedly will huddle

The blueprint for expansion calls for the AFL to add its 10th franchise for the 1968 season with two additional franchises contemplated by 1970 when the leagues probably will begin playing an interlocking schedule The NFL has added New Orleans as its 16th team for the 1967 season

Cincinnati appears to be in line for the next AFL franchise possibly with Paul Brown former Cleveland pair owner coach as a key figure If and when a franchise is voted only the city will be announced not the new owners A new stadium is in the works for Cincinnati

Miami's Orange Bowl is among the leading sites under consideration for the Super Bowl game between the NFL and AFL champions New Orleans' Sugar Bowl and the Los Angeles Coliseum where the first Super Bowl game was played before 63 036 fans last January also are under consideration

The Orange Bowl due to have a capacity of 75 000 by November is given a good chance to land the prize probably for Sunday Jan 14 1968 The Miami Dolphins of the AFL play their home games there and the stadium also is the site of the Playoff Bowl between NFL runner up teams tentatively set for Sunday Jan 7

Owner Larry Swanson and builder Wayne House look over their car being driven by Keith Hightshoe.

First Grand Slam Means Hightshoe Driver to Watch

Keith Hightshoe of Ashland scored a couple of firsts' at Midwest Speedway last week And he is now hoping they'll become a regular habit

The popular veteran driver scored the first grand slam of the 1967 season at Midwest And it was the first of Hightshoe's 12 year career

His wins came in a heat dash trophy dash and the big A Feature More simply it means he won every race in which he ran

Grand slams are a rarity for any driver on the fast Nebraska circuit except Lloyd Beckman who dominated the racing scene last year

And last week Hightshoe beat Beckman to make the victory just that much sweeter Keith didn't lose any respect for Beckman via the win

Lloyd is the toughest driver around He knows all the tricks and it's a real honor to get around him in a race"

Keith's newest rise to the top must be shared by a couple of other fine racing enthusiasts He has joined Larry Swanson and builder Wayne House to come up with one of the finest cars ever run in this area

The trio got about 99% of their car parts from California and the new No 14 is destined for national competition

Swanson said this week the car will make Lincoln's Midwest Speedway its home base but some tough regional competition is planned The group will race at Knoxville Iowa on Saturdays and plans to enter all the IMCA races possible in this region

All three men seemed delighted with the new set up Hightshoe confided that owning his own car is too expensive and Larry confessed that driving his own last year was considerably less than a smashing success

Hightshoe has enjoyed some other fine years in racing Perhaps one of his top feats was recorded in 1966 when he finished ninth in Ed Smith's No 44

While ninth might not dazzle the average statistics man, it should be noted that he had No 44 in the point competition only five weeks while most of the cars in front of the pack had run all summer

The Ashland pilot will no doubt get another challenge from many drivers tonight. Veteran race track observers have already labeled the 1967 cars the best in history And the drivers agree that most of the competition has already reached mid summer levels

The fast and furious action begins at 8 p m at the Home of the Super Modifieds —Lincoln's Midwest Speedway located at 27th and Superior

Taylor Reportedly Already Signed by New Orleans Club

New Orleans (AP) — Jimmy Taylor one of the mainstays of the Green Bay Packer backfield for nearly a decade has agreed to play for the New Orleans Saints it was learned Saturday from a highly reliable source

Earlier Saturday the New Orleans States Item in a story by assistant sports editor Peter Finney said Taylor signed a contract reportedly worth $500 000 to play for the Saints The signing took place Friday the story said

'We're denying it" said Don Smith public relations director for the Saints I won't say we won't sign Taylor but that's not true at this stage'

However it was learned that

Jimmy Taylor

Taylor's agreement is a personal services contract with John W Mecom Jr majority owner of the Saints Taylor's official signing of an NFL contract with the Saints probably won't come until after the league meets this coming week in New York

'I'll have the story for you when we get back from New York' Larry Karl another Saints official said

Taylor became a free agent May 1 after playing nine years with the Packers He played college football under Paul Dietzel at LSU and makes his home in Baton Rouge

The one hitch in Mecom's plans to obtain Taylor is Packer Coach and General Manager Vince Lombardi Mecom the States-Item said has reportedly agreed to surrender his first round draft choices in 1968 and 1969 to The Packers

There have been repeated reports from the Packer camp that Lombardi wants three — not two — first round draft choices NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said here two weeks ago he would step into the Taylor negotiations if it become necessary

Underclass Mite Starts in Stitches

By RICK AKIN

Underclass athletes seek second glimpses from the coach It's assurance to them that the leader knows they're around They have a better chance of making the team

Southeast's mighty mite left fielder Tom Hayes drew early notice from coach Charley Gordon but it wasn't pleasant

I went down to watch Southeast in the district tournament when I was in the ninth grade" Hayes recalls

I was standing behind the backstop and Mike Jennings was at bat he says 'His bat broke I was talking to a friend or something and a piece of the bat came through the fence and cut my head

I had to have 30 stitches' Hayes says That's how I first met Mr Gordon though

The coach remembered him in the next year his first and sophomore season for the Knights and right through to this his senior year

Hayes will again be the leadoff man at the state tournament against Omaha Tech Monday night in Omaha's Rosenblatt Stadium Game time is 8 p m

Other Class A semifinalists Omaha Burke and Omaha Bishop Ryan meet at 6 p m

Dave McEwen
Knight Third Sacker

Hayes however does not try to take advantage of his frame (6' by 135 pounds) to draw walks

That's the impression a lot guys have about leadoff men Hayes says Sure I'll take the walk if they're not throwing strikes but I like to swing the bat

That's noticeable in his Big 8 batting average of .408

I think I'm 15 for 36 Hayes said through the telephone

A half hour later he reviewed his past performances and called to announce that he was 15 for 37

Orioles' Epstein Like Mack Truck in Two Ways

Mike Epstein
Will It Last?

New York (AP) — Mike Epstein has two things in common with a Mack truck — his size and a one year guarantee

Unlike the truck however Epstein has a mind, and that's what's causing the Baltimore Orioles so much anguish

Epstein s mind which digests Socrates and Plato as nimbly as his bat hits a curve ball has taken him home to Los Angeles instead of to Rochester where the Orioles want him to play baseball

The 6 foot 3 230 pound slugger insists he is quitting the game at the age of 24 rather than play another year in the minors

He has made this decision despite a guarantee from the Orioles that they will trade him next season if once again they do not have a place for him

As a result of the decision — whether it's only temporary nobody maybe not even Epstein himself, knows — Baltimore has placed him on baseball's suspended list

How can he turn his back on a potential hundreds of thousands of dollars and shed the glamor that has surrounded him even though he has batted only 24 times in the majors a glamor that many players who play every day in the majors don t enjoy?

It was less than two months ago in better times that Epstein said in discussing his feelings about the game

I ve sublimated all my drives and energies and motivations and I ve concluded that I want to be a baseball player and I want to give it the best shot I can

Then consider Epstein's reason for becoming a professional baseball player rather than pursuing a career in football the sport he began in at the University of California

'Football didn t offer what baseball did — the individual challenge A mediocre back could have a good line and become an all America But in baseball it s the hitter against the pitcher It s the individual challenge As they say in French it s my raison d etre for being in the game

But is he still in the game'

The Orioles have to believe he is going through the motions of quitting in an attempt to force them to trade him now not next year after he spends another season in the minors where he has nothing to gain except perhaps experience and much to lose

After all how can you top being the minor league player of the year which he was with Rochester in 1966?

The Orioles don't want to trade Mike just like the New York Yankees would not have wanted to trade Mickey Mantle or the San Francisco Giants Willie Mays after they had spent their relatively brief periods in the minors

That s how much the Orioles respect this first base man whom they feel hasn t developed sufficiently at this point to replace Boog Powell at first or Curt Blefary in left field

But while they won t be bludgeoned into dealing him away they will trade for the right player — the pitcher who could insure a second straight American League pennant

So far no one — and there are many teams interested in the young slugger — has offered the Orioles the pitcher they believe can do the job

Baltimore undoubtedly would take Joe Horlen or Bruce Howard of the Chicago White Sox Pete Richert of Washington Kansas City's Jim Hunter or Mel Stottlemyre or Al Downing of the New York Yankees

All four of those teams could use hitting, but the obvious question in their minds is how much does one gamble on an untried, unproved rookie? While he might have the potential of a Mays or a Mantle he hasn t shown it yet

In 15 games in the majors at the end of last season and the beginning of this Epstein has collected three singles and a triple in 24 at bats for a 167 average

But that is exactly Epstein s point He wants a chance — more than a game here a pinch hit there — to show whether he can be the majors next superstar

Kearney — Seated here at Foster Field all through the State High School Track Meet over the weekend with a ready hand at the stopwatch and a baseball cap with a New York Yankee insignia to shade the sun has been Bon Shidle

He s taught son Steve several things but among the most important has been determination

I ve always taught the kids to get up on the next plateau to work work work Bon says I ve never been a very gracious loser I ll shake hands but I always know there s a next time '

Steve Columbus Scotus 440 220 relay and broad jump man has taken a lesson

He s a very devoted boy Bon says If a kid dogs it he s really on him He hates to lose '

Takes A Hand

Bon isn t the kind to coach his own son these high school days I figure the coach is paid to do his job and has an overall plan I don t want to stick my nose in his business

But there are other ways to assist an athletic program and Bon does

We have this Shamrock Booster's Club and I try to help with that he says The school has a limited budget and can t go first class

Parents sell tickets arrange the athletic banquets promote girls sports and transport the Shamrocks to events which don t warrant bus travel

At football games I run the down marker Bon says ' It sure is nice to get those first downs and eight He s kidding of course

Maybe I get a little too involved but I think parents should be interested if their kids are competing

Just Ordinary

Bon played football and basketball at Boone Iowa but I was just run of the mill I was just good enough to keep my interest up

He also started his boys interest in sports

'I ve been taking them hunting and fishing with me ever since they were little and I coached some Little League baseball

I always felt that if a kid had some athletic ability he ought to be hanging around the gym and fields instead of running around town

More Work

An then son John will probably follow his elder s spike marks He s just got too much energy to do anything else

That will mean more down marking driving the kids from here to there and back again and clock watching

But I m sure he won t object

Weiskopf, Stockton Share Lead

Fort Worth Tex (AP) — Tom Weiskopf moved into a share of the lead with faltering Dave Stockton Saturday and ageless Ben Hogan stormed into contention in the third round of the Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament Saturday

Hogan the 54-year-old sentimental favorite shooting for his sixth Colonial crown, moved steadily over his home town course with a one under-par 69 for a 54 hole total of 208 just three strokes back of the co leaders

Weiskopf matched par 70 to overtake the struggling young Stockton the second round leader who blew to a 74 Each has a 205 total

The leading trio got caught in a rainstorm on the closing holes but the only casualty was Stockton who took a double bogey six at the 15th and blew the lead with a bogey at 18

His approach shot at 18 caught a trap and he pitched to within six feet of the cup and missed the attempt at par

Stockton 25 looking for his first tour victory started the third round nine under par and four shots ahead of Weiskopf who blazed into contention Friday with a record tying 65

Stockton chipped in from 60 feet for a birdie at No 4 which Weiskopf bogeyed and at that point had a seven stroke lead Weiskopf had also bogeyed the par 4 second

Gary Signs Colt Contract

Baltimore (AP) — John Gary a 275 pound defensive tackle from Grambling University has been signed to a National Football League contract by the Baltimore Colts

Gary was selected as a future by the Colts in the 1966 supplemental draft which followed the merger of the NFL and the American Football League The Houston Oilers of the AFL had picked Gary No 6 in the earlier AFL draft also as a future

The newest Colt is a nephew of Deacon Dave Jones defensive end of the Los Angeles Rams

Peru letterman Kathy Welsh.

1st Woman Winner

Kathy Is Proud Of Peru Letter

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Peru—Kathy Welsh is a girl who not only wears the latest she wears the first

Never before in the 100 years of Peru State College has a gal type athlete been awarded a school letter The personable junior won hers with the men s tennis team

' Peru has a strict policy against girls wearing their boy friends' letter jackets so I got some funny looks when mine arrived this spring " said the physical education major 22 I m prouder of this 'P' than any trophy "

That takes in quite a territory since by now more than 50 trophies grace Kathy s living room in Omaha Among them are firsts in Nebraska junior and women s divisions as well as open championships from Colorado and South Dakota

A veteran of the widely traveled team of the Omaha Tennis Assn she gained frosh experience at Creighton before playing with Peru last year This spring she is the No 2 man on coach Darrell Wininger s seven member squad

Competing as Peru s No 1 singles representative in the recent Nebraska College Conference tourney she took the first round before losing to the eventual champion She finds her male foes very courteous but showing no mercy whatsoever on the court '

I do run into a few dressing room problems Kathy chortled like the other day in Iowa when I had to wait until the men finished so I could use the same locker room

Pro Golf Tour Stopping At Oklahoma City Next

Oklahoma City (AP)—The professional golfing tour its glasses held high in an unofficial final toast to the late Champagne Tony Lema swings in for the $66 000 Oklahoma City Open Thursday

Lema who died in a plane crash last summer was last year s winner at Quail Creek Golf and Country Club It was the last title won by the celebrated champagne dispenser

Doug Sanders and Billy Casper head the list of commitments already received although Gary Player and possibly either Arnold Palmer or Jack Nicklaus are expected to compete

Though actual tourney play begins Thursday the qualifying rounds will be Monday for some of the touring pros with a unique pro junior clinic Tuesday and a $3 500 pro am Wednesday

This is the fifth year for the tourney at Quail Creek although the meet is in its ninth year

Palmer is the only golfer to win the title twice

Last year Lema Nicklaus and young Tom Weiskopf locked up in a final day battle with Lema pulling away with a five under 67 on the closing round

Rain Postpones Zaharias Golf

Beaumont Tex (AP) — The second round of the 15th annual Babe Zaharias Open scheduled at Bayou Din Country Club Saturday was postponed because of heavy rain

The $10 000 54 hole tournament will end Sunday weather permitting with 36 now scheduled to be played

Fast Speeds Mark '500' Qualifying

Indianapolis (AP)—The 33 car field for the 51st running of the 500 mile race May 30 was filled to overflowing Saturday at a record average of 164 024 miles per hour The old mark was 160 751 m p h last year

There will be one more qualifying session Sunday in which a car could make the lineup by replacing one of the earlier runners with a faster 10 mile average

Eliminated Saturday were five drivers who had held temporary spots in the field and two were Grand Prix drivers Jackie Stewart of Scotland and Pedro Rodriquez of Mexico Both can try again Sunday and Stewart already was limbering up his backup Lola Ford late Saturday

Others bumped were Bob Hurt Potomac Md Bob Harkey Indianapolis and Ronnie Duckman Playa Del Rey Calif

Nobody approached Mario Andretti s record smashing speed of 168 779 m p h a week earlier A crowd only about one fourth the size of the estimated May 13 throng of 200 000 watched the qualifying attempts

Roger McCluskey of Tucson Ariz the U S Auto Club s defending sprint car champion was high Saturday at an average of 165 563 in an Eagle Ford

Other performances likely to resist assaults on the final day included 163 696 by Carl Williams Kansas City Mo in a BRP Ford and 163 376 by Dennis Hulme New Zealand Grand Prix racer living in England in an Eagle Ford

Chuck Hulse Los Angeles veteran did 162 925 in Graham Hill's 1966 winning Lola-Ford, and Bob Veith, another old timer from San Lorenzo Calif turned 162 580 in a Gerhardt Turbo charged Offenhauser

Grandma Remembers 1911 Indy

Indianapolis Ind (AP) — Memorial Day 1911 she fixed a lunch for herself and her boyfriend and they picnicked in the infield while watching the first Indianapolis 500 mile race

Ray Harroun won it chugging around the 2½ mile track 200 times in 6 hours 43 minutes — an average of 74 59 miles per hour for the 500 miles

Now 56 years and 46 races later, Mrs Grace Humphreys doesn't bother to fix sandwiches

They ve gotten so fast that there s no time to eat anyway says the grey haired little great grandmother

Graham Hill of England roared around the 500 miles in just over three hours last year averaging 144 317 m p h

Mrs Humphreys was there and she ll be there this year as excited as anybody about the controversial new turbine car

They say that there's little Parnelli Jones will have to worry about with Studebaker's new turbine ride except the brakes, and I'll be thrilled to see it," she says

Mrs Humphreys a spry 75 and just this month giving up her fulltime job as a comptometer operator remembers the days when the racing was slower but the thrills just as big

There was Barney Oldfield 'with his big cigar and his checkered hat

And Ralph DePalma pushing his car a leak victim back to the pits and I could have just cried for him

She remember cheering for the drivers in the old National cars because her family had one at the time

She remembers the two big foreign invasions at the Speedway — the first in 1913 the second last year — when European drivers dominated the scene but she still roots for the Americans

I like to see things stay at home she says

Since the death of her husband — her date at the 1911 race — Mrs Humphreys has been attending the 500 with her sons

She s missed only four of them — for three years starting in 1962, and again in 1966, to babysit for friends who wanted to go to the race

There s no bigger thrill than hearing Gentlemen start your engines "

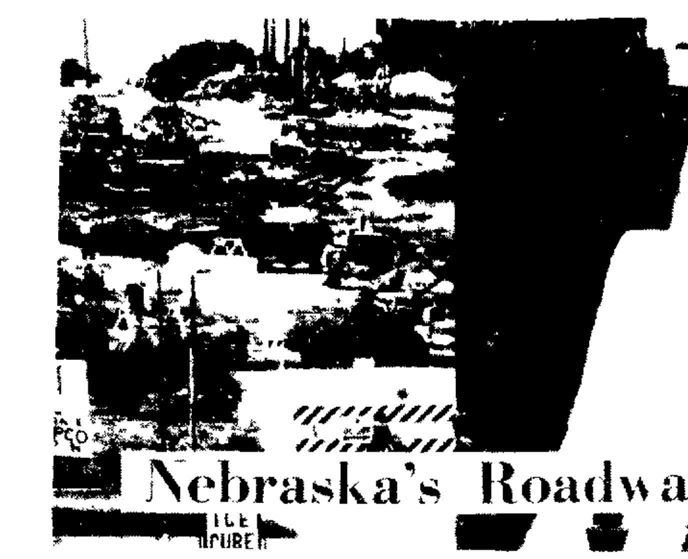
Tests of Road Condition and Use Determine Cost



'Gee-Whiz' Aspects of Problem

A state which has the 14th largest road mileage of 103 000 miles to be supported by the 33rd ranking of population is going to have a combination of problems of road service and its financing

The spectrum of problems is confirmed by the Nebraska roadway study consultants in a $450 000 report financed by the Nebraska Legislature

The study findings

The average mile on this giant system carries 316 cars daily The state highway system is the hub It represents 10% of the mileage carries 61% of the statewide traffic and averages 2 031 vehicles a mile daily

At the other end are county roads with 83% of the mileage carrying 10% of the traffic and averaging only 39 vehicles a mile daily

In between are the municipal streets They are 8% of the statewide mileage account for 28% of the total travel and average 1 141 cars per mile daily

Forty per cent of Nebraska's entire mileage of highways roads and streets are inadequate for today's traffic

About $1 37 billion is needed to erase the existing backlog of roadway deficiencies

An additional $583 million will be needed in the next 12 years to replace presently acceptable highways streets and roads

Forty per cent of the total roadway program needs are within municipal boundaries

All the figures above are based upon 1965 construction prices Since 1965 construction costs have already risen about 20%

ANNUAL COST	ALL HIGHWAYS ROADS STREETS
Rural	$ 94 3 950 [illegible]
Urban	63 9 [illegible] 50
Total	$158 271 200

20 YEAR COST	ALL HIGHWAYS ROADS STREETS
Rural	$1 866 [illegible] 9 000
Urban	1 8 66 000 [illegible]
Total	$3 165 42 000 [illegible]

The study recommendations

1 Mileage responsibility should be allocated to the most effective responsive governmental level

2 Cost of facilities must be fairly allocated between beneficiary users and the public at large

State Highways

The study findings

45% of Nebraska's state highway system is inadequate for today's traffic

735 bridge structures are currently inadequate

All but 10% of the existing State Highway Sysetm will require improvement over the next 20 years

$614 million will be needed to raise the completed system to acceptable standards of adequate

24% of the state highway system's expenditures or $20 million annually over the next 20 years should be spent in municipal extensions of the stateways in cities

STATE HIGHWAYS
Average Annual Needs

	Rural	Municipal	Total
Interstate	$ 8 002 830	$ 2 806 590	$ 10 809 420
Expressways	6 [illegible]	5 [illegible] 500	11 94[illegible]
Major arterial	44 481 [illegible]	12 93 [illegible]	57 419 000
Other arterial	6 392 [illegible]	0	6 392 750
Total	$ 6[illegible] 668 00[illegible]	$ [illegible] 899 340	$ 86 567 340
12 Year Cost	$ 8[illegible] 01[illegible] 000	$2[illegible]	[illegible] 608 000

The study recommendations

1 Construction and maintenance of municipal extensions of Interstates expressways and major state arterials should be the financial responsibility of the State Dept of Roads This reverses a 25 year administrative policy of the state highway department requiring urban cities of over 5 000 population to pay with municipal tax funds for the construction and maintenance of the state highways inside their borders

2 The Dept of Roads should officially designate new state built expressway system of 482 mileage (greater than 478 miles of Interstate) The Dept of Roads should have the legal power to acquire full sufficient right of way for eventual controlled access multi lane facilities This right of way should be purchased even though traffic at the time may warrant only two lane construction

3 The state highway system should connect with every incorporated place of 100 or more population

4 The size of the state highway system should be legally restricted to 10 000 miles The present provision for adding 50 miles per year to the system should be repealed

5 The State Highway System should serve all major recreational areas of the state

6 The Dept of Roads should expand its present biennial published planning program to cover a period of at least five years to develop better long range planning and lead time for design and right of way purchase

7 A 12 year catch up program should be adopted for the improvement of the state highway system by complete elimination of the backlog of inadequate highways If adopted the entire State Highway System would be at or above acceptable standards of service by 1978

Municipal Streets

The study findings

41% of all municipal streets in Nebraska are inadequate

4[illegible] of all municipal arterials are inadequate

49 of the dollar total roadway program needs of the entire state are within municipal boundaries

54% of the state's population lives in municipalities with population over 2 500

The total 20 year program within municipalities to eliminate the backlog of inadequate streets will cost $1 278 665 000

More than 2 000 miles of new streets will need to be added to the existing 6 100

Also $ 8 3 million needs to be spent over 20 years on extensions of the state highway system inside municipalities

Average annual need for the recommended municipal street program are $49 million over a 20 year period $13 million higher than present expenditures of $36 million per year

City Streets	Annual Urban Cost	20 Year Urban Cost
Expressways	$ [illegible] 314 000	$10[illegible] 280 000
Major Arterial	1 3 2 0 [illegible]	3 46 [illegible] 000
Other Arterial	6 [illegible] 200	12 [illegible]04 000
Collector	6 466 4[illegible]0	129 329 000
Local	31 81[illegible] 800	[illegible]16 316 000
TOTAL	$49 1 9 00 [illegible]	$983 19[illegible] 000

The study recommendations

1 Every municipality over 2 500 population be legally required officially to designate an arterial street system using a functional classification

Development of the arterial and collector systems should have the highest priority within the city

Municipalities should be legally required to restrict the expenditure of federal and state highway user grants in aid to the designated arterial

4 Municipalities should adopt adequate design standards for streets

5 Smaller municipalities under 2 500 population unable to organize and finance an efficient street program should be permitted and authorized to enter into agreements with their county to pay the county for assuming and implementing the responsibility for building and maintaining the smaller municipality street

6 Construction and maintenance of municipal extension of interstate expressways and major state arterials should be the financial responsibility of the State Dept of Roads reversing past administrative practice of the department

County Roads

The study findings

40% of all Nebraska's county roads are inadequate

[illegible]% of principal county roads are inadequate

Total needs for the county road system are $930 million over the next 20 years

Of the 34 [illegible]43 miles of deficient roads 70% of the mileage needs reconstruction consisting of widening and realignment

The classification study reveals a need for many counties to reevaluate the designation of public roads The study found an estimated 4 594 miles of public road not being used

Nebraska's 87 000 miles of county roads are not presently grouped in a functional classification

School consolidations are placing added burdens on county roads as they must be able to transport students in all types of weather

There are 14 200 miles in the Federal aid Secondary System And 1 000 of these miles should be removed from the FAS system and 1 300 other miles should be retained

The 20 year improvement program set for counties called for annual expenditures of $46 6 million per year $10 million more than the $36 million current expenditures by county government for roads

County Roads	Annual Rural Cost	20-Year Rural Cost
Other Arterial	$ 5 87[illegible] 000	$117 510 000
Collector	12 02[illegible]	240 [illegible]17 000
Local	30 18[illegible] 000	[illegible]03 700 000
TOTAL	$48 087 850	$961 7[illegible]7 000

The study recommends

1 The counties should be required by law to officially designate a system of principal county roads based on arterial and collector functional classification studies and to file in compliance at the penalty risk of losing State aid

2 Development of a principal road system should have the highest transportation priority

3 The counties should be required to restrict the expenditure of federal and state highway user grants in aid to principle county roads

4 County Commissioners or Supervisors should be given more discretionary authority to determine which roads need to be abandoned, and to take abandonment action

5 The counties under the Supervisor system should assume the responsibility for township roads along with corresponding taxing authority

6 The counties under the Commissioners system should consolidate the road programs of the three individual districts under one county roads department

7 The counties should seek professional direction of their road programs.

The validity of whether Nebraska's 20-year roadway needs are $3 2 billion as appraised by the consultant, nothing or something in between rests on your agreement with the process of classification and measurement

What is the road supposed to do and how well engineeringwise does it accomplish the assigned purpose? The roadway to serve the individual farmer is one extreme the roadway serving 33 000 commuting vehicles a day in a metropolitan area is the other

Forty per cent of the 103 000 miles of highways streets and roads in Nebraska are inadequate for today's traffic according to the Nebraska Roadway Study

This means 41 926 miles need repair or re design to do the job they are supposed to do The deficiencies include

—45 2% of the State Highway System

—39 7% of county road mileage

—40 5% of municipal streets

Each bridge more than 20 feet long was studied and 735 were found inadequate

The key word in determining highway needs is 'adequate'

Consultant Roy E Jorgensen studied in detail 37 000 miles of Nebraska's 103 000 miles of roadways including 37 cities in the most complete independent study of Nebraska's roads in 100 years

Each segment was assigned a purpose by classification and then given engineering measurements to assess its fulfillment

In this study all Nebraska roadways were divided into small segments Each segment was then examined and rated according to its physical condition design and traffic capacity If a segment met design standards in all respects and conditions were like new the segment would receive a rating of 100

The study consultants realizing it is not economically feasible to keep all parts of the system in a like-new (100 points) condition determined a rating level at which a piece of roadway could be labeled adequate

The passing score between adequacy and inadequacy was 70 for county roads and streets and 80 for state highways

The cost of the work necessary to bring a highway up to a rating of adequate is the basis for the cost estimates of the needs The average improvement cost to bring 41 296 miles of presently inadequate highways up to adequate for $1 4 billion dollars is $35 000 a mile Maintenance costs run from $840 to $6 270 a mile annually depending upon the surface and use

Classification is particularly important in Nebraska because there are many parallel highways streets and roads that have the potential of providing the same traffic service

A classification can help establish cost benefit priorities for the use of available highway funds within each administrative jurisdiction

The study grouped Nebraska's roads into the six functional classifications

1 Interstate — I 80 spans Nebraska from east to west generally 7 785 average vehicles daily

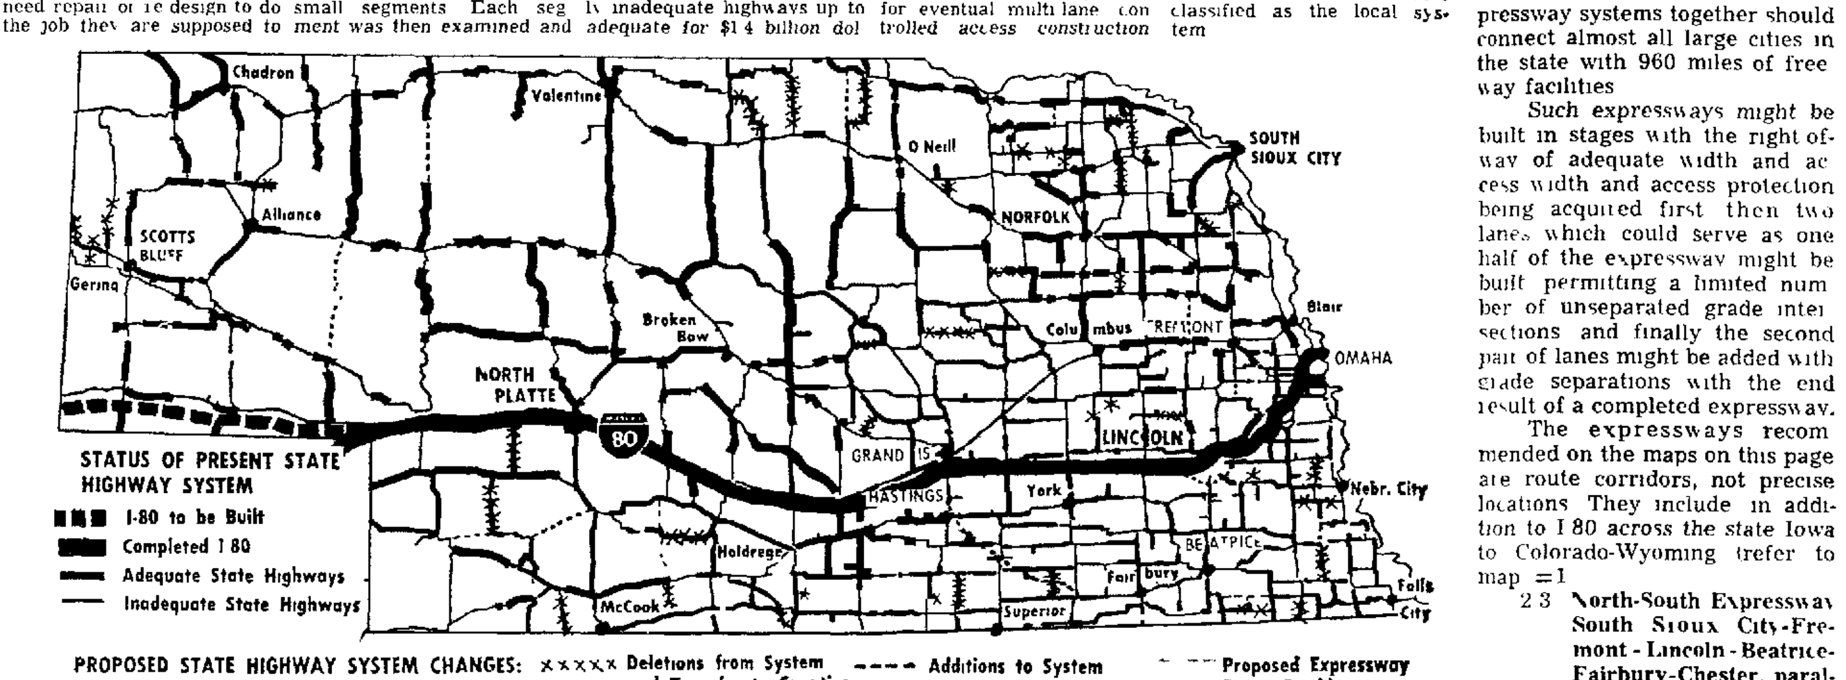
2 Expressways — a system of roads and streets planned for eventual multi lane controlled access construction generally 5 100 average vehicles daily

3 Major Arterials — the system of roads and streets serving the major traffic desires of Nebraska This system generally is characterized by two lane higher operating speed design, and generally 1 663 average vehicles daily

4 Other Arterials — roads and streets having more regionally oriented travel characteristics connecting small communities commercial centers or recreational areas and generally 1 015 average vehicles daily

5 Collectors — roads and streets serving the function of gathering traffic from the local roads and streets and feeding it onto the arterial system generally 3 582 average vehicles daily

6 Local — the remaining roads and streets all are classified as the local system



Recommended state highway system consists of 9 343 miles of the most important trafficways of the states in and out of the cities serving every incorporated municipality of 100 or more and all major recreational areas Wider lines indicate proposed expressways The total statutory limit proposed for the state highway system was 10 000 miles with a recommended repeal of the present legal right to add 50 miles each year to the system A total of 657 miles reserved for future needs is unallocated

Recommended Additions, Deletions to Highway System

By HAROLD SIMMONS

A total of 777 15 miles of highways are recommended either to be added or deleted in the new State Highway System outlined by consultants in the Nebraska Roadways Study

Added are 200 3 miles of highways or 4 lane expressways to the system meeting the study's requirements of routes of state wide importance Deleted are 576 85 miles from the existing state highway system because they are too local or low in traffic volume to meet requirements

The report is merely a recommendation without any force of law and can only be implemented by approval of the Unicameral highway study committee and by express action of the Legislature in the form of a bill adopted

Removal of a road off the state highway system does not remove nor eliminate the road It merely transfers the road from the state to the county for ownership and maintenance at whatever standards the county elects to have and pay for

Transfer of highway mileage from the state to counties by the Legislature occurred on two previous occasions In 1938 the Unicameral reduced the state highway system from 11 209 to 8 627 miles and in 1955 from 10 093 to 9 250 miles

The new system would contain 9 342 91 miles of highway compared to the present 9 500 plus mile system

Every incorporated municipality with 100 or more population and all major recreational areas in Nebraska would be served by an ultimately hard surfaced state highways under the new system

Many deletions and additions proposed are under 20 miles

Southeast Nebraska Changes

State 79 north of Lincoln would be extended from North Bend to Snyder some 18 miles and state 4 would be relocated direct east from Burchard to Wymore under the proposals

State 61 would be connected through Cherry County between Merriman and Hyannis closing a void of some 25 miles

State 27 would be extended some 44 miles between Oshkosh and Ellsworth on State 2 filling this void in this highway

The roadways study said it is important that future routes added to the highway system meet classification requirements to avoid dispersion of funds which restrict development of more important routes

Since the routes recommended for deletion do not greatly affect State Highway Dept financing and administration it said it is not critically important that such roads be deleted from the system immediately

The study suggested a minimum of hardship in transferring such roads to local control could be attained if the state completed construction improvements before transfers — presumably at standards of need for county primary roads concrete or macadam

An exact listing of mileage and location of routes recommended for addition or deletion specifically was not included in the study one consulting engineer said because it is not considered to be of paramount importance

Apparent changes mileage and routes below were compiled unofficially by comparing maps of the recommended state highway system with official present state highway road system maps Southeastern counties are in boldface

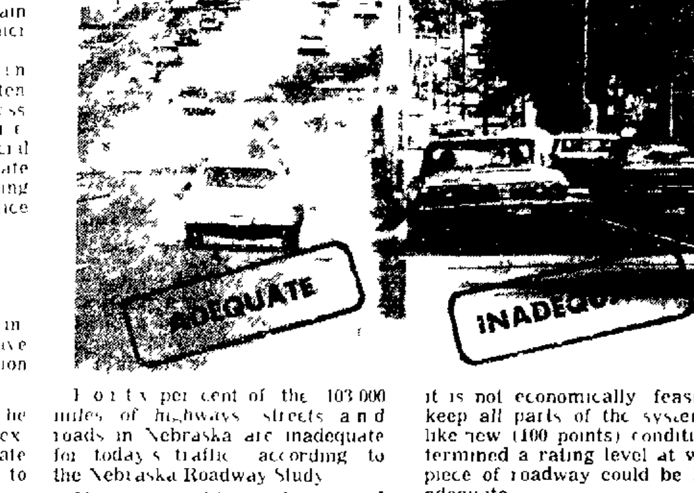
Adequacy Ratings



Forty per cent of the 103 000 miles of highways streets and roads in Nebraska are inadequate for today's traffic according to the Nebraska Roadway Study

This means 41 926 miles need repair or re design to do the job they are supposed to do The deficiencies include

—45 2% of the State Highway System

—39 7% of county road mileage.

—40 5% of municipal streets

Each bridge more than 20 feet long was studied and 735 were found inadequate

The key word in determining highway needs is 'adequate'

In this study all Nebraska roadways were divided into small segments Each segment was then examined and rated according to its physical condition design and traffic capacity If a segment met design standards in all respects and conditions were like new the segment would receive a rating of 100

The study consultants, realizing it is not economically feasible to keep all parts of the system in a like new (100 points) condition determined a rating level at which a piece of roadway could be labeled adequate

State highways with a rating above 80 were called adequate Municipal streets and county roads were termed adequate if they had a rating of 70 or better

The adequacy ratings developed in the study are similar to the sufficiency ratings employed by the Dept of Roads

Sufficiency ratings measure the condition economic factors safety and service of each mile of road A rating of 85 or better labels a road adequate Traffic capacity is not used in the ratings

The sufficiency ratings are required by law to determine construction priorities for the spending of available road funds On the other hand the adequacy ratings were designed to show highway needs as a basis for future revenue provisions.

New Expressway Concept of 482 Miles

The road study adopts the concept of the need of state-built expressways for higher volume lines of traffic desire, a concept already in practice in Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, and Missouri These 4 lane, controlled-access expressways would be similar to interstate highways and the highest traffic ones might even be eligible for any future expansions of the interstate system These expressways would be financed entirely as state highways on a 50% federal matching basis in contrast to the present 90% federal financing used on the interstate system

The Interstate and an expressway systems together should connect almost all large cities in the state with 960 miles of freeway facilities

Such expressways might be built in stages with the right of-way of adequate width and access protection being acquired first then two lanes which could serve as one half of the expressway might be built permitting a limited number of unseparated grade intersections and finally the second pair of lanes might be added with grade separations with the end result of a completed expressway.

The expressways recommended on the maps on this page are route corridors, not precise locations They include in addition to I 80 across the state Iowa to Colorado-Wyoming (refer to map =1

2 3 North-South Expressway South Sioux City-Fremont - Lincoln - Beatrice-Fairbury-Chester, parallelling existing state highways.

6 North-South 'Y" Spur Hebron-Hastings Grand Island , a new addition to the state highway system

5 North South expressway Omaha Offutt Plattsmouth Nebraska City Falls City parallelling existing US 73 75

4 East West Expressway Omaha Fremont Columbus Grand Island, parallelling US 30

2 Loup Expressway around Lincoln as a perimeter beltline louping city

COMPARISON OF AUTOMOBILE REGISTRATION FEES AND TAXES 1964

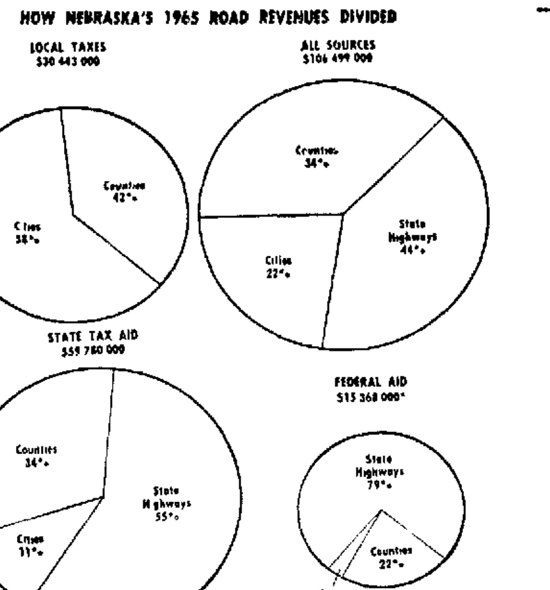
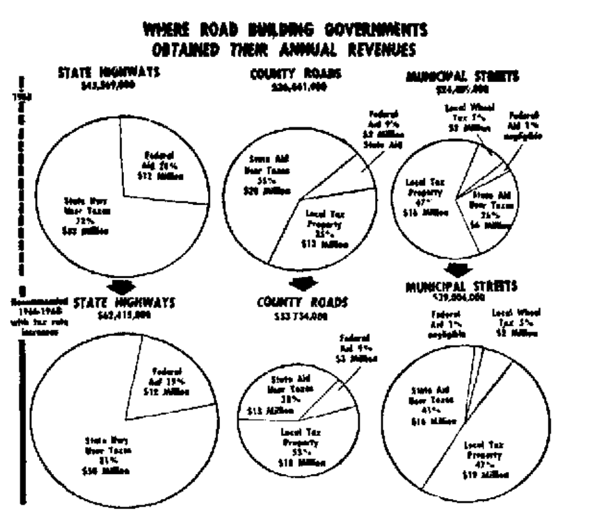
HOW NEBRASKA'S 1965 ROAD REVENUES DIVIDED





Municipal Needs Stressed in Revenue Plans

Once statewide roadway needs are established at tacking the roadway problem shifts from engineering to fiscal techniques

How do the revenues available compare with the levels of need?

Since a shortage of revenue to needs is almost universal how do you raise revenue to close the 'revenue gap'?

What is a fair allocation of revenues in short supply between the several road building governmental levels?

What is a fair contribution of revenues between passenger car, truck users and the public at-large benefiting from a transportation economy even if one never drives a vehicle on a Nebraska roadway?

If there is a revenue deficit, what about the economics of credit borrowing financing?

How does one weigh the intangible contributions of adequate highways in keeping youth in Nebraska generating economic activity and higher payrolls, or attracting more industry?

These are the problems tackled by economic consultant Wilbur Smith and Associates of South Carolina Smith raises the question

State Underpay on Roads?

Is Nebraska behind in roads because its people contribute less tax revenue for roads than those in other states whose road programs outpace Nebraska?

Consultant Smith's general answer is 'yes'

Nebraska's car driver generally pays less toward the privilege of having a road to drive on than his counterpart in neighboring states whose road problems are comparable to Nebraska

Secondly, Smith finds that Nebraska highway user taxes (gas and registration fees) have increased less percentagewise than any of its neighbor states

So Smith concludes part of the problem is that Nebraskans have been underpaying towards roads A Nebraska passenger car driver for instance averages paying $56 in user taxes when its road needs dictate a desired rent of $76 — a $20 gap

Consultant Smith measures the state's revenue deficit between total revenues (total of federal aid state taxes and local taxes) and road needs thus

Annual Amounts In Millions
20 Year Needs	$ 145
Existing Revenue	$ 106
Revenue increase with rising economy without any rate increases 1966 1986	$ 15
Revenue Rate Hike on existing user taxes	$ 14
Deficit?	$10-13

This deficit, if any, would be liquidated by the annual estimate apportionment for Nebraska of $23-$25 million of federal revenue from the Federal Highway Trust Fund after 1973 when the present interstate program is completed, discounted for its not commencing until 1973

Consultant Smith sees county property tax increases ahead as well as additional wheel taxes increases to be levied by Lincoln and Omaha

If another $2 8 million is needed, Smith urges Nebraska to commit the sales tax from new and used vehicles to road purposes At the present time the public at large through the state general fund pays not a nickle towards any roads for Nebraska leaving road costs entirely to be paid for by the highway user Yet Smith maintains the benefits of everyone in roads is worth a non user contribution of at least 25% of road costs

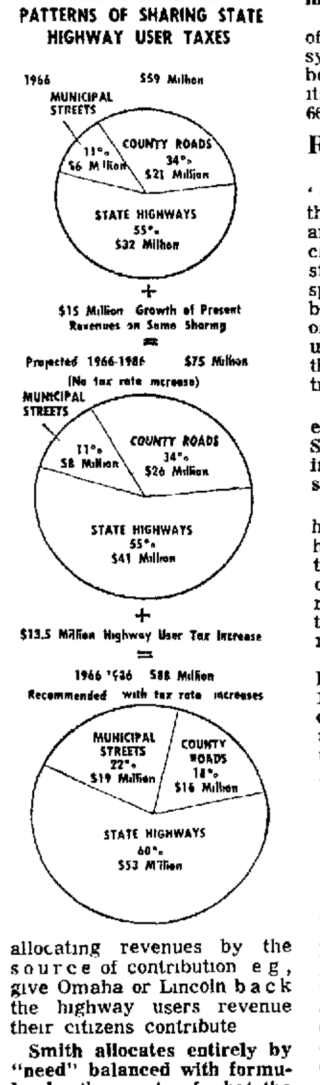
Smith computes the 25% non user benefit by accounting allocation formulas

Another possibility for $1 million of extra revenue would be to hike the drivers license fee from $3 to $5

Who Gets Road Revenues

On the question of allocating revenues by need or by contribution source Consultant Smith does not even dignify by discussion the idea of allocating revenues by the source of contribution e g, give Omaha or Lincoln back the highway users revenue their citizens contribute

ANNUAL STATE AID PATTERNS OF SHARING STATE HIGHWAY USER TAXES



Smith allocates entirely by "need" balanced with formulas by the equity of what the user versus the non-user should pay

The shift of distribution of state aid revenues between road-building government levels is obviously a political question greatly affecting the revenues of each level of government

Smith throws the greatest shift of state dollar aid need to the cities first, and to the state highway system secondly asserting that the counties have the least case on relative 'need'

Analyzed further Smith gives virtually all the benefits of redistribution of revenues to the cities over both the state highway system and counties This requires a two step analysis

First Smith recommends doubling the in cash state aid given cities from 11% to 22% while increasing the state aid share to the state highways from 55% to 60% The share of the counties would be dropped from 34% to 18%

Secondly, Smith recommends the state highway system assume the financial responsibility for constructing and maintaining the state highways portions within those cities over 5 000 This is a first in Nebraska!

This road building obligation is the equivalent of up to 25% of the cost of the state highway system annually A fifth of 60% (the state always did assume this obligation in cities under 5,000) is about 12 percentile points. Hence the state highway system gets a net 48% for rural highway responsibility. This would be 7% percentile points lower than today's state highway share of 55% but would be applied on a much larger revenue take

This same transfer of a revenue share in the in kind form of road building and maintenance adds to the 22% cash state aid share of the cities of about 12 percentile points in the form of in kind aid, not formerly rendered

Thus the net "urban" share of state highway user taxes may be closer to 34%

Meantime the 'rural' share of the rural state highway system plus the county has been in effect lowered from its present 87% to a 'net' 66%

Rural or Urban Get $1

Since the push to get the 'farmer out of the mud' in the period around 1948 rural areas have been the beneficiaries of the giant slice of state highway user taxes despite the state's growing urban majority the disparity of construction costs between urban and rural areas and their divergent disparity of traffic volumes

Positively recommended for elmination by Smith is the Schroeder Mail Route Graveling Act which gave a 1/15 gas share to counties

'This provision of the laws has served its purpose and highway user funds (to county) should be concentrated on the improvement of the recommended principal county system" concludes Smith report

Smith counsels the state highway system should have 12 years and the cities and counties 20 years to amortize the cost of catching up their backlogs of inadequate roadways And 20 years is about the service life of a road So the cycle will then start again

Bond Issue? How?

A bond financing is definitely recommended by Smith in order that Nebraskans can have the benefits of constructing a modern highway system now The benefits recited by Smith include reduction of accidents saving of time and vehicle operating costs and avoidance of inflation's effects

Smith states that the cost of the ravages of inflation with higher highway building costs would carry the substantial part of any $200 to $250 million bond issue without any real cost to taxpayers for interest, since inflation is mathematically a greater compounding factor than interest

To complete all state highway improvements in 12 years would require in addition to tax increases a bond authorization of $204 million

Nebraska presently has a constitutional prohibition against borrowing Smith notes the necessity either to amend this provision or to use a quasi public authority to issue bonds Such an authority would build and lease the built roads to the state for rent and from this rent service the debt principal and interest (around $150 million)

Smith's studies completely ignore the turnpike authority option urged by Sen Henry Pedersen of Omaha

The consultant report notes that the question of and types of bond financing is a decision for the Legislature Smith is definite only on the statement that 'creation of public debt for capital investments can be considered a proper use of credit' by Nebraska

By recommending that the state aid to counties be used on the county primary system rather than county local roads Smith in essence is making an unstated recommendation that local county roads be paid for by greater use of the county property tax by property owners

On the subject of how to allocate the share of all the counties between the counties Smith elected to ignore climatic and topographic factors and distribute aid to all counties on the [illegible] of federal and secondary formulae an equal weighting of area rural population motor vehicle registrations and value of farm products sold

Distribution of estate aid to the cities within cities by straight population alone was recommended by Smith.

12-Foot Lanes Get Additional Support

Nebraska Roadway Study Urges Expressway, Major Street Use

Additional support for 12-foot lanes as minimum design standards for municipal streets has come from the Nebraska Roadway Study prepared by consultants Roy Jorgensen and Associates.

The study recommends 12-foot lanes for expressways and major streets but adds 11-foot lanes may be used in business areas "in extremely tight right-of-way conditions."

City Engineer Richard Erixson says Lincoln has not been building 12-foot lanes since the City Council has supported a 11-foot lane policy on city arterials except expressways like East O Street.

The recent Lincoln Metropolition Area Transportation Study also recommended 12-foot lanes for Lincoln arterials and collectors streets while City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger and other public works officials also have recommended 12-foot lanes.

Shoulders Paved

The roadway study recommends paved shoulders (4-foot left and 10-foot right) instead of curb and gutters for expressways and curbs for major streets in business and residential areas.

Erixson said barrier curbing for city arterials would allow 12-foot lanes, two feet more than 11-foot lanes which can leave only four 10-foot lanes after a center safety margin separation of one foot and the 1½-foot drainage gutter which many motorists avoid driving on.

Acting Public Works Director Robert Obering, who was on a technical committee working on the Nebraska highway needs appraisal, said the 12-foot lanes were recommended in the roadway study because they would handle more volume, were more desirable and were a requirement on certain federal aid projects like East O St.

Obering says it depends on each individual street project on how much more it will cost to go from 11-foot to 12-foot lanes.

"I think it would be 10% and up," said Obering. "The additional cost depends on such items as right-of-way problems."

48-Foot Width

Holsinger, Obering and Erixson have said they support 48-foot width because the extra four feet will carry between 7% and 11.5% more traffic, speed driver's time, contribute to safety, help to keep auto insurance premimums lower and annually deliver more traffic service.

The City Council since February, 1966, generally has favored a 44-foot (11-foot lanes) width rather than the 48-foot width (12-foot lanes) strongly recommended by the city's Traffic and Public Works departments.

The street width issue has had a stormy city history since 1963.

Councilman Ervin Peterson, a builder, long has been a strong supporter of the 44-foot width, especially on non-expressways.

Peterson says by using the 44-foot width the city at times can save right-of-way costs, prevent removal of commercial development on some large street improvements and save funds to do other needed street improvements.

Gutter Curb Use

Supporters of 44 feet, including Peterson, have contended that by use of the gutter curb a 44-foot arterial gives four lanes of 11 feet.

Peterson also feels that the extra cost between 44-foot and 48-foot is more than 10% higher, the State Highway Dept., in some intances, is still using 44-foot pavement and it's important to do street improvement properly so you dont have to redo it.

Peterson also said that he has been talking with the Public Works Dept. in hope of working out some compromise that will solve the pavement width issue.

The roadway study gave minimum and desirable widths for medians, the concrete device that separates traffic on such streets as East O St., and Capital Parkway.

On expressways, the study recommends medians width at a minimum of 16-feet and a desirable width of 40-feet.

On arterials for business and residential areas, the median width recommended was a minimu of 14-feet and a desirable width of 30-feet.

NWU Lists Honors Winners

2 Will Share Scholarship

Nebraska Wesleyan University has announced winners in several honors categories and a fraternity affiliation as the semester draws to a close.

Six students have been elected to the NWU chapter of Theta Alpha Phi, national theater honorary.

They are: Jan Koon, Tempe, Ariz.; Terry Peterson, Syracuse; Dean Zingg, Grant; Barbara Godwin, Whitman Air Force Base, Mo.; Angela Griess, Aurora, and Richard Schroeder, Shelton.

A Ponca freshman, Heather Craig, has earned top honors in the theater achievement award competition.

Fifteen other achievement awards were given in recognition of theater service. Recipients were: Angele Griess, Aurora; Terry Peterson, Syracuse; Pat Van Scyoc, Tabor, Iowa; Kathy Good, Central City; Richard Schroeder, Shelton; David Davies, Falls City; Sally Anderson, Lincoln; Roger Cognard, Omaha; Sandra Rhoten, Carlisle, Iowa; Merrie Knight, Syracuse, N.Y.; John Carter, Lincoln; Bob Kirk, Lincoln; Charles Danskin, Lincoln; Mary Miller, Omaha, and Jan Koon, Tempe, Ariz.

Dr. Clifford Fawl, head of the NWU dept. of Psychology, has been granted a year's sabbatical leave for post-doctoral study. His research at the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute in Omaha will be financed by a program sponsored by the Woods Charitable Fund, Inc., of Lincoln and Chicago.

Fawl

The Bishop and Mrs. Kenneth Copeland Scholarship for 1967-68 was awarded to Charles Leypoldt, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Woodrow Leypoldt of Albion, and Heather Craig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Craig Jr. of Ponca.

Phi Sigma Rho fraternity has voted to affiliate as a colony of the Alpha Kappa Lambda national social fraternity.

The NWU colony is the first to affiliate with AKL in Nebraska. The local chapter has 30 members.

Air Guard Has Open House

The Nebraska Air National Guard displayed an RF-84 photo reconnaissance jet Saturday at an open house at the ANG hanger adjacent to the Lincoln Municipal Airport.

The open house, held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., was in conjunction with Armed Forces Day observances.

State Optimists Elect Omahan

Grand Island (UPI) — The State Optimists convention here Saturday elected Dr. Roger Rasgorshek of the Omaha Downtown Optimists Club, district governor for the coming year.

Selected lieutenant governors by the 200 convention delegates are Dr. Harry Baker of Nebraska City, Jerry Loveland of North Platte, Al Fries of West Omaha, Robert Camp of Lincoln and Russ Hassman of Omaha.

Commitments were made by the Nebraska Optimists clubs to send 30 Nebraska boys to Camp Opto at Kansas City, Mo., this summer.

Hastings Pork Inc. Tells Investment

Hastings (AP) — Officials of Hastings Pork, Inc., reported that the firm has already invested some $200,000 on land and buildings they hope to use on the old Hastings Naval Ammunition Depot.

Les Pauley of Hastings, one of three partners in Hastings Pork, said the investment was made last May even though the firm hasn't been assured use of the property.

He said Hastings Pork signed a letter of intent with the Hastings Chamber of Commerce last May with the understanding at that time the land and buildings would be transferred to the firm within three weeks.

Transferred to GSA

The land has since been transferred to jurisdiction of the General Services Administration (GSA), and the Nebraska State Game Commission has questioned the city's right to acquire the land.

Game Commission Director Mel Steen said he would take the issue to Congress. Steen wants 4,000 acres of the land, including the 1,100 earmarked for the swine operation.

The GSA on Apr. 28 recommended that the land be transferred to the city. That recommendation now is in the hands of the joint congressional Government Operations Committee, which has set 35 days from Apr. 28 to receive comments or objecitons to the proposal. If objections are received, and Steen said they will be, the committee will hold a public hearing on the transfer.

Nebraska Supreme Court

Ruling Could Affect Mill Levy Ceiling Formula

By LEO SCHERER

The Nebraska Supreme Court's rollback of property valuations could have an important effect on Lincoln's city government mill levy ceiling formula including a lower formula base and less tax-supported, general purpose funds available for next fiscal year beginning Sept. 1, 1967.

This is the feeling of veteran City Finance Director James Mallon who says he will give immediate study to aspects of the court's ruling as it involves Lincoln.

Mallon is expected to discuss the court's action with Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and City Council members in the near future since the city's proposed 1967-68 city budget now is being formulated even though a tax ceiling can't yet be determined for next fiscal year.

Due to the court's action, it is possible that Lincoln's city government could lose up to $80 million of assessed valuation in real estate from its total formula amount of $655.9 million, according to reliable sources, since the city uses county valuations on real estate as part of the mill levy ceiling formula.

'Dangerously Close'

If the formula's intangibles are decreased due to the changing stock market and tangibles are greatly decreased due to the court's ruling, the city could be dangerously close to its mill levy ceiling next fiscal year, some city government observers feel.

City government is involved because the city's present charter tax ceiling, approved by the vote of the people in 1951, is figured by multiplying the state-county assessed valuation of all taxable property (tangibles of all classes, intangible property and railroad property within the city) by a 9.75 mill limit set by city charter.

(Unlike some political subdivisions, such as school districts, which can raise their future mill levies to maintain their level of revenue, Lincoln's 9.75 mill levy used to determine its dollar limitation of expenditures for general purposes is set by charter and cannot be increased without a vote of the people to amend the charter mill limit.)

"Any reductions of the county's real estate will certainly mean a lower base for our ceiling," said Mallon. "For example, if we lost $40 million of real estate, this could mean $400,000 off our ceiling."

$1,052,000 Below

Mallon said the court's ruling doesn't affect the city' present city budget but could affect upcoming 1967-68 fiscal year budgeting.

"If we have to cut the ceiling, this could mean less funds available for city government," said Mallon. "I am also expecting a reduction in the amount the city will get from intangibles due the changing market but intangibles aren't affected by the court's ruling."

Noting that the amount of money raised by the city through taxation last year was $1,052,000 below the legal ceiling, Mallon has predicted that in the next fiscal year the city faces a loss in the cushion of an estimated $400,000 because of the drop in the valuation of intangibles.

In its present mill levy ceiling, the city used $216,559,665 assessed real estate valuation returned by the county assessor and this is the only figure of the formula, to determine the sum which the city may raise through a tax on property, that could be affected, says Mallon and other city officials.

$377 Million

A proposed city charter amendment providing for a change in the city government's formula used to determine the tax ceiling was taken off the May 2 general election ballot by the Council after Mallon and others said removal of the amendment was in order since the city will have no emergency next fiscal year and another amendment can be later submitted that will afford for adquate future growth.

Mallon said the proposed amendment would have frozen the valuation of intangibles at the $377 million mark as reported Jan. 1, 1966, for the purpose of determining the maximum amount of money the city can raise through taxation but not the tangibles which includes the real estate.

"Nobody dreamed during the amendment discussion that the court would make this ruling," said Mallon.

Passage of the proposed amendment would have caused the total assessed valuation rate of growth in the future to decrease drastically since intangibles would have been frozen and tangibles (including real estate based on county valuations) would have had to carry the total load.

Goal Is Pacem . . .

Businessmen Plan Unusual Meeting

. . . On This Old Terris

New York — Some prominent American businessmen will participate late this month in an unusual meeting in a city where both hope and frustration charge the quiet atmosphere

These businessmen are among the 400 world delegates invited to the Pacem in Terris convocation at Geneva Switzerland It begins May 28 and ends May 31

The convocation is inspired by the Pacem in Terris, (Peace on Earth) Encyclical issued during the brief papacy of John XXIII

The Pope's encyclical, signed in 1963 dealt with relations among men their rights and their duties as citizens of their nations and conduct of affairs among governments and their peoples

Participants hope to make considerable accomplishments over a short period in a city where disarmament talks have drawn out for years They want to study the requirements of world peace and try to find out how Pope John's call for Peace on Earth can be made a reality

Hutchins Head

The convocation is being sponsored by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions formerly known as the Fund for the Republic Robert M Hutchins president of the center will serve as chairman of the convocation Harry S Ashmore Pulitzer Prize winning former editor of the Arkansas Gazette and now executive vice president of the center will be deputy chairman

Businessmen invited to the convocation by the center do not enjoy the international renown of some of the participants — among them U N Secretary General Thant former Italian President Giovanni Gronchi and four Nobel prize winners — but they command international respect in the field of finance

Among these businessmen are Chester F Carlson inventor of xerography and consultant to the Xerox Corp Walter D Floersheimer senior partner of the brokerage firm of Sutro Bros and Co Edward Lamb head of Lamb Enterprises George P Brockway head of Norton Co Joseph W Brown president of Garden Land Corp Edwin Janss Jr chairman of the board of Janss Investment Co, and attorney Arnold Grant

Range of Interests

They are known for their range of interests in civic and international activities

This convocation is unprecedented " Crane Haussamen, a founder and director of the center said in an interview It won't be like a meeting of governments where ideas go past each other If a delegate doesn't agree with what is being said, he can stand up and speak his mind "

Haussamen, who will help direct the convocation, said the freedom of thought being given to the delegates should make the convocation a lively and productive one

Nineteen delegates will represent Hungary Poland East Germany Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia

U S senators and two members of Congress also will attend and take part in the activities

Water Bad? Drink Wine

New York (UPI)—When an American goes abroad for the first time he generally is advised to be careful about the water he drinks in a foreign land lest it may make him ill

So no matter how good his intentions may be and no matter how well he may behave in the presence of his foreign hosts he invariably hurts their pride when he orders bottled water

Actually the water in most European cities is safe to drink But in some European capitals and even in the hinterlands the myth of polluted water is perpetuated to promote the sale of national or local wines

Thus the bottled water business has flourished in Europe for many decades Vichy is famous for its water Perrier is considered one of the best waters especially for those who prefer the lightly carbonated type Both Perrier and Vichy waters can be purchased in good American restaurants too but they are comparatively expensive

In recent years there has been a trend in the United States toward bottled water Some Americans buy bottled water if their local supply has too many chemicals which ruin the taste There are some too who for personal or religious reasons refuse to drink their local supply if it is fluoridated

John G Scott president of Mountain Valley Water Co of Hot Springs Ark, said in a recent interview that bottled water sales today are about $65 million annually He anticipates the volume will reach $100 million by 1970

Scott said several coffee companies have used Mountain Valley water in demonstrations of their products in new sales areas

"Coffee tastes much better when bottled water is used " Scott said.

There's Hardly an End to the Number and Variety of Trucks That Serve YOU.

'No. 1' Is Still American Trucking Industry's Rank as Transporter of Freight

Washington — The American trucking industry remained the nation's number one transporter of freight in 1966, achieving record-high totals in revenue, ton-miles and vehicle registrations.

So reports American Trucking Trends 1966, yearly report of the Department of Research and Transport Economics of American Trucking Associations and the definitive statistical sourcebook on the industry.

For the fourth consecutive year, revenues of federally-regulated for-hire motor carriers alone exceeded freight revenues of the country's railroads, the publication states.

Trends estimates that final 1966 revenues of Interstate Commerce Commission regulated for-hire motor carriers will top $11 billion, up an impressive $900 million from a 1965 total of $10.1 billion.

Estimated gross revenues for all federally-regulated domestic freight carriers in 1965, according to Trends, totaled $21.1 billion. Division of this total among the various modes was:

Motor carriers: $10.1 billion; 47.9% of total.

Railroads: $9.3 billion; 44.1%.

Oil pipelines: $903.8 million; 4.3%.

Airlines: $464.3 million; 2.2%.

Water carriers: $307.8 million; 1.5%.

"These figures tell only part of the story," the report notes, "since the value of intercity service rendered by private carriage trucks and by intrastate and other trucks not subject to Federal economic regulation also runs into many more billions of dollars per year.

"Virtually all local freight movements are handled by trucks. Our nation spends more, in the aggregate, for truck service than for all other modes of freight transportation combined."

The report estimates that the total intercity ton-miles of all highway carriers last year should exceed 393 billion, an increase of 6% over 370.8 billion ton-miles in 1965.

Intercity ton-miles of Class I, II and III motor carriers (Class I, revenues of $100,000 or more; Class II, $25,000 to $100,000 and Class III, under $25,000), the report said, will probably exceed 140 billion ton-miles in 1966—up an estimated 3% from 136.1 billion ton-miles in 1966.

Total travel for classes of trucks in 1965 rose to over 173.7 billion vehicle-miles, up 9.4 billion from 164.3 billion vehicle-miles in 1964.

Statistics for 1966 show that truck registrations totaled 14.7 million, an increase of more than 600,000 over the previous year.

All trucks paid $3.8 billion in federal and state highway user taxes in 1965—$185 million more than in 1964 and three times what they paid in 1950. The average annual federal and state taxes on typical vehicles were $119 for a pickup truck and $4,038 for a 76,000-pound, 5-axle unit.

Few people realize the impact of trucking on the nation's economy, ATA president Robert H. Cutler points out.

"Employment," he said, "is provided for some 8 million persons, and private and for-hire trucking purchases include 20.5 billion gallons of motor fuel annually, plus 352 million gallons of lubricating oil. Excluding taxes, this amounts to over $4.6 billion.

"An additional $8.4 billion was spent for new trucks and trailers, replacement parts and accessories, and tires and tubes."

Cutler, board chairman of Illinois-California Express of Denver, said: "Such figures almost stun the senses and rightly so because when salaries and wages are added to the expenditure statement, a staggering $63.4 billion is spent annuall for truck service."

Many Trucks Carry 'Money' Into State

Economy . . . money in the bank, money spent, money put to some productive use for the benefit of all concerned.

One aspect of Nebraska's economy is perhaps little realized . . . the statewide and local trucking industries . . . the haulers of most any commodity used by man.

There are some 83,000 perople in Nebraska engaged in the various forms of work surrounding the industry, with an annual payroll of approximately $375 million. They pay annual taxes to the state amounting to about $4.1 million.

The trucking industry average wage is 40.7% higher than the average for all private industry, being $8,000 annually in 1965.

Contributing to the state's coffers are 763 regulated carriers which operate 4,046 separate units. This excludes private intercity or city carriers or farm trucks.

Nebraska has 42 Class 1 and 2 carriers—36 common, one contract and five unclassified.

5,000 Trucks

Registered in Nebraska are 5,000 trucks which fall into the 36-ton class. Average value of one of these tractor-trailers is about $25,000. Each is assessed for tax purposes at $8,750, (35%), and a state mill levy of 66.97 mills amounting to about $576 per unit.

Five thousand tractor-trailers fully licensed at full capacity would pay $810 each for licenses ($4.1 million) and an additional $30 each if each vehicle is licensed with the State Railway Commission for R. C. plates.

Into operational fees, not counting initial costs, are amounts spent by these trucks for fuel. Annually averaging about 4 miles per gallon, these highway monsters burn about 25,000 gallons of fuel a year—and must travel at least 100,000 miles a year to make the operation profitable.

Commercial airlines operating in Nebraska—United Airlines, Fronties, Braniff, North Central and Ozark—have a total physical valuation of $2,438,539: $166,722 is paid in taxes.

Railroads in the state are taxed under a varied county system, each leveling its own percentage on the miles of rail in a given county. About $6 million is paid in taxes by the railroads.

Pipelines carry gas, oil, water and so forth; 22 lines that come under taxation ($1,207,115 per year). This total includes personal property tax assessed to the companies.

Stock Prices Lower

New York (UPI)—The New York Stock Exchange celebrated its 175th anniversary on Wednesday but investors were not in a festive mood and prices pushed lower for the second week in succession.

Investors had little favorable economic news to work with but analysts said selling pressure never was extensive. The decline seemed to be a continued "consolidation" of some of the large gains notched earlier this year.

Traders did not have too much to look forward to when they came to work Monday. The Business Council, made up of leading industrialists, had stated over the weekend the economy may be in for some rough going in the coming months.

Heifers And Fed Steers Higher

Omaha (UPI) — The Livestock Foundation of Omaha said fat cattle receipts last week at the Omaha market ran substantially ahead of a week ago.

Last week's count was still well below the same week a year ago. Demand was broad with both local and order buyers competing actively and prices responded accordingly.

Fed steers and heifers were 50-75 higher with better kinds of both taking the full advance. Week's top on steers 26.40; high on heifers 25.65.

Favorable trade winds kept the butcher market sailing smoothly. Barrows and gilts sold mostly 1.25-1.75 higher. Week's high on butchers 24.50.

Slaughter lamb prices marched right up the hill on early rounds but turned around to march right down again on closing sessions.

Fleming Plans Grocer Show

Fleming Co. is observing Nebraska's Centennial year by sponsoring a Centennial Holiday Jamboree Merchandising Show Sunday for member retail IGA grocers.

The jamboree will be at Pershing Auditorium from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Evening activities will feature entertainment by Rusty Draper and dance music by Bill Albers Orchestra at 8:30.

Headquarters Being Built for Cross-Shield

Omaha — Executives of Nebraska Blue Cross-Blue Shield Insurance Co. of Omaha will occupy new headquarters in June, 1968.

The new three-story building is being constructed on the southwest corner of 72nd St. and Mercy Road. The new headquarters, with 60,200 square feet of floor space, will replace the organization's present one in the Kilpatrick Bldg. in downtown Omaha. Some 160 people will be employed in the new offices.

Million Dollar Honor Given 8

Eight Lincoln life insurance salesmen have been named members of the 1967 Million Dollar Round Table, the life insurance industry's international organization of top salesmen: Carl L. Bartlett, Northwestern Mutual; John D. Campbell Jr. CLSU, Massachusetts Mutual; Kenneth E. Hansen, Lutheran Mutual; Robert E. Thompson CLU, National Life-Vermont; Kenneth G. Witt, Prudential of America; George R. Wright, Connecticut Mutual; and W. Richard Fagan and Ray J. Vavak, both of Mutual Benefit Life.

Oil Discovery Hits 53 Barrels

Denver (UPI) - Consolidated Oil & Gas says its Richland County, Mont., oil discovery well has produced 53 barrels of 49-degree gravity oil from a formation below 12,500 feet.

Earlier the company had announced a flow in the same well at about an 11,000 foot level.

Consolidated holds a one-third interest in the well, operated as a joint venture with Superior Oil Co.

Burchard Lake in Trouble

Still Catching Bass; But No Small Fish

By Chuck Roberts

I'd thrown the purple worm into the same spot a half-dozen times. So had Dennis Unruh but he threw one more time close to the bent branch.

Unruh's purple worm settled to the bottom in six feet of Burchard Lake water. The wind was blowing as it had all day and the line made an arch from the rod tip to the water.

Slowly, with no jerking, the line started tightening up. Unruh came back on the rod as hard as he could. The rod jerked forward and he pulled back even harder.

"He's around the tree . . . he's hung up around it!" Unruh yelled.

The fish had been hooked on the other side of a sturdy stick. Unruh was trying to pull both with the full-bent rod.

He put on the pressure and the fish came loose from the brush and made a fast dash to the left. The line knifed toward the surface and a Big Burchard Bass, too big to get all the way out of the water, rolled on the surface, mouth gaping, and made another dive toward the bottom.

The bronze-back rushed toward the boat, dived under it, and Unruh pulled him back up. I scooped him headfirst into the over-sized net.

He weighed seven pounds and Unruh had a hard time talking. He had just landed the biggest black bass in his fishing career.

Two hours before, I had boated another "Master Angler" bass that weighed five-pounds 4 ounces. All together we had four with the other two weighing in at about three and one-half pounds and the other around four and one-half.

The big one was a fitting climax to one of the toughest days of fishing ever experienced by this angler. After high winds, rain and generally bad weather, even one bass would have looked good.

On two fishing trips to Burchard Lake this year, we have taken 10 bass with five of them going over five pounds. We have taken none under three pounds.

What does this mean? One, that Burchard Lake has some big bass and two, there aren't too many of the little ones in the lake.

Burchard is a very difficult lake to fish. It will make the experienced angler happy sometimes and will usually make the raw beginner want to take up fishing even more seriously.

Burchard is so full of catchable crappie and bullheads that it's almost unbelievable. The only problem is that a fisherman has to look a long time to find one of these species that would measure longer than six inches.

The balance of sizable fish to under-sized fish is bad. Biologists claim that there have been no more than three or four good spawns of bass in the lake since it was stocked in 1959. The bass fry don't have a chance.

A basic "rule" of fish management is that a given body of water will only support so many pounds of fish. A lake can take care of 100, one-pounders or one, 100 pounder but not both.

The last four years of observation at this lake has resulted in the knowledge that crappie there have grown two-tenths of an inch.

In the near future, three to four years, Burchard Lake will be renovated — which means it will be poisoned out and re-stocked.

This has upset a lot of people but the proof is in the catch. The only bass, in the main, that are being caught are over three pounds which indicates there aren't too many small ones.

Following a stocking of northern pike the first week of April, 38 percent of all released fish have been taken by anglers and the tags returned to the Game Commission. It is not known how many were not returned.

Bass fishermen and the good harvest of the largemouths this year are two reasons the lake has not been renovated before now. There's not much there besides bass, with the exception of a few large northerns and 10 to 20 pound yellow catfish. The catfish were put in as a control method on the bullheads and it was illegal to take them from the lake. This has been changed this year due to findings that the catfish didn't control the bullheads. There are too many bullheads.

Until such time as Burchard is renovated and the cycle starts all over, a few big fish will be taken from this lake. There just aren't too many small ones with the exception of bullheads and crappie.

Bobcats Active

Bobcats are most active after dark, and rely on keen sight and smell to stalk their chief prey, hares and rabbits.

Large Village

At one time, a prairie dog village would extend for over a hundred miles, and have more than 400,000 inhabitants.

Over Catch Cost Money

Foster J. Miller, Lincoln, was assessed $10 fine and costs when he was charged with over bag limit of trout. Other recent arrests by Game Commission conservation officers include:

Improperly Equipped Vessel — Donald H. Moon, Lincoln, and Dan M. McLuthe, Gretna, each $10 and costs.

No Boat Registration — Willard P. Spilker, Lincoln, $10 and costs.

Nonresident Using Resident Permit: Rollin L. Gibson (no permanent address), Clarence E. Woods, Shreveport, La., and Charles M. Chapon, Creaskill, N.J., each $10 and costs.

Drinking on State Property: Edward R. Young, Hastings; Walter E. Tallant, Tarkio, Mo., and Robert A. Breitinger, Omaha, each $10 and costs.

Littering: Sharlyn Dahlkoetter, Columbus, $25 and costs.

Illegal Possession of Nongame Bird: Robert J. Brown, Omaha, and Lawrence E. Graarholz, Omaha, each $10 and costs, and William C. Barr, Chappell, $25 and costs.

No Fishing Permit: Lawrence L. Harms, Gretna; Russell A. Mass, Omaha; Thomas M. Voiet, Omaha; Runn E. Peterson, Grand Island; Carl D. Porter, Grand Island; Ray F. Sell, Lincoln; Victor E. Operation Outdoors

By Riley Hall

Nebraska anglers have found that one of the deadliest fish-taking combinations to come on the scene since the advent of worms is the strange marriage of artificial flies and modern spinning gear.

While the tackle involved offers diverse approaches to angling, experts are quick to point out that the combo of weighted streamer flies and spinning gear capitalizes on the best features of each method.

Weighted streamers, forerunners of popular leadhead jigs, have the ability to sink fast to bottom feeding areas, plus the heft necessary to haul out a monofilament line.

Spinning gear, in the hands of the average angler, delivers more accuracy with less effort, so that anyone who has either spinning or spincasting equipment can cash in on the proven effectiveness of this form of fly fishing.

Match Lure Weights

All that's necessary is to match lure weights with lines, determined by the species sought. Muskies naturally require bigger and huskier tackle; bluegills something more delicate.

Fishing with these flies is a matter of making the lure copy the action of the bait it is supposed to imitate.

The woolly worm, a close relative of the streamer clan, merely creeps while the milti-hued patterns with flowing manes job and dip along like minnows or other bait fish.

For do-it-yourselfers, weighted streamers are fun to fashion during the interlude between seasons. They're easy to make, even if one hasn't been exposed to fly tying.

Weight Application

Weight is applied by several means. Lead wire is simple to handle; just wrap enough around the hook's shank to provide the desired weight, and finish off the body to suit.

Lead can be poured around the shank and then painted to function as the body, or extra lead can be moulded on the side of the shank opposite the barb to make it ride upright.

The weighted fly merits consideration, and its "ways" with fish are no longer the "exclusives" of fly fishermen.

Muzzle-Loading Shooting Matches Slated in June

Black powder by the bucket will be burned as buffs of the muzzle-loading era vie for shooting honors during Centennial NEBRASKAland DAYS in Lincoln June 18 through 24.

Shoot-outs will take place in rifle, pistol, and scatter-gun categories on opening day of the annual celebration Sunday, June 18, at the Lincoln Isaak Walton League grounds on North 48th Street. Watching these shooters reload their ancient weapons is half the fun—when they can be seen between the clouds of smoke.

Muzzle-loaders will start inflicting powder burns on the atmosphere during the sighting-in sessions at 8 a.m. The blue-rock shoot will start at 9 a.m. Another sighting-in will begin at noon, followed by the rifle match at 1 p.m., and pistol shoot at 5 p.m.

Other NEBRASKAland DAYS events are moving into the final stages, with two parade categories already closed to further entries. These are the marching band and horse riding units. Entries in all other categories, including floats, can be registered until May 31.

Floats from communities, towns, cities, counties, and areas will be in the Nebraska division.

State Parks Show Large Visitor Increase

Nebraska's state parks have shown a greater increase in use by overnight visitors in recent years than any other of the western states, according to studies by the Western Council for Travel Research.

Nebraska ranked No. 1 among the 24 states involved in the study, the Game Commission notes. Overnight visits to the parks jumped 131 per cent from 1963 through 1965. The next best state was Missouri, which recorded a 31 per cent gain. Hawaii dropped 40 per cent.

The schedule of solunar periods for the following week as printed below has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your day so that you will be fishing good territory, hunting good cover during these times if you wish to find the best sport that each has to offer. The tables are not a guarantee you will catch fish or see game during the period, however.

The major periods begin at the time shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter, and are in black-face type. The minor periods are somewhat shorter in duration.

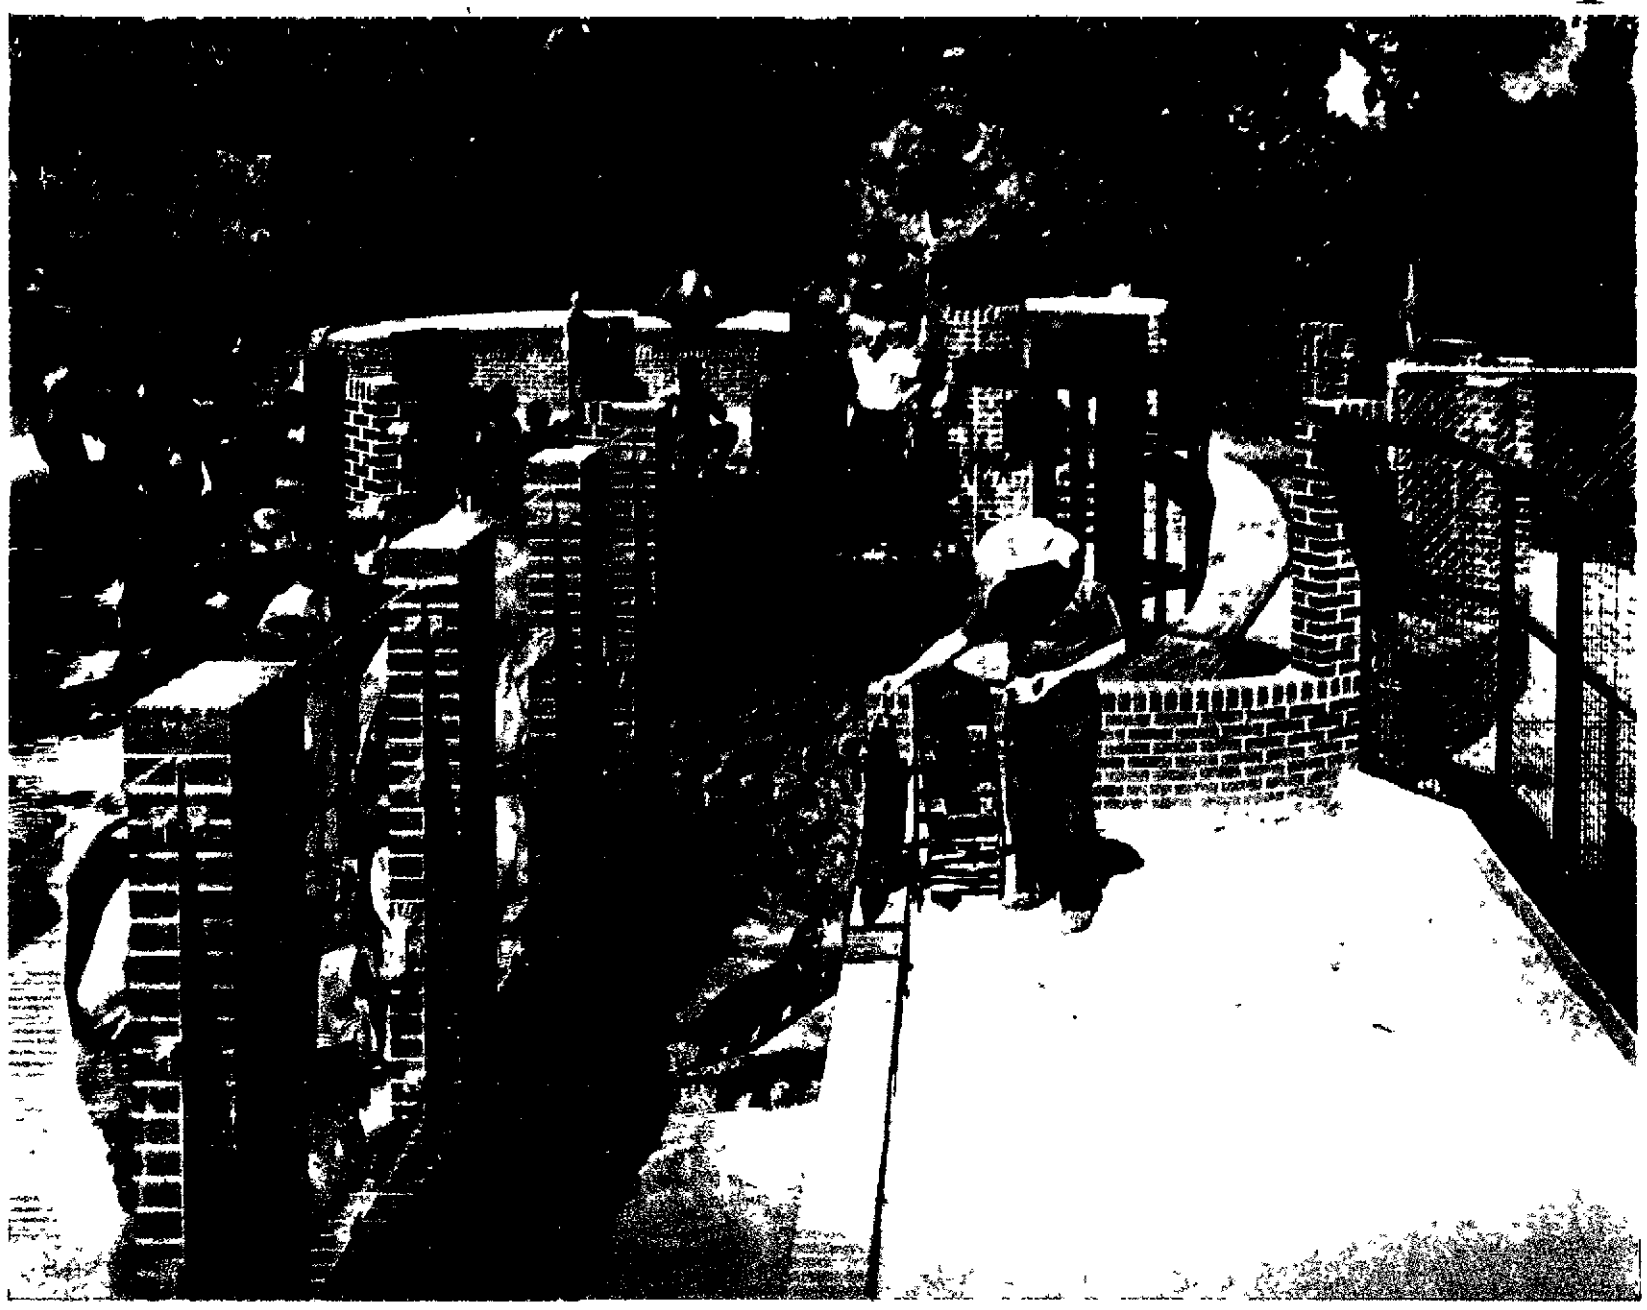
'Best Idea Since Ice Cream Cone' Opens Saturday



Though otter feeding time is exciting the little animals are shy and lightning-fast and it took a great deal of patience on the part of Jack Riggle to get this picture of Darold Fletcher, animal superintendent, feeding the otter at Lincoln Children's Zoo.

By JAN BURNS

The Children's Zoo—best idea since the ice cream cone—opens its third season Saturday

With "Children" right in its name, the zoo can't help being thought of as a treat designed for kids. It is that, it captivates children and each visit is a large-scale adventure for the small size people

But grown ups like ice cream cones as well as kids do—and Children's Zoo figures show that for every child who's been there the zoo has attracted 2 6 adults

Ceremony Planned

Arnott Folsom president of the Children's Zoo Assn said this year's opening will be at 9 55 a m Saturday, when Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf will welcome visitors and the Rev James Stilwell of St Matthew's Episcopal Church will bless the animals

The brief ceremony will go out over loudspeakers from the second story of the Trading Post inside the zoo The zoo gate is to open for the public at 10 a m

Opening day or not, once you're inside the Children's Zoo oh, boy!

It's more than a zoo it's a garden, with many new trees shrubs and flowers added this year it's a setting for sculptures like Ralph Hume's new bronze "Walking Bear cub" a memorial to Mrs George P Abel Sr, and for the fascinating lighted and stegosaurus fountains it's a western town, it's a show place in the entertainment sense with a range from puppets to karate demonstrations

Appealing Animals

Of course it's home for many appealing animals

The three otter—they're the same people-pleasers that starred in Walt Disney's Otter Odyssey"—have a new slide and a springboard this year Raised and trained by otter authority Emil Liers of Homer Minn, the otter—and their Otter Pool—were given in memory of Don W Stewart Jr by the members of his family

Pea-fowl, ducks, exotic chickens and young deer wander through the zoo. Pygmy goats from Africa climb ramps to cross their high bridge

Georgia's Kids Get VISTA Help From Ex-Nebraskan

Veteran first grade teacher Edna Rhea left her comfortable home in Lincoln to move to the wrong side of the tracks in the sleepy southern town of Moultrie Ga

As a VISTA (Volunteer In Service To America) working with the Office of Economic Opportunity for the Moultrie Colquitt area she holds special classes in the Central Elementary School for youngsters whose need for individual attention makes them fall behind in regular classes

She has made more friends among the poor—both white and Negro than she has among the more fortunate For Edna Rhea it is a pleasant new page in her full life time

Mrs Rhea 68 began her teaching career as a girl of 18 in a rural school 15 miles from everywhere" near Chappell She later moved to Meadow Grove where she taught as many as 50 children at a time in one classroom including second third and fourth grades

After three decades of teaching first and second grade in Beatrice and Lincoln she retired in 1964 In those three decades she married raised a son and completed her degree at the University of Nebraska Six months after her retirement her husband died and Mrs Rhea decided she was not ready to give up teaching

Substituting didn't satisfy me" she said VISTA seemed more of a challenge so here I am

Urgent Need

Now in her second year as a VISTA Volunteer she is still teaching the 3 Rs But the task is more difficult and the need is more urgent

A seventh grader who has not learned to read has gone without for too long she says

Her 66 pupils in grades two through seven are the special ones the restless and difficult ones who knew from the earliest grades they were the "dumb kids" Many are from poor families, a handful are on parole for stealing or making obscene telephone calls Almost all are from homes in which the parents' indifference to education has left them to fend for themselves in competition with their more fortunate peers

Mrs Rhea has helped many of these youngsters develop an enthusiasm and performance that other teachers have been quick to notice She works with the parents too getting them to take an interest in their children's efforts and improvement

It seems to have had results One child thought he had improved sufficiently to drop Mrs Rhea's class But he reports that when he announced his intentions to his parents 'My mother yelled at me to get back in that class"

Appreciation comes from students too One sixth grader said You know I'm just beginning to like reading"

Token Integration

Moultrie a town of 15 000 has three white elementary schools now integrated and a large Negro elementary school Since integration began haltingly a few years ago the students who transferred from the Negro school to the white schools have had trouble making the transition

If they can improve their work by extra tutoring their acceptance in an integrated society will be easier So far however there is only token integration and most of Mrs Rhea's remedial pupils are white

Last year after her six week VISTA training in Tallevast Fla the Volunteer was assigned to work in an all Negro child care center in Moultrie When some of the white teachers

'U.S. Women Are Spoiled, Pushy, Beautiful, Smart, Painted Savages'

By Joy Miller, AP

American men, they'd have you believe, cherish one ambition in regard to American women To fall into their arms without falling into their hands

'They have been pampered, spoiled, given most of the worldly things prior to maturing," says a Kansas City business man, divorced a year ago and given to bitter pronouncements about the opposite sex "Therefore, they expect more demand more, than the women of less bountiful societies —although they smell better and bathe oftener"

"They are domineering and outlandishly spoiled I sometimes think woman suffrage was a mistake," says a young Anchorage, Alaska, newsman, who insists he's happily married

'It's the American man's fault for letting her get out of the kitchen" is the explanation of a Buffalo, N Y, father of three

And so it goes with two-thirds of those questioned in a nationwide sampling of male opinion

A majority of the men agreed that American women's good looks and good grooming are the nicest things about them, that women are entitled to equal legal and civil rights — although a goodly number thought they are just too pushy about it—and that the chief cause of the high divorce rate is too-young marriages.

They vociferously applauded miniskirts although many a husband added "but not on my wife!"

They rejected the double standard of morality for men and women Yet they contended that a certain amount of skirt-chasing is normal for the married man

Are today's women as good wives and mothers and homemakers as those of the last generation? There were takers on both sides

Perhaps 80% of the husbands said their marriages are happy Even when they fulminated most vehemently against women they hastened to point out that their wives are an exception

Sometimes it's difficult to decide if the men were talking tongue in-cheek suffering from an Oedipal hang-up or had been mortally wounded by The Woman Bachelors and particularly the divorced men could be venomous

"A woman's place is in the home She should be allowed to go out with her husband on rare social occasions — baptisms, funerals And at all times she should walk two steps behind him" says a California bachelor lawyer, 36

"American women should be beaten regularly and made to feel subservient, then they'll feel feminine. Now they have all the sensitivity of a rock" divorced Detroit lawyer, 29, who says he's newly in love.

Women, though, had a loyal minority following

A young Kansas farmer "If you want a woman to be a servant you should marry an Oriental, a Nordic or a Southern European The American woman has it all over them"

A 62-year old Fairbanks, Alaska, miner who has been married 41 years to the same woman 'As far as American women are concerned, I love 'em all"

Even their detractors admitted that there's an awful lot to appreciate in a woman

"Women round out life and make it full," said a Louisville businessman and widower "Otherwise, we would just have half a life"

A New York state employe spoke for a lot of men when he said he appreciated most about women· "Sex and the American woman's ability to make the most of her looks even when she is downright homely"

Also mentioned were her companionship, sense of humor, frankness, good taste, planning ability, intelligence and education

What don't they like about women?

"The least appealing thing is their independent, sometimes holier-than-thou attitude and their agonizing ability to make men appear so damn foolish," said a recently divorced man

Then there was their perfume, their chewing gum, their conformism, their faddism, their "total preoccupation with appearance" their "over-improvement on nature—they look like painted savages," their gossiping and their insistence on keeping up with the Joneses

The middle class housewife is not nearly so concerned about her husband's welfare as she is about having a fancy house, two cars in the garage, a country club membership and her husband home on time," said a Dallas public relations man

Some men thought women are good wives and mothers but let the homemaking slip because they're working outside the home. "In these changing times you need two incomes in a family," said one man.

"I think my wife compares more than favorably with my mother," said a Hollywood movie writer-producer who has been married 25 years "She's a great deal more self-sufficient"

Ah, but are they as moral?

"They are completely immoral and always were," said a recently divorced man "The only difference is that they are a little bolder about it today"

But an Episcopal minister of Overland, Mo, married and the father of five, decided· "In her way the woman in the United States today is more moral than her mother Today's women are not prudes, but they have done some thinking about what morality is"

Although most men thought a little skirt-chasing is normal for married men, they were skittish about how far it should go.

"Just because you're on a diet doesn't mean you can't look at the menu," a married hopeful said cannily

But a Buffalo citizen summed it up this way "I believe most men brag and pretend they are skirt-chasers when they aren't Skirt chasing is too time-consuming and costly for the average man He would rather sit at home, sip a beer and watch a baseball game on TV"

Most men also would give women equal civil and legal rights and equal pay for equal work

Yet a Kansas City businessman, married and the father of three children, said: "They should be more concerned with being more feminine than worrying about equal rights. They should learn to take care of their man instead of worrying whether they are going to get the same pay."

Some were concerned that women are pushing too hard for such rights

"There is a danger of losing femininity because of this and I think it is happening," said an unmarried Seattle photographer, 22

"Certain groups may be pushing too far, not necessarily because what they want is wrong, but it is sort of like freeing the slaves—I'm not sure we should do it all at once," said a Dallas husband

VISTA Job Not Easy

of the integrated faculty resigned because of their husbands' objections, Mrs Rhea acted as full-time teacher for a few weeks

She recalls one mother whose baby started crying when she saw her The explanation "The baby always cries when she sees a white woman"

That fall she began teaching remedial reading a few hours a day in the elementary school and was so successful that school officials requested her services full time. By the time she reenrolled for her second year in VISTA, she was teaching 13 special classes a day in the Central Elementary School

One problem in teaching older pupils basic reading and writing is relating the classroom activities to the children's own lives

"Tests do not present a true picture," says Mrs Rhea "Their vocabulary is so meager, their experiences so limited"

With a variety of practical activities she introduces them to places and ideas they have never heard about After reading a story about Williamsburg, Va some of the children wrote to the Chamber of Commerce of the colonial city

Easter Chicks

A highlight of the semester was the hatching of chicks in a homemade incubator just before Easter I was met by a whole delegation of children and escorted to my basement room the morning they were hatching she said

On her minimum VISTA allowance, Mrs Rhea lives in an old colonial house surrounded by business establishments and rundown homes She and her roommate Florence Kolar of Grand Rapids Mich share the second floor which looks out on a yard full of camellias and azaleas

When Mrs Rhea first took a camellia to school, only two children knew what to call it Now she brings a flower every day and they learn to identify each new species.

Other surprises make classes fun to her school-weary pupils When a friend from another state sent the children a Negro doll, reactions to the novelty ranged from skepticism to delight

Reactions to herself and her VISTA co workers were equally varied At first, she recalls the people were not friendly

But now," she says we are accepted as individuals and have been invited to several homes for dinner" A member of St Paul Methodist Church in Lincoln, she has also become active in church groups in Moultrie and has been asked to teach a Sunday School class

If acceptance has been slow in the community it has not been so in the schools But sometimes she has doubts

"There is no way to measure the results" she said "Some days are encouraging and other days I wonder if I'm really accomplishing anything"

Dr Jackie Stringfellow acting principal of Moultrie schools has no doubts The teachers notice the difference' she said about her VISTA Volunteer We could use a dozen more like Mrs Rhea

Mrs. Brummer checks her plane.

Teacher Takes Time to Fly

By MARY GUILFORD

When Donna Brummer enrolled in ground school two years ago, she was just doing it because her husband, Maynard, had decided he wanted to learn to fly a plane.

"He wanted me to learn some of the basics," she explained, "so I'd be able to help him when I rode with him."

But that was two years ago, and now after earning her private license, Mrs. Brummer has begun work on a commercial pilot's license. "Mr. Brummer still uses the plane," she laughed. "He uses it a lot for business trips and we like to take it out on weekends."

A teacher at Clinton elementary school, Mrs. Brummer admits that teaching and her activities in the Lincoln Education Assn. and the Nebraska State Education Assn. take up a lot of her time.

Outside Interests

"Teaching can easily be a 24-hour-a-day job," she explained, "and I think it's important to develop interests that take you away from the work you do every day.

"No matter how much you enjoy your job, you can get bogged down and an interesting variety of outside activities can bring new vitality to the work you do."

As a member of the 99s, an organization for women pilots, she is expected to keep up her flying hours. This is no chore for Mrs. Brummer. Her only problem is finding time to fit the hours into her busy schedule.

While she is working on her commercial license, she has a lesson three times a week at the Lincoln Aviation Institute where the Brummers board their Piper Cherokee 235, a red and white, four passenger plane.

Flying Hours Useful

Mrs. Brummer has found that she can use those flying hours in a lot of other ways too. A member of the board of the Women's Division of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, she plans to take her plane to their midwestern conference in Des Moines at the end of this month.

Bad weather prevented her from flying a group to the Beta Sigma Phi State Convention in Grand Island recently. Mrs. Brummer is treasurer of Epsilon Chapter of the sorority. She is going to try again though and is making plans to fly to the regional convention in Kansas City, Kan., this summer.

Mrs. Brummer hinted that one of the reasons she is interested in getting a commercial license is so she might be able to fly as pilot-in-command in the 99 sponsored Powder Puff Derby. Two pilots fly each plane in this annual four-day race, but to be in command, the pilot must have a commercial license, she said.

Co-Pilot First

"I think I'd want to go once as a co-pilot first," she explained. "I've never flown in a race before, but when I have been co-pilot then I'd like to command my own plane."

What comes after her commercial license? Mrs. Brummer is already thinking about an instrument rating, the next phase of a pilot's training. "I definitely do want to go on to get the instrumental rating," she said. "I don't have any plans for it—it's just sort of the next step."

Fashion Designer Marries 'Her Enemy'

By Vic Wilczur, UPI

Paris—Three years ago American Designer Mia Fonssagrives freshly arrived from New York brashly called on leading Paris couturier Louis Feraud and asked him how to break into the French fashion world

Last March 25, she became Madame Feraud

When she married Feraud, 20 years her senior Mia 24 was almost as well known in her own right Her mother was Lisa Fonssagrives one of America s top photographic models in the 1920s and her stepfather was renowned American photographer Irving Penn

Determined

But Mia was determined not to take the easy way out and accept one of several offers she received after attending New York's Parsons School of design for three years

'So I decided to go to the hardest place to break in, Paris ' she said in an interview

The slim long legged Mia recalled how she and Vicky Tiel her best friend and fellow student at Parsons arrived here in 1964

"We came with two sewing machines, three small suitcases, $1,000 and a lot of ambition," she said

Mia said a friend had suggested they call on Louis Feraud

'We didn't even know who he was she confessed

We just walked in and asked for Monsieur Feraud she said

'He suggested that we come back next week and go with him to dinner "

'A Start'

Over dinner Feraud asked them to bring some designs and after seeing those he said he would introduce them in his collection to give them "a start '

'We worked like mad on our designs " she said

According to a fat pile of clips, the show "took the fashion world by storm "

Their first creations included a dress with a neckline plunging down to the navel

Our first things were gag stuff, kooky unsellable " she said of the clothes which fashion writers around the world labelled as the best in 'ye ye" designs

A big break came when Producer Clive Donner asked them to design the clothes for his film 'What s New Pussycat

Vicky and Mia then were commissioned to design clothes for the James Bond film Thunderball "

It included a bikini for Actress Claudine Auger with diamond straps over which she wears a black floor-length boys shirt with diamond buttons

Mia said with a smile that her husband was her competitor "He's the enemy now but only fashionwise " she added

' I dress women up to the age of 25 and then Louis takes over and dresses all those 26 and up," she said.

Masculine Designs

Mia and Vicky are also designing men's clothes for a London shop

' We make very masculine designs " she explained adding that if men could design women's clothes what was wrong with women designing clothes for men?

'And I want to have babies " she giggled "And then branch out into baby clothes "

The wheel of success has turned fully around for Mia and Vicky Hollywood is going to do a film on their success story

Many Animals Delight Visitors

talk to their human friends.

New canopies cover the six climb-in-and-play pens for rabbits, guinea pigs, turtles, puppies, kittens—and a new capybara, representing the South American breed that is the largest existing rodent.

A pair of white-throated wallaby reign in Kangaroo Kourt and a pair of giant bullfrogs have joined the feathered occupants of the walk-through-birdcage.

Among the animals at the farm are a milking (hopefully) goat named Nanny and a pony mare and foal.

In the animal compound, children can feed and pet the sheep, Sicilian donkeys and llama and ride the giant Aldabkera turtles, Slow and Poke.

Many other animals are there to delight the human visitors. And, as for human entertainment, more than 200 acts appeared last year on the stage of the Birdcage Theater and outside in Zooville Square.

This year's shows will include dancers, combos, snake shows, folk-singers, magicians, barbershop quartets, "name-the-animal" guessing contests, readings, fencing exhibitions, "shoot-outs" and "how-to-be-a-cowboy" demonstrations.

The Junior League of Lincoln manages the daily shows in the Birdcage Theater, under the direction of Mrs. Gerald Merritt Jr.

Mrs. Robert Lamphere is director of the twice-weekly Junior League puppet shows.

Helping with the zoo animals again this year are the "zoo boys and girls," students 18 or older who like both people and animals.

Sam Wolff, a zoo boy for two years, is working this season as assistant supervisor. Supervisors are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spencer.

Children's Zoo hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sundays. The zoo is closed Mondays, except May 29, July 3 and Sept. 4, which is Labor Day and the zoo's closing date.

The Iron Horse Railroad will run on the same days and same schedule as the zoo it circles.

'Miss Morissa' To Be Reviewed

"Miss Morissa" by Mari Sandoz will be reviewed by Mrs. Joel E. McLafferty at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the YWCA.

Presiding at the 9:30 a.m. coffee will be Miss Beatrice White and Mrs. H. W. Fouts, Mrs. Harley McCoid, chairman of the book review committee, will preside at the meeting.

The meeting is open to the public.

Quick Trick

No cheese cloth in the house when the recipe says "tie spices in a little cloth bag" so they may be removed from pot after so many minutes in the soup or stew? Cut a small swatch from a fresh disposable towel and tie in the usual manner. The disposable towels are of non-woven rayon in a soft mesh-like texture.

50th Anniversary Told

MALE MODES

Foreign Fashion Designers Don't Find American Males Easy Pickings

The major accomplishment of England's Carnaby Street purveyors-of-Mod was to convince practically every foreign women's designer that there was gold-in-abundance for anyone wanting to tap the men's fashion in this country.

The British had found this one-time "colony" to be easy pickings—even though their tenure-of-popularity on these shores was of short duration.

Now, practically every couturier on the other side of the Atlantic has started designing for the American male. And most of their offerings thus far are unsuitable to our taste and way-of-life.

It would be shortsighted to condemn all foreign designers because of the garish, tasteless and even effeminate ideas of some—but we cannot be optimistic that Paris and Rome designers will ever approach the appropriateness and practicability of U.S.A. men's fashion designers.

Trends

The American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear tells us to watch for "The Relaxed Suit"—suitable for a Friday at the office and informal enough for a weekend in the country.

In other words, a suit (not sportswear) that's equally appropriate for the office or the country.

Have you seen the new printed plaids, stripes, houndstooth and district checks in wide-wale cotton corduroy? They're available in jackets and slacks.

Care of Clothes

Great strides have been made in reducing moth damage to clothes—but results still hinge on the human element. If you've moth-proofed a closet, see that it is opened as rarely as possible during the danger season.

If you can afford to have your good suits hand-pressed, they'll look much better and last longer.

You can still find bicycle clips in the stores, and there's no better gadget for keeping the cuffs of your golf slacks neat—in the rough or on a muddy course.

If you spill ink on a shirt, rinse garment in cool water, wash in hot suds with a few drops of ammonia added and rinse again.

Before using turpentine or cleaning fluid to remove paint stains from clothes, scrape off as much of the paint as possible, gently enough not to damage the fabric.

If you polish your own shoes, dip those little cotton-tipped sticks in the polish, to get at hard-to-reach places between the uppers and the soles.

We know a smart businessman who keeps an extra blue, gray and brown tie in his desk drawer at the office. Then, if the gravy or soup splashes at lunch—he is ready!

Fashion Boosters

While not pioneers, technically, some of our show-business personalities were certainly responsible for popularizing different fashions. Rex Harrison gave a huge boost to the Professor Higgins' cloth hat; Perry Como, the low-buttoned cardigan sweater; Andy Williams, pullover sweaters and "fun hats"; and Fred Astaire, colorful neckwear, silk belts and pastel socks.

With the sizable and continuing strides being made in the development and marketing of clothing made of non-woven materials, one of the brightest aspects of "disposable" apparel is how easy it will be for the traveler of the future.

Sawtimber

In the West, sawtimber from which the region's lumber is produced is defined as trees 11 inches and over in diameter at breast height.

He or she will be spared the ravages of incapable laundries (and at enormous prices) and will not even have to give up, from sightseeing, the little time it takes to launder their wash-and-wear garments.

50-Year Class at LHS

Members of Lincoln High School graduating class of 1917 will meet for a reunion next Sunday.

The idea all started last summer when Oz Black, former Lincolnite now of Denver was here and visited with Mrs. Meda Knapp about the class.

"We ought to have a reunion," Mrs. Knapp suggested. And that was enough to start the ball rolling.

While there is no actual chairman, Mrs. Knapp and Mr. Black have done the organizing, with the help of a committee including Walton B. Roberts, J. Burks Harley, Mrs. Marjorie D. Luby and Miss Grace Stuff.

Members of the class will gather at 6 p.m. at the Cornhusker Hotel for dinner and reminiscing. And, of course, spouses of class members will be among those present.

Change Jobs?

A Lincoln business executive had great admiration for the Health Fair. He enjoyed the exhibits and thought the whole thing very educational and interesting—that is until his elementary school daughter came home after visiting the fair with the suggestion:

"Daddy should stop smoking, stop taking a cocktail and START working at a job at the YMCA."....

A Bit of Ocean in the Desert

Former Lincolnite Mrs. A. LeRoy Ellison reports that if her family can't live on the ocean (because of Mr. Ellison's position with a corporation) at least they can have a bit of ocean at home in Phoenix.

The Ellisons' start of a sea aquarium began quite by chance. After a long weekend spent on the beach of the Gulf of California down Mexico way, the Ellisons were helping kindergartner Adam choose a shell he would like to take for "show and tell."

Suddenly the shells began to thump and move.

You've guessed it, each of the eight shells held hermit crabs.

A dash to the pet shop proved that sea water could be purchased, so the crabs were given their proper atmosphere.

Later trips to the ocean have brought home four small starfish, six tiny 'regular" crabs and several other sfall salt water fish.

"Now we also lug several gallons of seawater back with us," Mrs. Ellison writes.

Histories Are Similar

Church Consolidation Forms Faith UCC

By GWEN DRAKE

Last month two south Lincoln churches within two blocks of each other took the final step toward consolidation and became one church.

The new church, re-named Faith United Church of Christ, (UCC) was born of two old and familiar faces on the Lincoln church scene . . . Salem (UCC) and St. John's (UCC.)

Tracing the separate histories of the two parent churches is almost like reading carbons as they match so closely. Both were formed by German immigrants who came from Russia shortly after the turn of the century.

Salem, organized in 1901, was first known as German Evangelical Congregational Salem Church. The Rev. A. Suffa served the first small congregation of the primarily German language church.

Less than 10 years later in 1907 another contingent of 67 German-background families decided they, too, wanted their own church, and under the guidance of the Rev. G. A. Neuman the evangelical St. John's Church was formed.

St. John's remained with the Evangelical Synod of North America until 1926 when it became independent. It remained so until 1949 when the church joined the German Congregational Association of Neabraska.

Why One?

Why did two churches that have been separate entities for well over a half century now decide they should pool their efforts into becoming one congregation?

According to John L. Hammelmann, chairman of the newly formed Faith UCC, the merger had been discussed informally by both congregations for several years and "was always kind of in the back of our minds."

Nothing, however, was officially done about the merger until July, 1966, when the question was presented to the governing bodies of both churches.

"At first we weren't sure how everyone would accept it," Hammelmann said, "but after the way we saw it snowball, we knew it had to be a good thing."

A final vote was taken Dec. 12, 1966, and the two churches officially incorporated as one in February, 1967, with first services on April 9.

"It was really a necessity that we consolidate," Hammelmann said. "Just from the financial standpoint it was becoming obvious that neither of the churches could survive alone."

The new church has taken up quarters in the Salem church sanctuary and the corporation has put the other church property up for sale, according to Hammelmann.

The Salem edifice was chosen because extensive building renovation was completed a few years ago.

The new church has an active membership roll of about 500. "Each of the churches cut away all the deadwood memberships and brought about 250 members apiece into the union," Hammelmann said.

New Officers

The new officers of the infant church, drawn from both parent congregations are: Hammelmann, church chairman; Harry Koch, vice chairman; Henry Reifschneider, secretary; George Maser, treasurer and Jake Sinner, Stanley Litt, Norman Kissler, Al Brehm, Frank Smith, Bill Kruse and Phil Koch, board of trustees.

Although the new church is being served by the Rev. Orville Zimmerman, the congregation is in the process of formulating a call to another minister in the next month.

Ordination of 2 Priests Is Set at the Cathedral

The Rev. Patrick J. Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Murphy, 1044 So. 36th, will be ordained into the priesthood at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Cathedral of the Risen Christ.

The Rev. Mr. Murphy is a graduate of Pius X High School and Rev. Murphy took his seminary training at St. Thomas Seminary in Denver and St. Francis Major Seminary in Milwaukee, Wis. He will say his first mass at his home church, St. Teresa's, May 30.

The Most Rev. Daniel E. Sheenan, D.D., auxiliary bishop of Omaha, will be the ordaining bishop.

Also slated to be ordained is the Rev. Richard E. Sladky, son of Mrs. Mathias Sladky of Wahoo. He is a graduate of Wahoo High School, St. John Vianney Seminary and St. Francis Major Seminary in Milwaukee.

The Rev. Mr. John J. Keefe, another Lincolnite, will be ordained into the diaconate. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Keefe, 2621 Washington. The Rev. Mr. Keefe in theological studies at St. Thomas seminary will be ordained into the priesthood next year.

The second candidate for the diaconate is the Rev. Juan Nunez, of the dioceses of Santiago, Dominican Republic. The Rev. Mr. Nunez is being ordained to the diaconate in Lincoln by special orders.

'Chaplain Will Punch Your Card'

With Capt. Keene, Th's Is No Joke

By DICK BUDIG

This is a ticklish story about a Lincolnite who is an Army chaplain in Vietnam.

Seems Capt. Jack Keene, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Keene of 2337 Ryons, has put into effect one of the most popular sayings among GIs.

The saying has many variations. It runs something like this:

"Go see the chaplain," or, "tell it to the chaplain," or, "Go see if the chaplain will punch your card."

It's a standard reply with troops of all branches of the service and, depending on the tone of voice when said, it is used to shush the habitual griper or comfort a truly troubled trooper.

But until recently, there wasn't really a card for the chaplain to punch.

Chaplain Keene

That is, until Jack Keene came along.

He had wallet-sized cards printed, and in little boxes around his name, categories of gripes common to GIs, accompanied by an appropriate verse from the Bible.

For example, under "Bad Chow" Chaplain Keene includes suggested reading from Corinthians 10:27: "If any of them that believe not bid you to a feast, and ye be disposed to go; whatsoever is set before you, eat asking no question for conscience sake."

In the box marked "Chewed Out," the recommended reading is Psalms 39:2: "I was dumb with silence, I held my peace, even from good; and my sorrow was stirred."

Any ex-GI can recall that sorrow.

If the battlefield troop has "Lost at Cards," Keene will punch the card and reading marked Ephesians 4:31: "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking be put away from you, with all malice."

For "Wife Trouble" — a subject that might evoke two Bibles — Keene offers this short reading from Colossians 3:19: "Husband, love your wives and be not bitter against them."

In the center of Keene's card is his name, military attachment and a little kicker reminiscent of an old TV Western.

Have Bible — Will Preach," it says.

But the really ticklish part of this story is title Keene has given his card.

Above his name, it says simply ."TS Card."

Any presently employed or ex-GI will recognize this immediately. The uninitiated are advised not to worry, but if they must inquire, let it be gingerly and privately.

Presyterian Keene says his card is a practical item. "It's a reason for the troops to come and see me — sort of an ice-breaker."

Celebrations Set For Churches

The churches of Nuckolls County are sponsoring religious centennial services June 11 at the baseball stadium in Superior.

The Rev. Grady Wilson of "The Hour of Decision" radio program will speak.

The Rev. Norman Voth of the "Back to The Bible" broadcast staff in Lincoln will be song leader and Wylma Fletcher of Bladen will be soloist.

75th Anniversary

The United Presbyterian Church of Cozad is celebrating its 75th anniversary June 4 with a noon basket dinner in the park, a morning and afternoon anniversary service, and an open invitation to all to join them.

Shrine Visited

The recent papal visit to the Fatima Shrine near Lisbon, Portugal seems to have caused an increase in the number of visitors to Nebraska's own Fatima Shrine in Arapahoe.

The Nebraska Shrine was built by the Arapahoe parish of St. Germanus Catholic Church and friends of all faiths of the community during the pastorate of the Rev. Henry J. Denis in 1949. The Rev. Charles L. Gergen is presently serving the parish.

WORLD OF RELIGION

June Conference for Methodists

Representatives from 430 Methodist churches will meet in Lincoln June 5-8 for the 107th Nebraska Methodist Conference.

More than 600 church delegates and 1,200 convention visitors are expected to attend the conference at the Nebraska Wesleyan University Auditorium Fine Arts Center. Evening sessions will be at First Methodist Church, 2723 No. 50th.

Delegates will be voting on two important subjects at the meeting: the ratification vote of a plan of Mthodist-EUB union and the election of delegates to represent Nebraska Methodist at regional and world legislative bodies.

Ebel Commissioner

A. James Ebel, vice president and general manager of KOLN-TV has been named to the Commission on Press, Radio and Television of the Lutheran Church in America.

The commission is composed of 12 lay leaders and clergymen from the U.S. and Canada.

Choir Sunday

Trinity Methodist Church, 1345 So. 16th, will hold their 16th annual Choir Sunday today. The service, marking the end of the choir year, will begin at 11 a.m. under the directon of choirmaster Jerry A. Hohnbaum.

Hadleys Commissione

Two Lincoln school teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hadley, will be commissioned for missionary service as teachers for Nigeria at 2:30 p.m. today at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, 40th and C.

Hadley teaches mathematics at Southeast High School, and Mrs. Hadley teaches primary class at Randolph School. They leave for Nigeria about July 1 and will reside in Numan for a three-year term.

Your Nurseryman Speaks

Nursery Business Builds Character

"You don't make much money in the nursery business—but it sure does build character." Author unknown

This column is a study of Lincoln's oldest and newest nurserymen during the topsy-turvey, cruel kind spring of 1967.

Lincoln's oldest nurseryman is 70. His father and grandfather preceded him in the business. In fact, his father studied horticulture with Henry Fields at Ames, Iowa.

During the last few months this seventy-year-old has worked seven days a week—over 70 hours a week.

In late March and early April hot, dry winds from the south sent temperatures soaring to all-time highs. Trees burst out of their winter dormancy or—just died.

An Education

Watching this 70-year-old operate under these conditions of stress was an education.

One word dominated his conversation—"commitment."

"I'm sorry," he explained repeatedly, "but I have all the commitments I can handle and I can't take any new orders until these commitments are fulfilled."

Obviously, it takes character to turn down scores of hundred-dollar orders to honor ten-dollar "commitments."

Lincoln's newest nurseryman spent most of his youth in German work camps during World War II. Members of his family were killed. The family farm was lost to the Russians.

Passion To Build

Having lived in the midst of the greatest frenzy of destruction that the world has known, this young man has a passion to build. For example, one of his great joys last year was a new well that would keeep trees alive and happy.

During the last few months this young man has reported to work at 6:15 a.m.; eaten his lunch while talking continuously on the phone; returned home to dinner at 8:30 p.m.

For two months he caught only occasional glimpses of his two children. In fact, the younger plainly forgot who his daddy was.

One day this young man pulled out his checkbook and offered to pay his employer $100 if he could have a day off. The employer refused simply because time and weather wait for no one when trees and shrubs need to be planted.

In these times, the golden age of the "goof-off," why do men work this hard?

More Grand Than Man

First, God seemingly gives strength to those who propagate and perpetuate new life—as nurserymen do. Secondly, when a man is intimately involved in the miracle of the life cycle, he loses himself in something that is much more grand than he is.

Lincoln's newest nurseryman quit his previous job because he was bored. Since that day, he hasn't had one bored moment.

Now honestly, how many businesses and professions can offer a guarantee against boredom? Isn't this better than, say, a guaranteed coffee-break?

Beware Of Powdery Mildew

By Emery W. Nelson
County Extension Agent

Many lawns have areas that appears as if flour or milk has been spilled on the grass. This is caused by a fungus disease called powdery mildew.

Powdery mildew occurs as white patches on the grass leaves. This fungus is conspicuous because it grows mostly on the surface of the leaf. The disease feeds on the grass by sending down root like growths into the blade which take nourishment from the plant.

The reason powdery mildew is so prevalent is the cool, humid, cloudy weather. When the weather becomes warmer and sunny, powdery mildew will be confined mostly to shady, cool locations in the lawn.

Usually this fungus does not kill mature blue grass.

It does seriously damage new grass seedings and if it persists, the established grass can be greatly weakened.

This disease can be readily checked by thorough applications of Karathane or sulfur. Use two applications ten days apart for best control. Also keep the lawn well fertilized and watered so the grass grows rapidly.

Yard Cruiser

The fastest growing segment of the power equipment industry, according to Jacobsen, is the riding-while-working vehicle which includes the riding mower, the yard tractor and a host of attachments and accessories which support them. More than 875,000 riders and yard tractors will be sold this year, making a total of close to 3-million which will be cruising our nation's backyards before the season is over.

For Accent Wall

An intriguing accent wall for book corners or entry is made with paneling of battens, two-inch-wide boards. Knots here add to the effect. Use a light-toned wood like western hemlock for a sunless area, a darker wood like western red cedar when there's plenty of daylight.

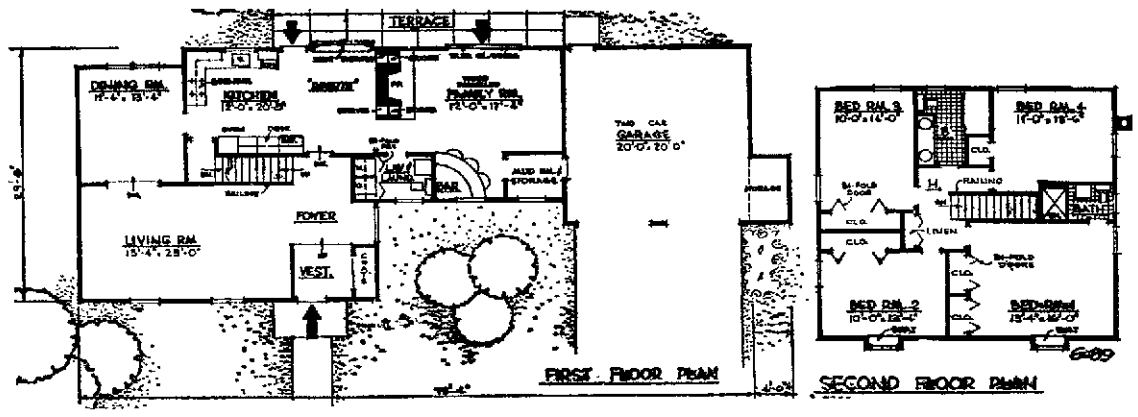
Expose Floor

Many young families who have grown up in carpeted rooms, on moving into new apartments or houses with parquet floors, suddenly become aware, for the first time, of the beauty of the wood itself, and look for ways to make it part of the decor. The result is a search for animal skins, exotic area rugs and small to medium-sized Oriental rugs to set off furniture groupings, while leaving much of the floor exposed.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Architect Modernizes Dutch Colonial Roof

Modern Dutch colonial permits upstairs floor without crowding rooms under low, slanted ceilings.



Interesting features are found in this layout.

The gambrel roof was a device used successfully in the days of Dutch colonial residential architecture.

It was created to improve both the appearance and the usefulness of upstairs bedrooms, which usually had low ceilings with cut-off corners.

In the gambrel design, the roof is sloped to allow clear unbroken ceilings throughout the upper floor.

To simplify construction and minimize the cost of the roof, the two front bedroom dormers are roofed as a continuation of the main roof surface.

Architect Herman H. York has given us a modern version of it in Design G-89 in the House of the Week series.

Side-hall Entrance

The side-hall main entrance in this four-bedroom, two-story house affords excellent circulation throughout the main floor.

Especially interesting is the large window lighting the foyer from the side. There is an impression of open space in the foyer area with a separate vestibule and clothes closet adacent.

One advantage of such a layout is that it makes possible the use of a resilient, ceramic or masonry floor in the vestibule and a continuation of living room carpeting in the foyer.

The open handrailing of the main stair adds to the spacious character of the entry.

Almost direct access from the entry to the rear yard is made through the dinette, with the added advantage of convenient service from the kitchen to the outdoor dining terrace.

Brick Wall

The dinette, almost as large as the formal dining room, has an attractive exposed brick wall as its one side with open shelves for display purposes.

This same masonry unit serves to house the fireplace for the wood-paneled family room. A refreshment bar for convenient serving is set into an alcove directly off this room.

The living room is 23 feet long, has two front windows and plenty of wall space for satisfactory furniture arrangement.

An interior storage and mud room is set at the right side of the house so that it can be entered from the garage.

Storage Alcove

The garage adequately takes care of two cars and, in addition, has a large storage alcove for power equipment and garden tools.

On the upper floor are four bedrooms and two baths. With a minimum of hall space, all rooms are conveniently accessible to the main stair.

An abundance of closet space — over 35 linear feet —provides ample storage for a family requiring four bedrooms, all of which have cross-ventilation.

Important to the facade of this house is the vast expanse of roof. Most manufacturers of roof shingles have introduced into their line materials of heavier texture.

Attractive Appearance

The play of sunlight and shadow on rough surfaces make for an attractive appearance.

Wood shingles are shown for the side and rear exterior sidewalls. These may be either of the sawn cedar variety or lightweight handsplit.

Architect York uses clapboard sand wood vertical boards in the front. Normally, fewer materials are preferable, but in a house such as this, with many breaks and interesting detail, a greater freedom of materials can be enjoyed.

White sidewalls with a dark roof will provide excellent contrast, with accent color — green or blue — on the shutters.

—ON THE— HOUSE

By HELEN HAGGIE

There's been much written about grouping of pictures on walls in order to come up with a pleasing effect.

Grouping of planters filled with flowers on a patio can be equally satisfying. This solves the problem if a yard is small and has little space for raising flowers.

Some very lovely planters are on the market—in all shapes and sizes, constructed of various materials.

Various wooden planters are charming. There are oval, round, square ones, with a choice of stain or paint finish.

Planted with annuals and appropriate greenery they make fetching additions to the patio.

Try a bit of originality in arrangement. Use a couple of different sized planters together in one corner of the patio and in another corner, use completely different sized and shaped planters.

Choose your plants so that heights of blooms vary. You will be amazed at the effects a little ingenuity can produce.

Cooling Cycle Not Complicated

A central air conditioning system keeps a home cool by extracting heat from the inside air and dumping it outside.

There are many types of central systems, but the most common type works this way:

1. A fan draws air in from the house and passes it over evaporator cells.

2. A refrigerant passes through the evaporating coils and extracts heat and humidity from the air as it expands.

3. The cooled and dehumidified air is pushed by a through ducts into all parts of the home.

4. The heat-bearing refrigerant moves to a condenser-compressor where, as it is compressed and passed over the condensing coils, it releases the heat taken from inside the house. A fan expels the released heat.

5 The cooled refrigerant, now compressed into a liquid, is ready to start the cooling cycle again.

Vinyls Popular

Vinyl wallcoverings are experiencing a tremendous surge in popularity, apparently because of their style, color and design possibilities, and ease of cleaning, says a national manufacturer. While wallpaper has been giving ground steadily to interior paints, the bureau says, vinyl wallcoverings have increased five-fold in popularity in the past two years.

Remodel Loans

Families wishing to finance home improvements will have little difficulty finding sources of funds, according to a poll taken by Western Wood Products Assn. of 189 lending institutions. All lenders said they liked to make home improvement loans, and hoped to increase volume during 1967.

Miss Brumbaugh To Wed In July

Stromsburg—Mr. and Mrs. Clay Brumbaugh announce the engagement of their daughter Lonnie Susan to Pfc. Lonny L. Crosby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Crosby all of Lincoln.

Miss Brumbaugh is a freshman at the University of Nebraska. Her fiance is stationed with the Marine Corps at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

A July wedding is planned.

St. Patrick's Catholic Church was the setting for the 1:30 p.m. Saturday wedding of Miss Lucille Sisel and Charles William Baker.

Parents of the couple are Messrs. and Mmes. Louis Sisel and Ivan Baker.

Lace fashioned the bride's gown. A jewel neckline contoured the Empire bodice of the cage silhouette over a strapless organza sheath. A court train added back interest.

A lace pillbox traced with crystals held her veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and carnations.

Maid of honor was Miss Louise Sisel. Bridesmaids were the Misses Ellen Walling, Patricia Foral and Dorothy Coatney.

Best man was Bruce Barber. Groomsmen were Patrick O'Donnell, Larry Trouba and James Jakub. Ushers were Staff Sgt. Jerry Hamilton of Gwinn, Mich., and John Foral.

After a trip to the Black Hills the couple will live in Abilene, Tex.

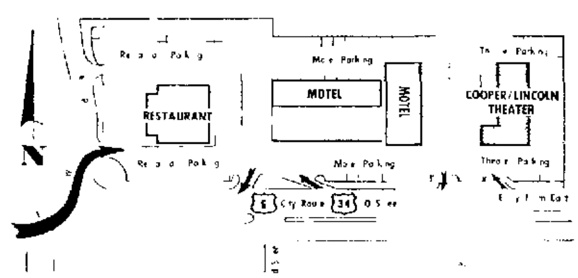
Julie Andrews (hand outstretched at left) charms seven Von Trapp children with song in "The Sound of Music"

Cooper/Lincoln Opens Thursday With Julie's 'Sound of Music'



Theatrically speaking, Thursday in Lincoln will be like a small scale opening of the world famed Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood.

It will be the day the Cooper/Lincoln Theater, the Capital City's first new indoor theater in 18 years, opens with a benefit premiere sponsored by the Lincoln Junior Women's Club for the Broadway Theater League of Lincoln.

The opening show will be five time Academy Award winner, "The Sound of Music."

At 54th and O, the theater is only one portion of the seven acre complex which includes motel and restaurant facilities.

The total complex represents about a $1.5 million investment, according to Mike Gaughan, Cooper Theater city manager.

He added that this does not include the sum the Cooper Foundation will spend for theater equipment and furnishings.

The Cooper/Lincoln brings another unique feature: it is the first 70mm movie house in the city.

This wide screen technique along with a completely transistorized stereophonic sound system gives the audience the "feeling of presence," said Gaughan.

He said that there are a number of Nebraska theaters equipped with 70mm facilities; the new Lincoln theater is the fourth of this type owned by the Cooper Foundation in the state.

The 810 seat Cooper/Lincoln covers a 65x170 foot area and has parking facilities for over 300 cars. The large deeply curved screen extends over two thirds of the 60 foot width of the theater interior and is as high as a two story building.

"The Cooper/Lincoln is actually the first suburban Lincoln theater with the exception of the drive-ins," Gaughan said.

Regular showings of "The Sound of Music" will begin Friday with one show each night and matinees scheduled on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

The premiere is on a reserved seat basis; however, the regular showings will be reserved performance only, said Gaughan.

He added that plans are in the making for daily matinees beginning June 11.

Sticky sweet whipped cream a mountain of molasses

Sounds like comments about the cuisine?

Wrong! These are some of the movie critics comments on the movie The Sound of Music which will begin its Lincoln run Thursday at the new Cooper/Lincoln

With reviews like this one would think that the film would have been a flop

But "The Sound of Music has become the most lauded and money making film in cinema history

The Rodgers and Hammerstein musical was the winner of five Academy Awards including best picture and stars the lovable Julie Andrews

Only 18 months after it was released it had grossed over $100 million and it is still playing road show engagements one theater to a city

The Sound of Music has set records for length of run in almost every city in which it has played Many persons have seen it five to 25 times and by the end of 1966 over 50 million moviegoers had seen the film

Director producer Robert Wise says that the Rodgers and Hammerstein music Julie Andrews and the sweeping views of the Austrian Alps are undoubtable success factors

Others in the cinema business say it's the delightful children

Movie exhibitors add that it has the appeal of an all time family favorite

Psychiatrists say people like the movie because they identify with the story and characters

The film raises positive long forgotten fantasies of a constructive nature that create a profound sense of well being said Beverly Hills psychiatrist Jack Tomas

The movie is about a young novitiate Julie Andrews who leaves her convent to bring smiles and song to a widowed Austrian baron (Christopher Plummer with seven children the famed von Trapp family

Stereo Sound Plus . . .

Since the advent of the talking pictures in the late 1920s, cinema sound has come a long way.

And the new Cooper Lincoln Theater, which opens Thursday, boasts of some of the latest developments in movie sound.

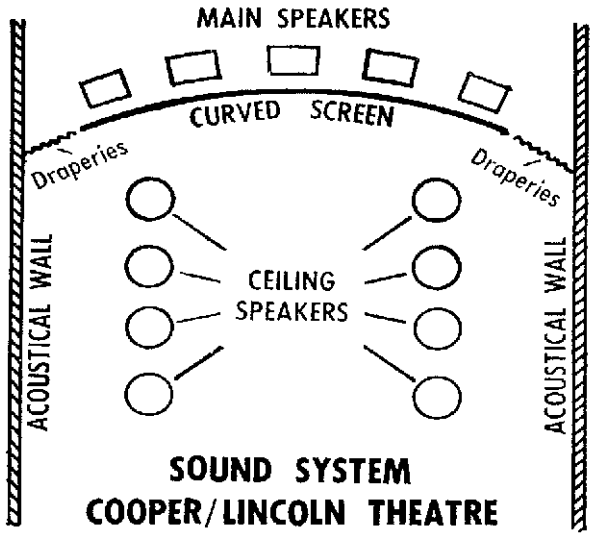
The completely transistorized stereophonic sound system contains six sound channels

Five large speakers are located behind the screen and the sixth system, a new idea, is in the ceiling. The ceiling system, which has eight speakers, provides special effects

"The importance of this type of system is that it gives 'presence'," said Cooper city manager Mike Gaughan. "It makes people in the audience feel they are there as witnesses."

According to Gaughan theater people have conducted tests on the sound systems of movie houses to determine how many times theatergoers turn their heads to catch sounds.

This new stereophonic system is said to present a more natural sound to alleviate many of these distractions



Functional and Colorful

The new Cooper Foundation's theater features a blend of functional materials for acoustical excellence and a modern colorful decor

The walls are concrete blocks set in a grid effect The circular front is heavily draped in gold Gold fiber glass seats covered with a burnt orange fabric will provide comfort to the audience

The general motif of gold is continued in the foyer which boasts suspended lights ia the areas of the concession stand and box office The walls vary from a burnt orange-gold-grey splash pattern to a sedate gold and silver grain effect.

The entrances to the spacious rest rooms display modificion in theater design Instead of conventional doors the rest room's entrances will be of a new "soundlight lock" type

Veteran First Nighters Look Forward to Another

A nostalgic record would tumble for Mr and Mrs Julius Young of 5835 Vine if they didn't intend to be in the first night audience at the Cooper/Lincoln opening Thursday

Being first nighters' at movie house openings here is a habit with the Youngs

It began in 1925 when the original Lincoln Theater opened on N St where the First National Bank now stands

After that came opening night tickets for the Stuart in 1929 and the Capitol the same year Only the Stuart remains today Capitol Theater land on downtown O is part of the area reserved for Lincoln's future federal court house and office building

• We have served Lincoln for nearly half a century

That part of O St from about 15th west really was Lincoln's theater row in bygone days

Theater veteran Bob Livingston, on his way toward 80, recalls such names of this area as the Sun Rialto Colonial, Strand and of course the later Capitol and today's State (which once bore the name Kiva) A short distance away at 12th and P was the Orpheum (today's Nebraska)

The theater going through the most change of names over the years without moving a single foot from its 13th and P St spot is the present day Varsity It started out as the Lansing in 1891 then became the Oliver Liberty and Varsity

The name Varsity was moved to today's 13th and P theater It was first used near 15th and O on the former (and now dismantled) Rialto And the 15th O Rialto Varsity had another name the Variety for a brief period before it was razed to make way for 15th St opening north of O St

Mr and Mrs Young came to Lincoln in the Liberty era

Retired Lincoln High School science teacher Young and his wife confess too many years have gone by to recall the Lincoln and Stuart opening pictures

They do remember that Street Angel with Janet Gaynor was the first talking picture to be shown in Lincoln—and seen by them of course

They recall too that only part of this picture was sound Livingston says this was shown in 1928 at the Rialto where the city's first sound machine unit was installed

Somehow this seemed enough then to make movie goers happy the Youngs said

In those years when the Youngs were heavy movie goers the average theater provided real variety a combination of vaudeville news films first silent then sound a movie and usually a theater band or organ for good measure As films became more sophisticated vaudeville was slowly but surely edged out of the picture

It was a little easier in those days to keep up on your movie actors Young observed

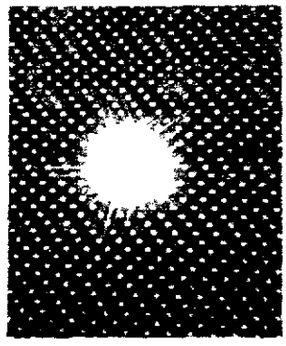
Booth Cooled, Unheated

The new Cooper/Lincoln theater has two Norelco 70-35 mm projectors, capable of showing either 70-mm or 35-mm film

The air cooled projector is housed in a sound-proofed room equipped only with air conditioning -- no heat is required in the winter because the projector lamps supply plenty



Flash shot through screen shows tiny holes.

The Cooper/Lincoln screen, made to handle the wide angle projection, is constructed of a type of canvas with thousands of tiny holes the size of which allow light and sound to pass through

To eliminate distortion, the image on the screen is on a direct line with the projectors in the booth 90 ft. away.

By changing lenses, the projector is able to show Cinerama, SuperPanavision and Todd-A-O, all 70-mm movies; and 35-mm film like Cinemascope and Panavision or regular small screen movies

Foundation Has 13 Midwest Theaters

Why was Lincoln chosen as the site of the Cooper Foundation's newest "quality" indoor theater?

Elwood N. Thompson, trustee and president of the Lincoln-based foundation which has 13 theaters in the Midwest, answered:

"Lincoln is a dynamic and growing community and a major attraction to visitors from all over Nebraska. Lincoln hasn't had a new indoor theater constructed since the 1920's, and several have been torn down in the interim.

"Our conviction that there is a market for such a theater in Lincoln's entertainment world is supported by a national trend toward construction of indoor theaters in out lying areas near other commercial enterprises," Thompson said.

Thompson heads a nonprofit, charitable, educational and philanthropic foundation conceived and established in 1934 by the late Joseph H. Cooper, a theater owner and partner in Paramount Pictures, Inc.

Using the profits derived from operating theaters originally purchased with Mr. Cooper's grant of nearly $1 million in cash, property and securities, the foundation has given approximately $1,700,000 to worthy projects in its 33 years.

One of the major beneficiaries of the foundation is the University of Nebraska. The foundation has made funds available for cancer research at NU, development of a prime dairy herd at the agriculture college, and a grant of $150,000 for the Kellogg Center for Continuing Education.

The foundation also has contributed substantially to the growth of the 4-H program in the state.

Trustees managing the Foundation's total assets of $4,945,000 are Theodore A. Sick, R. E. Campbell, C. Wheaton Battey, William W. Putney, Robert A. Dobson and Thompson of Lincoln; J. Lee Rankin of New York City and Edwin N. Van Horne of Omaha.

Other Cooper Foundation theaters in Lincoln are the Stuart and Nebraska. It is intended that operation of both of them continue, Foundation spokesmen said.

The Foundation's other theaters are in Omaha, Minneapolis, Denver, Greeley (Colo.) and Colorado Springs, where another new one is nearing completion.

Best Wishes to the NEW

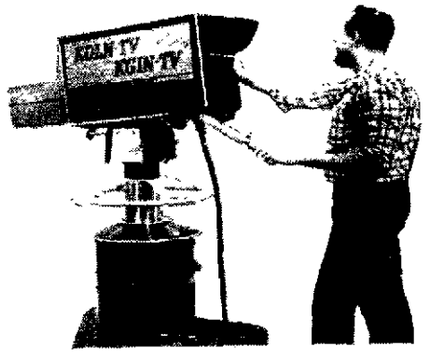
New Cameras Bring Color



By GINNY FISHER

Lifting a 670-pound television camera with one hand.

Standing beneath 3200 degree lights.

Seeing words on a blackboard today that were erased yesterday.

Examining a new, color-camera installation at a TV station can be interesting, if somewhat mystifying.

KOLN-KGIN-TV of Lincoln and Grand Island with main broadcasting facilities at 40 and W, has just recently completed installation of two new color TV cameras. The station plans to begin color programming of all local shows on Monday.

This local color programming will be added to the color shows on the CBS network, of which KOLN-KGIN is an affiliate.

Lifting one of the new color cameras is a thrill but really not such a feat. Although the new cameras do outweigh the old black and white ones by 670 pounds in comparison to 175, most of the weight is in the pedestal.

The lead counter-balances in the base make it possible for even a weakling TV editor to easily raise and lower the camera.

The color cameras plus equipment cost $80,000 apiece, according to A. James Ebel, general manager.

Each camera has four separate cameras, which work together to produce one composite picture. There is a camera for each of the primary (in light) colors, red, blue and green plus a black and white camera which handles the light levels.

The new equipment lets the operator pay more attention to his more complicated color. The more complicated color camera. He first sets up the camera each day using the black and white tube and adjusting the camera on the gray scale to get proper light levels. During filming the cameraman keeps tabs on the picture by his own small TV set which is part of the camera. Funny thing about this set, but it just happens to be only black and white.

Standing beneath those 3200 degree lights was an "enlightening" experience, but not such a "hot" one. The 3200 degrees is in Kelvin temperature, which is above absolute zero and pertains to the level of light, not heat. The light spectrum ranges from red to blue, with lower (or cooler) degrees containing more red and the higher more blue or white.

Most of the lights KOLN-KGIN had been using were 2900 degrees, which contained too much red light and would throw off the new color cameras.

So, KOLN-KGIN converted to quartz-iodine lights. They are sheathed in a quartz envelope because the temperature becomes physically hot enough to melt glass. The lights cast a much whiter glow than ordinary lights, which seem very yellow in comparison.

The new color cameras have also made it necessary to increase heat of other lights. The old black and white cameras took 125 to 150 foot candles of light, while these new cameras take 250 foot candles. This makes it hotter for the performer and also makes it more difficult for him to read. However, it could have been worse.

The light was doubled, but it must now serve four cameras (the red, blue, green and black-white) where it only served one before.

To combat the heat, the studio is air-conditioned with capacity equivalent to that in ten average homes.

Seeing words on a blackboard after they were erased is a simple feat for sentitive new cameras. Especially if the blackboard is a new green one that is overly porous and soaks up too much of the yellow chalk. The new weather board, which replaced the old gray one in order to get a more colorful effect, may have to be replaced itself.

This is just one of the problems arising because of the new color operations. Mr. Ebel indicated that perhaps these "side effect" problems were taking longer to solve and causing more trouble than the color cameras.

Because of the switch-over in color, KOLN-KGIN has had to re-do several sets and backgrounds; signatures for sponsors; and some props. Clothes of performers were affected. They had to get rid of white shirts and substitute with blue ones. It was noticed that dark clothes don't pick up as well as those medium in color.

All on-camera performers were run through a "color test" as to make-up and all, including the men, will appear with some makeup.

Most of the paints being used in the studios had to be changed, as the majority of commercial paints have a blue base and the camera really brings this out. Also, all flaws had to be corrected.

A medium blue seemed to be the "safest color" for contact with people while a bright red seemed the worse.

On Reading

In youth a book is a door you enter you surrender everything you are gladly lost In middle age you want to hold on to your own identity to consume to use to carve a book like a joint and ingest it to feed that identity The adult relation to books is one of absorbing rather than being absorbed

—Anthony Burgess

Happenings Have to Be Found

By HOLLY SPENCE

It s a happening ''

What s a happening ? It isn t easy to define but it is generally understood to be a larkish social event in which people gather and do pretty much what they wish improvise then entertainment

The word happening is becoming as popular as camp pop and Mr Terrific

But if I means what it seems to mean that s the story of my life impro vise Why plan and worry when you can live dangerously

Where do you draw the line There are some activities that aren t classified as happenings but they do just happen

My neighbor just always happens to be playing golf in the front yard My nephew just always happens to be thinking of baseball and my friends just all happen to be thinking of exams

If you know me at all you know that golf and I just don t happen to get along And baseball I happen to like bachelor batters Exams I just happen to have taken all the exams I am [illegible] with

So can I ever boast of a happening Yes I ll find some on my own

[illegible] for hoards of people or can we individuals participate in the fun

Footh in nail promoters of happenings say that happenings are social and [illegible] means masses

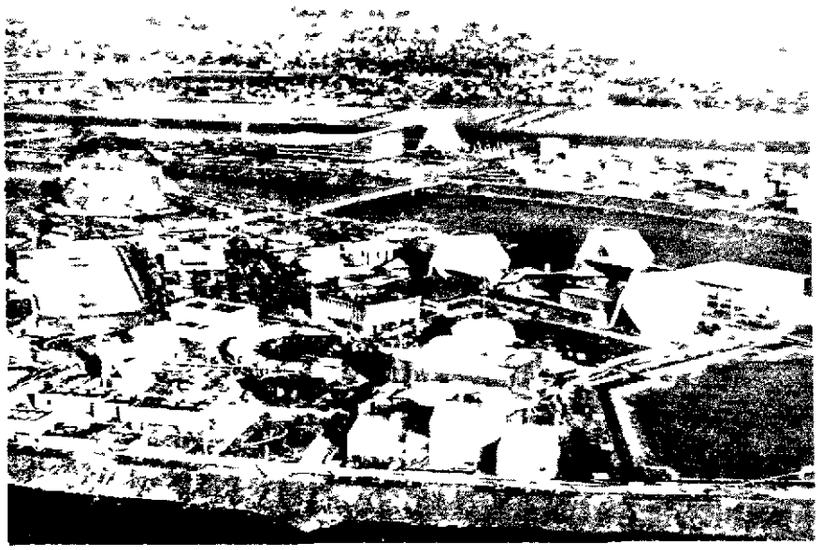
But I disagree I just happen to think I m [illegible] d at [illegible] me [illegible]

I just happen to be going on a vacation in less than a month and a lot of things should be happening

Going on a vacation itself won t be a happening like last summer I decided to leave one minute was on the road in 30 minutes and in the Rocky Mountains in eight hours

Things probably won t happen until I get to Expo 67 in Montreal

I don t have a route to follow a place to stay or any specific sights to see so it will just happen If I don t come home with any happenin [illegible] least it will be a blank



Will there be a happening at Montreal s Expo 67?

Gandhi Play On Broadway

New York AP — A drama about the career of India s famous leader Mahatma Gandhi is to be produced and directed on Broadway next season by Otto Preminger

If the play remains in its present form an intermission for dinner may be needed Mrs Gurney Campbell the author said the study divides into two main sections each longer than a conventional drama

Ruffing Only One Way to Kill Trick

By Howard Schenken and Richard L Frey

The defenders failed to lead the contract on this hand because Jennie Leedwell didn t see that there are more ways to kill a trick than by ruffing it

Mrs Hemphrey was in four hearts having overcalled 1 spades bold but tactically correct three spade opening

West opened the spade seven which East recognized as a singleton She won the first trick with the spade queen and the next with the ace

When West threw the diamond deuce East naturally led a third round of spades to kill the discard that declarer could otherwise get on dummy s spade king

Unfortunately this wasn t good enough Grabbing her chance declarer ruffed with the heart ace and drew West s trumps She then played ace and another club establishing dummy s queen as a parking place for her losing diamond

Five-year old Karin Marais walks with Pony largest animal vet resulting from her father's experiments in dog development

Yes, it's Super Dog!

By Dennis Lee Royle

He's Big, Smart, Strong, Gentle Looking Like Shorn St. Bernard,

Muldersdriet South Africa (AP)—For thirteen years South African geneticist Dr Daan Marais has been trying to breed the world's largest and smartest dog Now 800 dogs later he feels he's nearing success

His ultimate aim is a mammoth watchdog and hunter with super canine intelligence strong and courageous enough to tackle a leopard or baboon the scourage of cattle farmers

Top weight of Dr Marais super dog would be in the 250-pound region It will have the wiliness of a wolf the strength of a great Dane and the cuddly affection of a St Bernard

I want a dog which apart from being a hunter-killer animal will also be docile and affectionate with children' he said

During the past thirteen years I have tried to incorporate by selective breeding these physical and psychological characteristics into the dog

Now I have a kind of prototype which has massive strength stamina courage and yet is docile with a high decree of super intelligence he said

The latest litter will resemble giant boxers with huge chests tapered hindquarters and large square foreheads They will finally develop into 250 pound monsters bearing strains of St Bernard English mastiff Great Dane and a touch of European wolf

By cross-breeding with a wolf Dr Marais has changed the doleful expression of the St Bernard Its eyes now have the sharp cunningness of the wolf The inclusion of wolf blood into his super-dog has also changed the texture of the St Bernard's fur

Strange new psychological changes have been induced into the super dog Its hunting instincts have taken on the characteristics of the wolf yet it still retains a friendly disposition towards humans

In an attempt to strengthen the jaws of the new dog Dr Marais tried to breed hyena blood into the strain But the hyena refused to mix Jackals were finally used to develop hunting instincts speed and powerful jaw muscles

In another eight years I should have the perfect animal he said One which can be used for hunting has stamina and courage enough to take on anything from the marauding leopard to the killer jackals who plague many cattle farmers in southern Africa On the other hand if the children want a quiet docile monster he'll be just that It will all be a matter of training

OUR LITTLE TOWN

When to Ask for Help

By Gertrude Skinner

It is that time of year again — when our ambition eats up most of our energy and we are left drained and weak on the treshhold of summer

I have had one relapse of spring fever right after another which could be diagnosed as promising to do more than I could hope to accomplish in the next 100 years

How do you cure a relapse of spring fever? I'll tell you what gave me the most relief First tear the telephone off the wall take three days of gentle rain followed by one day of warm sun Limit your activity to observing nature

All symptoms of ambition and physical exertion will soon disappear and a delightful inertia will replace your usual drive

Observatory according to Webster is a place commanding a wide view

Where else our front porch Seated on the doorstep basking the sun I had hardly begun to observe when a tiny black ant appeared on the sidewalk at my feet He began tugging at a piece of straw 10 times his size His small body heaved and strained in an unsuccessful attempt to move the straw

Quitter I thought after he'd disappeared

At that precise moment he reappeared accompanied by a fellow ant One at each end they successfully moved the straw down into a crack in the sidewalk Smart boy ant No 1

He knew when to ask for help with his work and that is more than I know

I've always held that a writer who cannot make the chance meeting of two ants on a sidewalk fascinating has no business in the craft John Steinbeck

Well I tried Perhaps I should have asked for help

Medicare's great!

(Up to a point.)

This point. Medicare does not pay the first $40 of hospital bills when you enter the hospital You can pay this $40 with a Golden 65 tax free cash plan (70 Plus or 110 Plus)

This point. Even with Medicare you have to pay $10 per day from the 61st through the 90th day for hospital room board, and services A Golden 65 Major Care policy pays this $10 per day

This point. After the 90th day of a hospital stay, Medicare "A" stops But a Golden 65 Major Care policy goes on paying up to $35 a day, until total policy benefits of $25 000 are exhausted

Hospital room board and services	$40 deductible	MEDICARE "A"
Physicians' and surgeons' fees	$50 deductible	MEDICARE "B"
Cash.

This point. Medicare does not pay cash for extra hospital conveniences or bills piling up at home A Golden 65 tax free cash plan (70 Plus or 110 Plus), can help with these expenses

This point. Medicare does not pay the first $50 for surgeons' and physicians fees You can pay this $50 with a Golden 65 tax free cash plan (70 Plus or 110 Plus).

This point Medicare B' does not pay for 20% of surgeons' and physicians fees A Golden 65 Major Care policy will pay this 20% when hospitalized for surgery

That's why 600,000 people are protected by Continental Casualty in addition to Medicare.

Golden 65 tax-free cash plans, 70 Plus and 110 Plus, pay you $70 per week or $110 per week while hospitalized (depending on the plan you select) up to 52 weeks This is cash that you can use for anything—Medicare gaps, in-hospital conveniences, rent, electricity, telephone

Golden 65 Major Care is a new policy to supplement Medicare For $4 95 a month, it delivers the kind of protection you need in the event of a longer period of illness—covering areas of expense not included in Medicare This is where Major Care can save you and your family months of financial distress Major Care pays the $10 per day from the 61st through the 90th day for hospital room board and services And for a hospital confinement that lasts beyond Medicare's 90 days Major Care goes on and on pays up to $35 a day for hospital room and services When hospitalized for surgery Major Care also pays the 20 of surgeons and physicians fees that Medicare doesn't Major Care pays benefits up to a maximum of $25 000

Choose the policy you need For maximum protection buy a tax free cash plan and Major Care If not satisfied return policies within 10 days for full refund Your policies can be cancelled or rates changed under all policies with the same form number in your file are cancelled or changed

EXCLUSIONS AND LIMITATIONS You are immediately covered upon hospitalization for any accident or sickness that commences after the effective date of your policy 70 Plus or 110 Plus covers you for 15 weeks of confinement for mental illness with a lifetime maximum of 15 weeks Major Care does not cover mental psychoneurotic or personality disorders Under all above policies not covered for conditions diagnosed before your policy was issued if hospital confinement begins after your policy has been in effect for at least six months Major Care does not cover any treatment or service not reasonable or necessary for the diagnosis or treatment of sickness or injury or to improve the functioning of a malformed body member.

You are covered anywhere in the world against all injury or illness except those covered by Workmen's Compensation or Occupational Disease Law or those caused by any act of war Excluded also is coverage when confined in federal government hospitals except in California Above policies do not cover confinement in any government hospital for mental illness or tuberculosis In Louisiana Texas and Tennessee they do not cover any treatment or service for tuberculosis Above policies do not cover custodial care confinement in a hospital, or routine physical examinations.

TWIN STAMPS: A U.S. First Shows Spacewalking Astronaut and His Spaceship

The first twin stamps the United States has ever produced will salute the nation s accomplishments in space

The total design depicts a spacewalking astronaut linked to his spaceship It is twice the width of a horizontal commemorative postage stamp A vertical perforation divides each segment into a 5 cent stamp

The twin stamps will be first issued Sept 29 at Kennedy space Center a branch of the Orlando Fla post office Two days later the National Aeronautics and Space Administration marks its ninth anniversary

Paul Calle a Stamford Conn artist produced the design For NASA s fine art program he previously painted the first flight of Project Mercury and he was official NASA artist aboard the aircraft carrier during the recovery of the first manned Gemini mission

Calle s postage stamp designs depict the spacewalk which was successfully accomplished during Project Gemini

The stamps will be issued in panes of fifty On the upper left and lower left panes the astronaut stamp will be the first third and fifth stamps the spaceship the second and fourth This arrangement will be reversed on the upper right and lower right panes

Offset and intaglio will be combined to produce the stamp which will have one horizontal plate number Offset will print the red stripes in the flags on the astronauts spacesuit and capsule and light blue sky areas as well as the inscription U S 5c lower left of the astronaut stamp The Giori press will print dark blue sky areas the aqua earth and black tones on the capsule and astronaut

Collectors may order first day cancellations from the Postmaster Orlando Fla 32802 The covers will be serviced with a single stamp (5c) or pairs showing both designs (10c)

Fujita will issue a set of two stamps honoring the Mediterranean Games to be held in that country Sept 8 According to word from the World Wide Philatelic Agency The stamps will have denominations of 20 and 30 millimes and be engraved Both will feature the same central design of modernistic figures and the multiform athletic symbol

Clothing Lady Liberty

By Joe Planas

Miss Liberty tried to go mod as early as 1916 and this resulted in the Standing Liberty quarter having at least two varieties

The Standing Liberty quarter designed by Hermon A MacNeil and often referred to as our most beautiful silver coins was first issued in 1916 but Lady Liberty had too little clothing and this probably had a lot to do with the change in design in 1917

Writing in The Numismatist in 1946 Lillard W Culver said This design was unsatisfactory and the mint was forced to suspend coining quarters early in 1917 The reason for this was never made public

He continued the secretary of the treasury wrote Congress about the artistic merit of the eagle and then forwarded a bill to Congress about the stacking qualities of the quarter dollar

When the second type of this quarter dollar appeared in 1917 the most significant change was that Liberty was more fully clothed Perhaps the fact that we were at war influenced the choice of clothing as the bust was covered with a coat of chain mail

Variety one of the 1917 SL quarter (shown) has seven stars to the left of the eagle and six to the right When the design was changed five stars were left at each side and three were placed below the eagle

The only other significant change in the SL quarter came about in 1925 In this year the date on Liberty s pedestal was recessed to prevent the numerals from wearing so quickly On early issues the dates tended to wear off because they were too high

Liberty s left arm is raised holding a shield In her right hand is an olive branch

Every collector of SL quarters should have both types in his collection

Coins on Display Here Next Weekend

The Nebraska Centennial Coin Show next Saturday and Sunday at the Cornhusker Hotel will provide both novice and veteran coin collectors and those simply interested in money an opportunity to see many fine collections

The show, sponsored by the Nebraska Numismatic Assn. and organized by the Lincoln Coin Club, includes a large display from the U S Bureau of Printing and Engraving and a State Historical Society display of some early Spanish and American coins used in Nebraska in the 1840's

Attending the show are 25 dealers who will appraise any coins visitors bring

The Numismatic Assn is sponsoring a competition in which individual entrants will present their collections in competition for 15 awards

President of the Nebraska Numismatic Assn is Bill Richards of Crawford

The show is free to the public Hours are 9 a m to 5 p m both days

Music Man Coming

Meredith Willson's "Music Man" will be this year's Pinewood Bowl musical show, with tryouts set for Thursday and Friday at 7:30 p.m. in First Presbyterian Church, 17th and F.

The musical will be presented at Pioneers Park Bowl the nights of July 14-17.

Norma Carpenter, Civic Singfest Committee chairman, announced Oscar Bennett will direct the 1967 show

He suggested those trying out select a number from the popular "Music Man"

Between 15 and 20 tornadoes skipped across southeastern Nebraska in one evening, causing approximately $100,000 damage but no deaths

Last Week 1967: A highway study for the Legislative Council resulted in a report declaring 45% of Nebraska roads and streets inadequate for current traffic and recommending a $3 2 billion 20-year program to be financed by bond issues and increased taxes on motor vehicles registrations and fuels The report also recommended changes in the formula for distributing highway funds to the state, counties and cities

The Legislature directed the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds to transfer Chadron State Park ownership to the State Game Commission for $40,000.

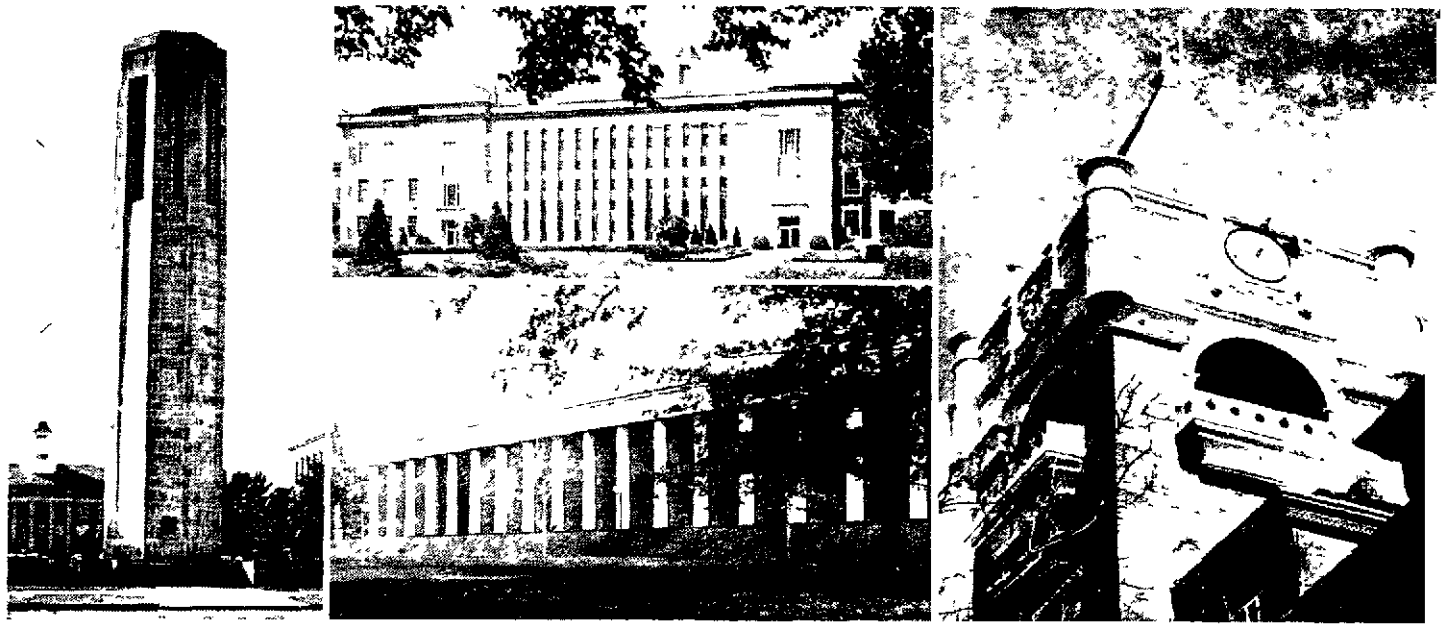
LINCOLN IS PROUD OF



its educational facilities. These include the University of Nebraska, Wesleyan University and Union College. Lincoln also offers a variety of business schools of nursing, vocational classes and extension programs. Lincoln is proud of the educational opportunities open to everyone.

Education is one of the best ways to improve oneself. The result of education will make the city of Lincoln, the state of Nebraska, the United States, and the entire world a better place to live. Another internationally famous way of improving oneself is by the Want Ads. They are the best way to turn those no longer needed items into extra cash. You can buy or sell a car or home, rent apartments, hire help, recover lost articles, buy or sell furniture or appliances, or buy a pet. All these things and many more, are done easily and efficiently, in the Want Ads.

The Journal-Star regards the Want Ads as a vitally important part of the community service it renders. Along with the news columns and features in your daily newspaper, the Want Ads are also a basic ingredient. The Want Ad columns are for your benefit, so why not take advantage of them today.

Records in Beautiful But Hard-to-Use Package

By Peggy Constantine
Chicago Sun-Times Special

Late in 1965 the editors of Time and Life announced their intention to issue The Story of Great Music for the specific purpose of offering good recordings of serious music at low cost.

With the co-operation of Angel Records producers Time-Life editors went through the catalog of the British E M I group (owners of the Angel label). They hired musicologist Jacques Barzun dean of faculties and provost of Columbia University as consultant. And they put a staff headed by music writer Frederic V. Grunfeld to work preparing text and picking illustrations for booklets to accompany the recordings.

From Stravinsky to

So far Time-Life has issued seven sets each with four long play records.

The sets in order of appearance are The Baroque Era, The Romantic Era, "Age of Elegance, The Opulent Era, The Age of Revolution, Prelude to Modern Music and The Early Twentieth Century.

The seven sets cover music beginning with Corelli (1653-1713) and ending wigh Stravinsky (1882-) —with a great deal of Bach Handel Mozart Beethoven Schubert, Mendelssohn Brahms Richard Strauss Puccini and all the best knowns in between. Two more sets— Slavic Traditions and The Spanish Tradition — are yet to be issued.

Such a package deal is unnecessary for anyone who has collected records for years. And the sets though beautifully packaged are hard to use. Frequently the last movement of one symphony and the first of another are on one record and you have to thumb through four records or consult an accompanying guide to discover where the music you want to hear begins.

And there are of course omissions that offend (no Monteverdi in the Baroque for instance). There is a confusing designation of eras (What is the opulent era particularly if Offenbach but not Mahler is included?) Although each set is exquisitely illustrated accompanying texts are pretentious and often touch on history art and politics without coming to grips with musical specifics.

But Time-Life is not addressing the musician musical scholar or even the layman who has been listening to and reading about music for years. In the brochure introducing the series the editors say they seek an audience of young people or beginners in listening to serious music.

For them Time-Life has delivered 28 high quality records of standard repertory music performed by such conductors as Otto Klemperer Carlo Maria Giulini Josef Krips and Herbert Von Karajan and such soloists as Elisabeth Schwarzkopf Emil Gilels, Birgit Nilsson Yehudi Menuhin and Hans Richter Haaser. And best of all the editors have not excerpted from works with a movement here and a movement there.

That makes the Time-Life deal as rare these days as the nickel cigar.

The High Cost of Music

By Delos Smith UPI

In Boston music culture is asking for $5.5 million. In Philadelphia the asking is for $10 million. In New York the proposed bite is $13 million but it is for the Metropolitan Opera as well as for Leonard Bernstein's New York Philharmonic.

Wherever you go you find music culture [illegible] thrust at the public [illegible] there is a symphony orchestra or an opera. Never before has there been such a universal cry of musical [illegible].

All this asking is for contributions in addition to the price of music's wares the cost of a seat at a symphony concert or opera performance. And brother that's high and going higher.

Oh our these music [illegible] are bewild[illegible] Now take the Met. It [illegible] ates in a new $45 million [illegible] house which it g[illegible] free from [illegible] assortment of donors. It owns a square block of midtown Manhattan the site of its old [illegible] which soon [illegible] earning $400,000 a year [illegible] office building that's taking it over.

For the best [illegible] in the new house it [illegible] each with the lesser ones scaled in proportion and [illegible] seat is taken for every performance night after night. Great numbers of [illegible] be custom[illegible] [illegible] impossible [illegible] the Met.

Yet in its first season in this sumptuous clover it ran up a deficit of over $5 million and is asking its public to donate $3 million to cut the deficit down to manageable size.

Its neighbor in Lincoln Center is the New York Philharmonic. It has a [illegible] cent hall also a gift and rent free. Its regular concerts are largely sold out even before its seasons begin. But it is both raising its prices and asking the public for $10 million in contributions.

The Philadelphia Orchestra and the Boston Symphony also have long seasons and play usually to full houses in New York as well as in their home cities and the tickets are not cheap.

The New York Philharmonic's goal date for raising all of $10 million is the fall of 1968. The Philadelphia Orchestra hopes to raise its $10 million over the next 10 years. The Bostonians hope to reach their more modest goal of $5.5 million by summer's end.

As their fund-raisers tell the public the costs of music making are high.

Crossing the 'T' Was Devastating

Battles of the Philippine Sea. By Charles A Lockwood and Hans C. Adamson; Crowell.

"Angels stretched the fuel" —for the Americans!

Had Japan kept her navy "mothballed" in safe anchorage, a good portion of it probably wouldn't have been sunk in World War II. But the Japanese attempted a last-stand island defense line around the Philippine Sea, and the U.S. gave them half the ocean—the bottom half!

Nippon paraphrased Verdun's famous "They shall not pass," but we turned her faucet off

The world knows Japan's carrier fleet and air force were destroyed that her "private ocean" was turned into an American seaway: Lockwood and Adamson give an inkling why

Even though Tokyo maintained—five or six times—that U.S. naval strength had been rendered "insignificant," Nippon's enemy kept "retiring at high speed TOWARD the Japanese fleet."

The "little yellow men" tried Kamikaze (suicide pilots) and Kaiten (suicide submariners) — to little avail.

Once, desperately, Japs torpedoed two looming objects. It was dark. The objects didn't sink. They weren't ships. They were islands.

Japanese guts were running out!

Japanese pilots tried the "Mulberry Ring," in which planes formed a nose-to-tail circle Such a protective aerial buzz saw is tough to tackle However, the ring of Zekes finally broke up and patient U S Navy Hellcats pounced on their victims

Americans, on the other hand, had luck chasing salvos. (U.S. ships would head for the spot where the last Japanese shell hit the ocean, thinking that was the safest place to be. Fortunately, it often was.)

Once in Surigao Strait, Oct. 24-25, 1944 Adm. Jesse Oldendorf repeated the strategy of Nelson at Trafalgar in 1805 and Togo against Russia in 1905: he crossed the "T." (This classic tactical position was attained when he turned his battleships at right angles to Adm Nishimura's approaching ships thus delivering devastating broadsides to which the Japanese commander could only reply with his forward guns)

U.S. subs also proved they weren't too humble for real naval warfare — although one, the Tullibee, was sunk by one of its own torpedoes, which circled with pinpoint accuracy. All hands but one went down.

In general it seems that U S smoke screens, torpedoes, bombs strafing air attacks and timely maneuvers (plus the "definite partiality of Almighty God") turned the tide against the Japanese Empire

For victorious Americans, it was back to Mog Mog for grog grog.

4 UNP Volumes Honored

Four books published by the University of Nebraska Press are among nonfiction titles listed by the Western Writers of America magazine Roundup as meriting nationwide attention for the January-April period.

They are "The Rocky Mountain West in 1867" by Louis L. Simonin, translated by Wilson O. Clough; "The Christmas of the Phonograph Records" by Mari Sandoz; "The World's Rim" by Hartley Burr Alexander, and "Sod and Stubble" by John Ise.

University Press books led Roundup's nonfiction Western Ratings Check List for 1966 with a total of 62 points. Included were "History of Wyoming" by T. A. Larson; "War Drums and Wagon Wheels" by Raymond W. and Mary Lund Settle, and "Buckskin Joe" by Jonathan Hoyt, edited by Glenn Shirley.

Memoir Writer Is 'Ace'

It's All News to Me. By Bob Considine; Meredith Press

Bob Considine is a reporter's reporter, with a punch line for every occasion His breezy column is read across the country but to this day he prefers reporting to punditing His sense of humor is unsurpassed in a calling which prides itself on a built-in funnybone His generosity to hard-pressed colleagues is legendary. His experiences as a front-line correspondent in sundry wars and as a crack reporter at trials, executions and disasters of all kinds have earned him the fraternal accolade his peers reserve for the ace man.

You'd have to read between the lines of his book, however, to learn that. Considine is the most modest of men, who delights in telling stories on himself. "It's All News to Me," unlike the many quickie books he has ground out for himself and ghosted for others in the past, is the volume of reminiscences we hoped he'd someday write.

It's Considine's look back over his career, and, as you might expect, it is as studded with funny stories as a currant cake with goodies The scoops — and there are plenty of them — are recalled without fanfare In short, the book is excellent.

'Imperfect Eden' Of South Pacific

Pitcairn Island. By David Silverman; World.

It's just a "pimple on the sea."

From Where Dan Fall to Where Freddie Fall is only a couple of miles — and Pitcairn is only about a mile wide — but there's been enough of the exotic going on in this microcosm of our world to make the most sedate person want to throw away his armchair

And go take a long look!

Five generations after Fletcher Christian thumbed his yardarm at Capt. Bligh on the mutiny ship Bounty, this "imperfect Eden" of volcanic rock is still "sailing along" tempestuously on an ocean of peace.

Cleveland lawyer Silverman, whose fascinating hobby is searching out the truth about Pitcairn Island, gives you a Tropic of Capricorn trip you'll never forget

Down the Jacob's ladder you go, into the white-sailed longboats. Flashing oars take you — if swells permit — to the slate-colored ledge where mutineers and their harem sought repose. Instead they found murder, civil war, racial strife and the pangs of exile.

The bonus for you, says Luis Marden's foreward, is that this bizarre episode has the "advantage of being true," of having been written, one of Marden's friends says, "by the hand of God"

Pitcairn is loneliness! Even today it has no shops or stores.

Mostly it has pandanus fronds, a million yams wild goats the islanders never eat, busy souvenir whittlers, prevailing easterlies — and a Pacific horizon ring "as hard and unbroken as if drawn with a compass"

Fishing is a sometime thing because of water turbulence

For 150 years men have written about the settlement on forsaken Pitcairn of nine Bounty unhappies and their entourage of Polynesians, but Silverman throws everything into modern focus. At the same time, he gives you the feeling you are there—THEN—since settlers speak to you directly through vivid quotations from their memoirs.

The author gives you "sixpartite" insight into this best of all South Sea stories by describing:

1. The Bounty expedition, the mutiny, finding Pitcarn.
2. The Pitcairn mystery. (Whatever did really and finally happen to Mr. Christian?)
3. The world of Pitcairn.
4. Emigrants, immigrants and visitors.
5. The society of Pitcairn.
6. Eugenics laboratory—the Pitcairn breed.

It ends on a note of hope. Silverman reports that what began with institutionalized brutality and dipped into psychopathology now finds Pitcairners living together peacefully.

"The ship is moor'd and we are now our own masters"

Is Real Need Known?

Parks Request May Tell Tale

By LEO SCHERER

There are some now who might wonder if the proposed $51.4 million 1967-73 city capital improvement program tells the entire story of the city's needs.

Around City Hall

The 1967-68 park department portion of the budget already has been increased because it didn't completely reflect the actual park needs.

It hasn't been uncommon in past years for city employes to include in portions of the budget just the amount they felt would get approval from the mayor and Council instead of what they felt to be the actual needs.

Park board members have taken the position that the park portion of the total program should reflect needs and not a figure based on an estimated of what would be cut by the mayor and Council.

There is a strong chance that if the total program was requested on the park board's position it would be much more detailed and also show a much higher figure than the proposed $51.4 million.

Many Amendments

There is little question that the recently adopted CATV ordinance was one of the most amended pieces of legislation in years.

Carl Kopines, assistant city attorney was assigned to get the ordinance in passable condition and spent many hours with those interested or concerned.

The ordinance ended up being amended at least 20 times. At times there was confusion as the amendments, and amendments to the amendments came in.

The next step regarding the ordinance is that those interested in getting a CATV franchise will apply under the guidelines of the measure, which is non-exclusive.

Although the city general election has been over for more than two weeks old campaign signs still can be seen spread around the city.

The signs many torn and broken don't legally have to be removed under city ordinance because there are no city laws specifically covering such situations.

There could be support for a city ordinance requiring candidates for city office to have all their signs removed within 72 hours after the election and provide a penalty clause.

Some of the candidates apparently have taken a don't care attitude after the election and some of the candidate signs including those placed illegally on city right-of-way still remain.

Airline Passengers Complain

Washington (UPI)—Despite the movies, champagne and pretty stewardesses the airline passenger is complaining more than ever.

The Civil Aeronautics Board says it got 17% more complaints from the public in 1966 than in 1965.

Trouble with reservations led the list. Other complaints ranged all the way from public address system announcements to the food.

In its annual report to Congress the CAB said it got a total of 1,610 complaints from the public. In 1965 the total was 1,371.

This was the fifth consecutive year that reservations and scheduling were the major source of complaints. Lost baggage was next.

Others included "passenger treatment reflecting personnel inefficiency, discourtesy or indifference and misleading advertising."

The CAB said it got 51 complaints about the food aboard airlines and 35 about preferential treatment given to some passengers.

95 in 100 Children Protected

Security Plan Often Unknown

By Edwin Darby
Chicago Sun-Times Special

Washington—Notes on the welfare state

About 27 million persons are now beneficiaries under one or another part of the Social Security program. This is one beneficiary for every 7½ persons not a beneficiary

Of the children under 18 in the nation 95 out of 100 now are covered by the survivors insurance program of Social Security But most persons don't know enough about the coverage, even though they pay for it The benefits can be substantial For instance, take a family where the parents are 35 years old and have two young children The face value of survivors insurance protection is $62 000.

Despite huge payouts, the Social Security system is operating with a surplus—on an acturial basis Ten years from now, the system's trust fund will be holding $112 billion dollars, if things continue as they have.

Once, only the first $3,000 of earnings was subject to Social Security tax Now it is $6,600 If the maximum had been raised in proportion to the economic growth of the country, it would now be $15 000

FDA'S Power

The Food and Drug Administration supervises and regulates more than 120,000 business establishments Responsible for seeing that American food and medicine and some household products are as they should be, the FDA staff of 5,000 operates 27 offices around the country The cost 30 cents a year per taxpayer

It operates under laws that can be tough The agency can seize products that are thought to be adulterated or mislabeled The individuals responsible can be prosecuted And a company can be enjoined and put out of business until it meets FDA standards

Poverty Level

Seven or eight millions persons live at a poverty level in the United States with the aid of some kind of public assistance program The common mode of economic existence could be called "catch up"

That is, the studies show that families on assistance pay the urgent bills first, let others slide

An urgent bill is one like rent light, gas and furniture bought on installment If the bill isn t paid, the family will be evicted or lose the furniture

The TV set is the most valued possession because it may be the family's only source of entertainment

Food ranks at the bottom when it comes to allocating family money It can be done without Or bought on the basis of cheapness and stomach-filling ability eg potatoes. Hence malnutrition

More Elders

There are 19 000 000 persons in the United States who are 65 and over That's 9 5% of the population In 1900 there were 3 000 000, or 4% of the population

Businessmen are only slowly beginning to realize the market there The education level and the income are going up The average educational level of the 65 plus group is now eight years By 1970 the average for the adult population will be 12 years Total income of the 65 plus group is now $40 billion a year, triple the 1950 figure

One need Pre retirement planning Corporations and unions are now starting to develope programs Drake University of Des Moines, Ia, under a government grant, is about to open a center to promote pre retirment planning

Needed from business: food, clothing housing, recreation designed specifically for the needs of the elderly.

Hotel Network

New York (UPI) — The island of Ceylon, off the coast of India, is out to get its share of the tourist business with a network of modern hotels, says the Ceylon Tourist Board

Hotels are planned in such seaside resorts as Bentota, Hikkaduwa and Hendala

Vet May Hold Bag On Loan

50,000 Find Out Hard Way

Chicago Daily News Special

Washington—George Brown was in the Navy in World War II and when he got out he bought a small house in Florida with a Veterans Administration loan

He became a salesman acquired a family and was transferred north a few years later He sold the house in Florida and bought one near Philadelphia

Five years later Brown got a letter from the VA

He was liable for a couple of thousand dollars, the letter told him

The house in Florida he'd forgotten about had subsequently been sold again and the third owner had walked off and left it

The house was rundown payments were way behind and a foreclosure was imminent Like most Americans just making ends meet, Brown could not avert the foreclosure

Then he started getting letters from the General Accounting Office, the necessarily hard nosed collection agency for the U S government

Interest was piling up and the letters now warned of court action and additional legal costs

There are thousands of George Browns embroiled in an ironic and possibly ruinous legal contest with the government that wanted only to help them.

Since the start of the loan program after World War II the VA has taken over 210,223 foreclosed homes Officials estimate that in about 25% of these cases—more than 50,000—the veteran who got the loan and sold his home in good faith is the guy holding the bag He's the 'surety'

The VA which by law has to turn 'uncollectable'' debts over to the GAO, is unhappy about its role too Its job is looking out for veterans and it doesn't enjoy blowing the whistle on its own people

When the GI buys a house with $7 500 of the loan insured by the government (equivalent to no down payment) the VA warns him what to do if he sells it

'Obtain a release of liability' they emphasize This way the VA checks first on the buyer's credit

But who remembers everything he's told? Especially when he has to move and there's a buyer waiting Suppose the VA turns down the buyer?

'The time for us to tell veterans is when they sell not when they buy' a VA lawyer lamented But how can we know this?'

The law says all the people who have owned the house no matter how many are equally liable for the full amount

There's just one problem Find them

The financial standing of the parties has a lot to do with it too The government concentrates its collection efforts against the debtor who appears to have the best credit status—usually the GI.

Until last year, the government could move in and offset GI life insurance dividends and disability compensation against the foreclosure debt The law now requires this can be done only by a court or if the veteran agrees

The veteran who works for Uncle Sam is unlucky though because his salary can be tapped to pay the debt Similarly the govern can hold on to an income tax refund or divert any payment due for work done for a federal agency

Even so the VA has been able to collect only about 23% of its foreclosure debts

The balance isn't all loss because the VA gets resale and rental proceeds except from the worst of the properties that no one wants at any price

Over all the VA has provided $67 billion worth of credit assistance and is about $68 000 000 on the black side of the ledger

Which is good from the point of view of most taxpayers but not much consolation to George Brown, who pays taxes too

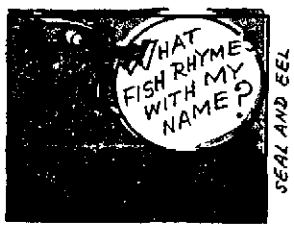
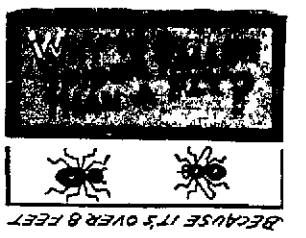
ABE Lincoln





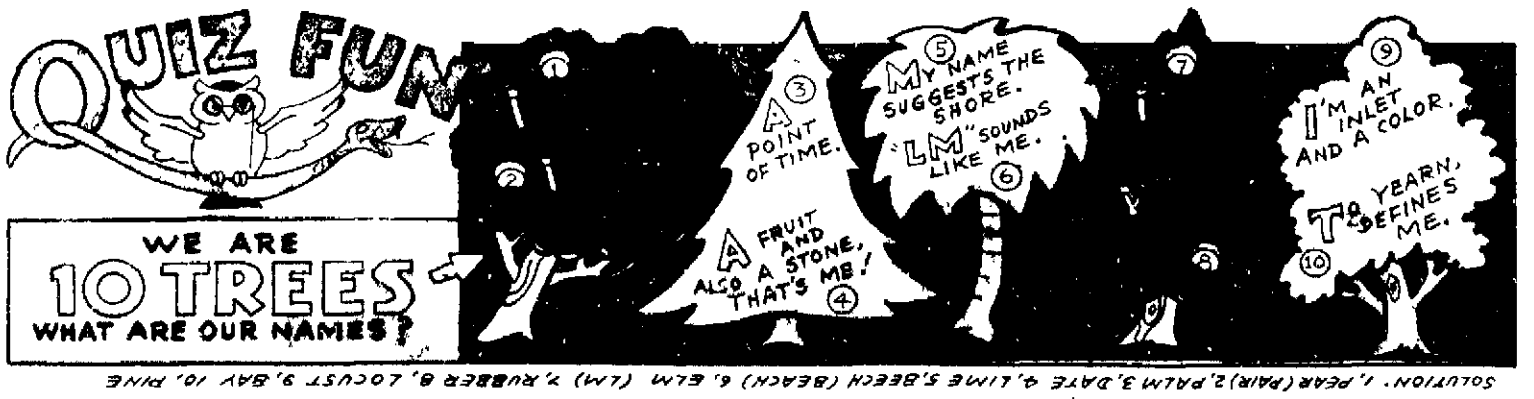
MIND READING FUN

YOU WILL NEED AN ASSISTANT TO PERFORM THIS MIND READING STUNT. WHILE YOUR PARTNER IS OUT OF THE ROOM, ASK YOUR FRIENDS TO SELECT ANY NUMBER FROM 1 TO 9. WITH THE USUAL BLAH-BLAH, AFTER HE RETURNS, ANNOUNCE THAT YOUR PAL IS A MIND READER AND THAT HE WILL NAME THE CHOSEN NUMBER.

HERE'S HOW IT IS DONE: YOUR PAL PLACES HIS HANDS ON YOUR TEMPLES AS PICTURED. TIGHTEN YOUR JAWS, CAUSING THE MUSCLES IN YOUR TEMPLES TO SIGNAL HIS FINGERS.

EACH MOVEMENT SIGNALS ONE DIGIT...PRESS YOUR TEETH TOGETHER ONCE FOR 1, TWICE FOR 2, AND SO ON UP TO 9.

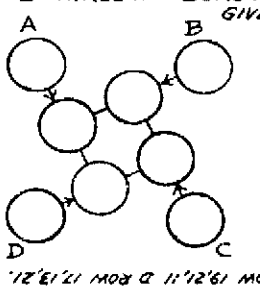
QUIZ FUN

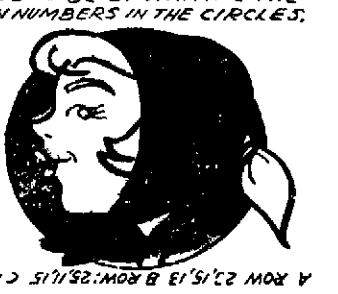


SOLUTION: 1. PEAR (PAIR) 2. PALM 3. DATE 4. LIME 5. BEECH (BEACH) 6. ELM (LM) 7. RUBBER 8. LOCUST 9. BAY 10. PINE

11·13·15·17·19·21·23·25

TRY TO MAKE EACH OF THE FOUR ROWS OF THREE NUMBERS ADD TO 51 BY WRITING THE GIVEN NUMBERS IN THE CIRCLES.





A ROW 23,15,13 B ROW: 25,11,15 C ROW 19,21,11 D ROW 17,13,21.

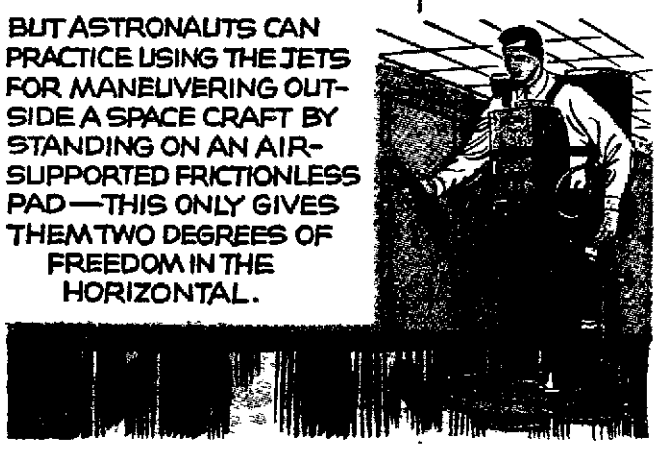
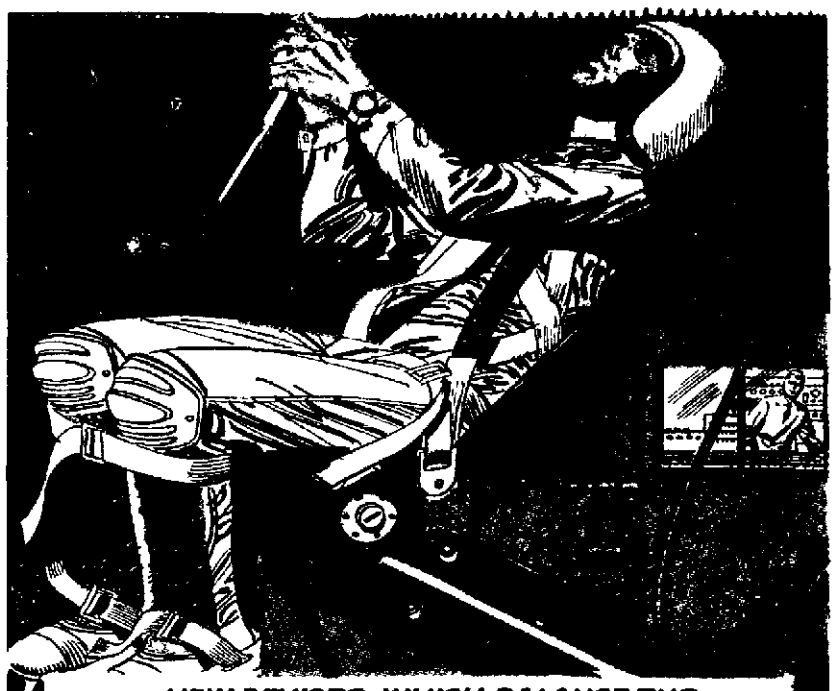
WEIGHTLESSNESS

EFFECTS OF ZERO-GRAVITY ON MEN IN SPACE ARE BEING STUDIED NOT ONLY BY THE ASTRONAUTS IN ORBIT, BUT BY ARTIFICIAL MEANS ON EARTH. SCUBA DIVERS, "WEIGHTLESS" UNDER WATER, EXPERIENCE SOME OF THE DIFFICULTIES OF WORKING IN SPACE!

AN AIR FORCE PLANE FLYING A PARABOLIC PATH OFFSETS GRAVITY BY CENTRIFUGAL FORCE AND PRODUCES WEIGHTLESSNESS FOR ABOUT 30 SECONDS—THIS IS THE ONLY TRUE WEIGHTLESS LABORATORY ON EARTH.

BUT ASTRONAUTS CAN PRACTICE USING THE JETS FOR MANEUVERING OUTSIDE A SPACE CRAFT BY STANDING ON AN AIR-SUPPORTED FRICTIONLESS PAD—THIS ONLY GIVES THEM TWO DEGREES OF FREEDOM IN THE HORIZONTAL.





NEW DEVICES, WHICH BALANCE THE ASTRONAUT IN ALL SIX DEGREES OF FREEDOM, WILL TRAIN THEM HOW TO WORK WHEN WEIGHTLESS IN SPACE FOR UPCOMING 900 DAY ROUND TRIPS TO MARS!

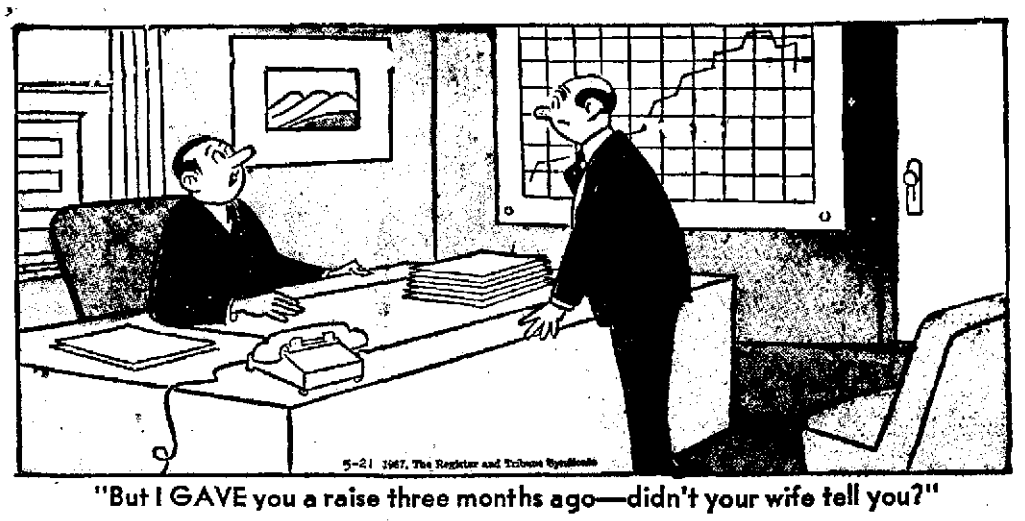
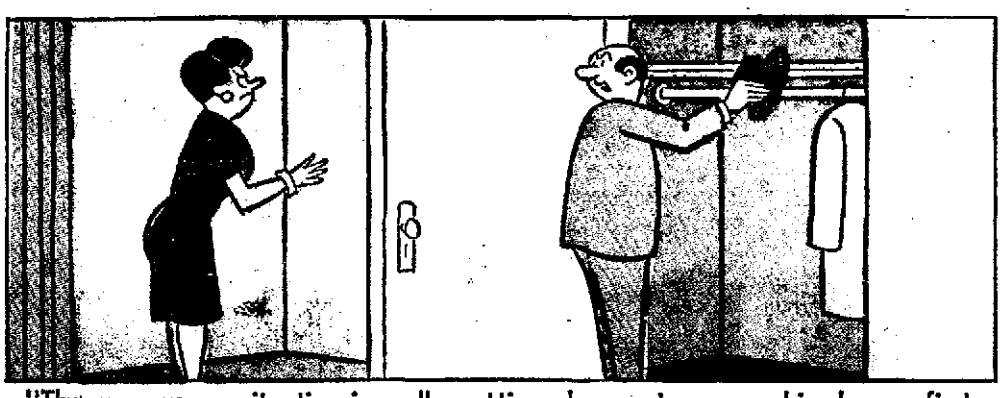
OFF THE RECORD
by ED REED

"My boy friend usually does this but he's home with a bad cold."

"Have you tried my friend Griselda? She's desperate for a man."



"But I GAVE you a raise three months ago—didn't your wife tell you?"



"The man power situation is really getting desperate — we hired your first husband today."

"Pay the cabby his fare, Bob—and also give him back the $50 he lent me."

Pillsbury Presents "The Thirst Fighters"

A NEW ADULT REFRESHMENT TREAT...3 TART N' TANGY DRINK MIXES TO CONQUER THIRST

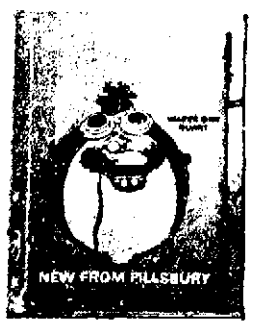
The trouble with water is, it's tasteless, odorless and colorless. However, if you'll add a TART N' TANGY Thirst Fighter to a quart, you'll hardly recognize the old stuff.

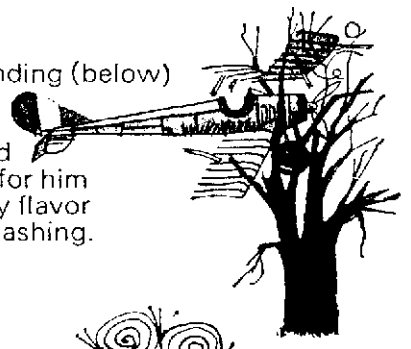
Limes are sometimes used to make tart drinks. Do you like tart drinks? If Yes, you'll like TART N' TANGY drink mixes. If No, you have flunked this test. Sorry!

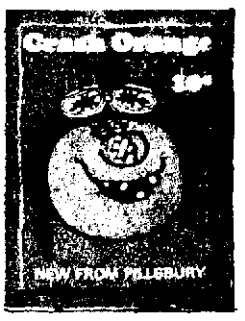
This is D. R. Thirst. His first name is Demon. His middle name is Raging. Naturally, he is a villain. With a name like that, what other kind of job could he get?



Sir Reginald Lime-Lime would be called Sir Reginald Lime, but his grandfather stuttered. Still, a fine-fine name-name for a drink-drink that's tart-tart. What-what?

The tree-point landing (below) was invented by Crash Orange (right). We named an orang-y drink for him because the tangy flavor is smashing.

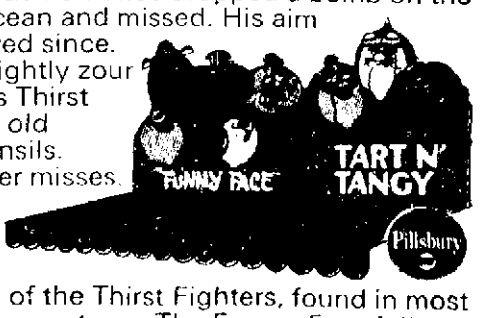




Crash Orange (above) invented the tree-point landing (left). We named a tangy drink for him because the orang-y flavor is smashing.

Whales, which never drink low-calorie, sugar free beverages like these, attain a weight of 160 tons. Think that over.

Baron von Lemon once dropped a bomb on the Atlantic Ocean and missed. His aim has improved since. Now his zlightly zour flavor nicks Thirst right in the old parched tonsils. POW! Never misses.



Home of the Thirst Fighters, found in most grocery stores. The Funny-Face folks at their left are neighbors. Very sweet people.

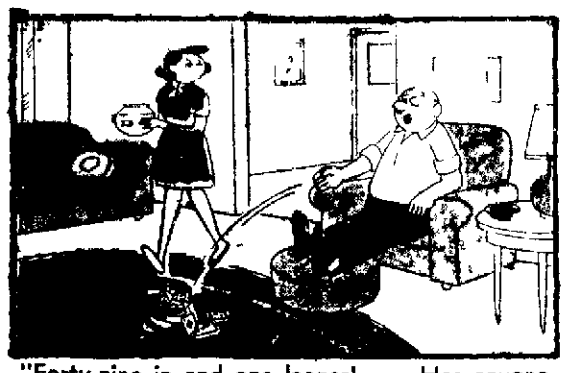
The BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

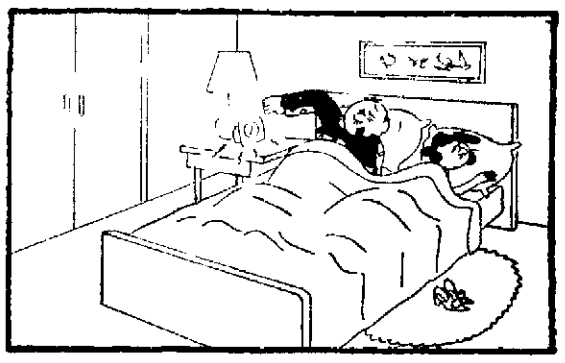
Featuring HARRIET & STANLEY PARKER



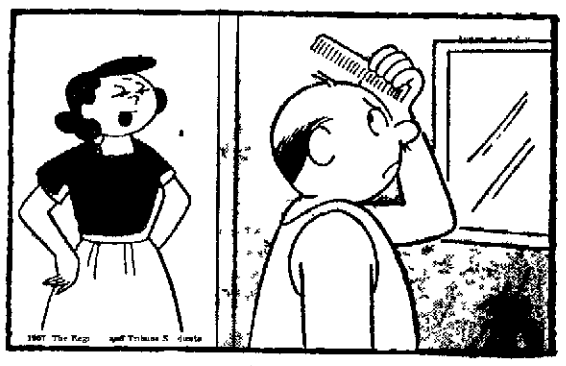
"Forty-nine in and one leaner! . . . Has anyone ever invited you to flip playing cards for the crowned heads of Europe?"

"It was owned by a little old lady who only drove it back and forth to church, but unfortunately she was myopic and unlicensed."

"Sure her nose is shiny—yours would be too if you had to sit on your powder puff all night."



"Get the doorbell, Liz, while Gina and I mix another batch of martinis."



"I'll bet you have the loneliest eyebrows in town."
